EXIT THE SIDE SADDLE

Hondon, Nov. 14.—The custom of fashionable women riding horseback astride is so growing in England that it can be predicted that it will be the rule instead of the exception in a very few years, and that it will attract no more remark than the custom of women bicycling. The practice is already often followed by society women in Rotten Row, the fashionable riding place in Hyde Park. Among the prominent women who ride in this fashion are Viscountess Castelereagh, the Duchess of Westminster, and the young daughter of the Duchess of Sutherland. Their riding habits are so contrived as to present the neatest appearance. Seen from some points of view, it can hardly be realized that they are not using a side saddle. The chief opposition to the custom comes from the teachers of horsemanship, who find the new style very much easier taughat The course of lessons is much curtailed; indeed, girls learn to ride astride its quickly as their brothers. Hondon, Nov. 14.-The custom
