

THE WALK TO EMMAUS.

Aft-er the death of Je-sus, his dis-ci-ples were ver-y, ver-y sad, and knew not what to do. They had giv-en up all for him, and now he was cru-ci-fied and slain. They could not yet be-lieve the won-der-ful sto-ry of his be-ing a-live a-gain, and knew not what to make of it all. One day two of them were walk-ing to Em-ma-us, and when they were quite near the vil-lage, a strang-er ov-er-took them, and asked them what they were talk-ing a-bout so sad-ly. They told the man of the things that had hap-pened to Je-sus, and how their hopes had failed, and of the sto-ry that he had come to life a-gain, which they could scarce-ly be-lieve. The strang-er lis-tened to it all, and then be-gan to talk, tell-ing them all a-bout the Bi-ble, and its proph-e-cies; how all these things had been fore-told of Je-sus, and how they should rath-er re-joice than be sad o-ver them, for they proved that Je-sus was the Christ, the Son of God. While the strang-er talked, the two dis-ci-ples felt their hearts grow light a-gain, and their hopes re-turn. Glad-ly they asked the man to stop with them o-ver the night at Em-ma-us. He con-sent-ed to do so, and they were seat-ed in a lit-tle room eat-ing their sup-per, when the strang-er took bread, and, when he had giv-en thanks, broke it and gave to them. Then their eyes were o-pened to know him. It was Je-sus. In the pic-ture we see them on the way talk-ing to-ge-th-er.
