or Dysentery and Diarrhoea Cordial

Is a Sure Cure for Diarrhœa or Dysentery.

It is the most certain and effectual remedy ever offered to the public for icoseness of the bowels of whatever name or nature, chronic or acute, in man, woman or child, Having no alcohol whatever in its composition it is especially adapted for the cure of all summer complaints

In Infants and Children.

It is moderate in its action, certain in its results, and does not produce any reaction or constipation so common to many medicines of this character and which is always unpleasant and often dangerous.

NOTICE TO MARINERS. The treasury department has established two red buoys in the approach to Governors Harbor, off the southern and eastern side of Vinalhaven Island. One is designated at Crosby's Leige Buoy, and is 100 feet SE of the ledge, and another is known as Old Dutch Ledge buoy, about 500 feet south by east from the middle of the eastern one off the Old Duke ledges. The department also announces that a shoal spot of 9 feet depth over a rocky ledge, has been discovered off the west side of Long Island, in West Penobscot Bay. The location is only approximate, and mariners are warned to sail in that locality with caution.

Furniture Made of Match Boxes.

A hotel keeper out west is said to po ness the most curious articles of furniture in the world. For many years he colleced match boxes and as soon as he had o tained several thousand he began to con struct furniture out of them.
First he made a large writing desk, then a cigar stand, then a sideboard, then a fire screen, and finally a score or so o small decorative pieces for the walls and mantelpiece. What is most surprisin about his work is that the boxes, though carance of solidity and strength, and i deed those who have examined the furni-ture say that it is quite as strong as though it had been made of ordinary wood. Furthermore, the boxes have been so ingeniously joined together that body has gone away, and the heat is stifling. I agreed with her, but I simply had to make the trip. The Van Amsterdams had sent me an invitation—they are going to give a big fete champetre-and really I hadn't the right sort of a dress for the ocbit of fine embroidery thrown in here and there. In other words, I wanted a French gown, and, of course, every one knows that New York in midsummer is just the place to pick up a Parisian model dress for a mere song. To cut matters short, I found just what I wanted. The material is mousseline des indes, a cotton material which closely esembles chiffon in softness and is so fine in texture that it may be drawn through a ring. The color is cream, and it is covered with white embroidered flowers. The entire gown is laid in fine hand tucks running perpendicularly. The waist opens over a ront of white valenciennes ruffling, and popular airs. At 10 o'clock refreshr between each ruffle there is a band of nar-row peach colored satin ribbon. The belt things which Daisy told us she had made is narrow, with sash ends and a big rosette

These unique pieces of furniture ar naturally attracting much attentino, a if the hotel keeper cared to dispose of them he could obtain a much higher price than is paid for ordinary furniture.

Very simple, isn't it? But you should see reciate the daintiness. Just as I was leaving the shop I ran into Daisy Van Twiller. I was very much sur-prised, because I thought the Van Twillers were at a big seashore resort on Long after half a dozen engagements had been

"Dull!" laughed Daisy. "I'll tell you what. Kit. Move your things from the what. Kit. Move your things from the substantial and the substantial and substantial and the substantial unpleasantly compromised in consequence.
There were those who defended this condition of affairs on the ground that it was "democratic." But democracy is a word of various meaning; it does not imply the curiosity. I never was so surprised in my life. In the first place, you should have seen the house. All the heavy fittings had been removed, and a lot of that delightful the first place is the heavy fittings had been removed, and a lot of that delightful the first place. The holiday season. Perhaps, too, hotel etiquette is stricter than it used to be; if so, there is ground for satisfaction. It is far easier to make a show of good man-ners under a formal regime than under an informal one; the loosening of the rigid bonds gives natural impulse a chance, and There were any number of palms and Morris chairs and cool looking divans heaped up with pillows. Daisy wouldn't let me linger down stairs, however, but insisted that I go up to my room and rest before dinner. So I lounged in a little blue and home or from accustomed accumintances with here and there just a suspicion of red. it is then that men and women show what dinner.
