Rev. Dr. Bond At Cochrane Street

Occupies the Pulpit There at Morning Service and Delivers a Strong Appeal to Mothers on the Care Necessary in the Bringing up of Their Children

At the Cochrane St. Centennial Church yesterday morning the Pastor, Rev. Dr. Bond, occupied the pulpit, delivering a powerful admonitory sermon to mothers on the indispensable care necessary in the bringing up of children. The sermon was based on a text from the 28th verse, 31st chap. Proverbs, "Her children shall rise up and call her blessed."

The Rev. Gentleman continuing, emphasized the fact that the way in which children turn out depends upon their mothers, who literally can do what she will with her children. Her's was the task, the responsibility and the privilege and the old proverb "An ounce of mother is worth a pound of clergy" should be remembered. To strengthen his contention the Rev. Gentleman referred to Washington, Carnig, Curran, Cromwell, Bacon and Ruskin, great men who credited their successes to their mothers.

Saturday evening Sgt. Byrne arrested at Kibbride a young man who has a police record and who was suspected of breaking into the Royal Stores on Thursday last. The man taking fright went to Kibbride to be cut of the way, but the astute Detective was not to be baffled in this way. When caught and knowing that "the jig was up," he confessed that he had stolen the watches at the Royal Stores and the three "tickers" of the nickel variety were found on him.

Time Has Come for a Labor Party

Laborers Are Anxious for a Change—They Want a Direct Voice in Parliament—All Recognize Need of Such a Party and Will Follow Hon. M. P. Gibbs if he Places Himself at their Head

(To the Editor)

Dear Sir, From the various political indications it looks as that we shall have at last a real Workingman's Government; is it not about time Mr. Workingman? Yes! You are answering this question every day by your increasing political activities; we can readily see the evidence in our daily journeys; we feel the change in the political circles, it is of such extent that one may discern it everywhere he goes. When you hear the old politicians talk as they do you then can feel safe in reasoning that unrest is heard all round. They are to the political atmosphere what the barometer is to the World's atmosphere. They show the changes in political weather very quickly. Just observe them of late, they are looking for some phenomenon to arise to help to reestablish the party which they stood for, but it seems all no use, as it is generally known that the people are anxiously waiting the opportunity to test their strength. We saw what the North did towards their leader, Mr. Coaker. We saw it demonstrated in a strong manner; how loyal the people are to a Leader from among themselves. We saw by political structures supporters by what may be termed fairly strong men all go under before the wave of support to this man. This clearly shows that men of the class who toil are true to their Leader. It certainly was a clear cut answer to those who might have thought that they would not be strong enough to elect the men. Anyway it is history now.

We have now in St. John's a somewhat unusual enthusiasm for Hon. M. P. Gibbs as was in evidence in the North. This marked enthusiasm is the natural growth of ideas that fill every pore with gratitude for a man who threw in his lot with the cause of a people. How marked are the many assistances rendered to the workmen by the man. In fact the benefits are so general that they have caused a new era in thought. No longer do we see men treated as slaves; no longer do men work and receive small remuneration, and then treated as a privileged class because they were given a day's work. The mechanic and labourer of to-day has come in his estate and no longer are at the whim of an employer, who may be at times unjust. He is to-day a part of organization that will stand by him, and the employer knows it, therefore he treats his help just because he knows perfectly well that the organization will not stand any nonsense. Well, this condition of things was brought about by the concerted efforts of the different bodies of men of St. John's and the greater factor, the great power, the great adviser, the great enthusiast, in six words—the great friend of these bodies, is this same Hon. M. P. Gibbs. Therefore, when the outburst of enthusiasm came it did not occasion surprise, as the workmen only awaited the word to join in the cry we want a Workingman's Government. We want Gibbs. We don't know what policy that may be offered us. We don't know how much it will have to do with laws of the toilers, but what we do know is that all legislation of a nature that may deal with labour that it will have a straight, favourable and honest support from Mr. Gibbs.

The workingmen have by the acceding process reached the heights where he stands to-day. He has, whilst undergoing these series of changes proved that he is competent to control even greater things. He has reached that point in his country that he must take a strong stand in the governing affairs of his Island home. As the time is drawing near, when he has to control instead as in the past being led by men with not near the ability that they possess, he must get ready and place his energies at the disposal of those whom he seeks to represent him. A workingman's manifesto clear and decisive in all probability it shall be put before you; on it you stand or fall; on it depends the success of failure of a firm cause. The placing in Parliament of a real workingman's government means to you, toilers of the sea and land, a power which may be of untold benefit. You want a Workingman's Government! You want a change! You want the chance to govern! You have in your ranks statesmen! You have leaders! You have honest men. This is your opportunity, avail of it! Talk of it and encourage it by enterchanging ideas. A solid Workingman's party can win.

With best wishes for the success of the toilers' party. I remain, WEST END UNION MAN. St. John's, Sept. 30, 1916.

Appeal Made To R.C. Citizens

At all the Masses in the Catholic Churches of the City yesterday a letter, received by Rt. Rev. Monsignor McDermott from His Grace Archbishop Roche, was read from the pulpit. It had particular reference to the collection of dues, at which the priests of the Archdiocese are now engaged.

It speaks of the expense attendant on the upkeep of the Church and makes mention of the fact that the same amount is to-day being contributed by people as that given 20 or 30 years ago and despite the fact that disabilities have increased and much expense incurred. It also pointed out that large numbers of young people, who held positions and earned good salaries pay nothing to the upkeep of the Church depending on their parents or seniors in the household to discharge this duty. To obviate such a condition in future the clergy will take census of the Catholic population, male and female, who are in a position to pay their dues and the result should be an appreciable increase in the ecclesiastical revenues.

The Late Capt. Saml. W. Bartlett

Every man who has had anything directly to do with American Arctic work for the last twenty-five years will learn with sincere sorrow of the death at Brigus, N.F., his birthplace and lifelong home, on the 9th. inst., of Capt. Samuel W. Bartlett, master of the "Windward," "Erik" and other Peary auxiliary steamers, and later of the "Neptune," of the Canadian Hudson Bay Survey and exploration. Of the six Bartletts, fathers and sons, serving under Peary in his quarter-century quest, none was more loyal, useful and faithful than "Capt. Sam." Master of every detail of sea and ice navigation, both cautious and bold in danger, strict and quiet in discipline, chivalrous in questions of honour, loyal to friends and duty, he could not be other than a devout Christian, translating into daily life and service the best to which humanity aspires. Modest to the last degree, the world has never known and will never know the substantial service which Capt. Bartlett contributed to the great geographical achievement of the centuries, but even that in the memory of those who knew and loved him will be illuminated by the recollection of a noble character and inspiring example.—The Brooklyn Standard Union September 21st.

No Bodies Are Yet Recovered

Mr. R. J. Devaux, M.H.A., had a wire from Trepassy Saturday which stated that the wreck of the "Bonnie Lass" had been towed ashore Friday but that none of the bodies of the unfortunate crew had been recovered. The belief is that all hands were on deck when the vessel was swept on the bar Sunday night week and were washed clear of the wreckage, possibly into deep water, and may not be recovered.

C.C.C. Dance To-night

To-night the C.C.C. will give a dance in their new hall, Mechanics' Buildings, King's Beach, and a most enjoyable time is in store for all who will attend. These C.C.C. reunions are always looked forward to with pleasurable anticipation by the young folks and this is not surprising for they are generally a source of much pleasure to those who attend. The excellent full band of the Corps will give the music and have prepared a splendid programme of new dances. The ladies will look after the refreshments, the officers will look after the floor arrangements, and the hall has been neatly decorated.
