enough to leave the coal oil can alone. Mrs. Z. V. Patterson, of Chatham, on Tuesday morning in starting the kitchen fire thought she would use a little coal oil to give it a good send off. She had the can in her hand and was about to pour in the oil, when she trip-ped on a bit of torn carpet and fell heavily, her head striking a small table, upon which were a couple of lighted lamps. Lamps, oil, and table rolled all together, and of course rapidly ignited, Mrs. Patterson's clothes taking fire at the same time. Luckily Mr. Terring ton bappened to pass by and seeing the smoke, he rushed in, and with great presence of mind grasped some hed-clothes, and succeeded in smothering, the flames, just in time to prevent what in a few moments more would have been a horrible catastrophe.
