Avondale Fire.

Our parish church, which represented many years of sacrifice and labour, was destroyed by fire in the lightning storm of June 17th. This loss comes upon us while we are still endeavouring to pay off the debt on the parochial residence recently built.

Our parish is small both in population and resources, and under the circumstances we are compelled to ask the outside public for assistance. Any contributions, no matter how small, will be gratefully accepted by the following members of the committee:—Dr. W. E. Jones, George Kennedy, John Moore, Patrick O'Brien, William Aspell, Patrick Flynn, Joseph Moore, John Devereaux, Lawrence Hennessy, or

"WHY should I buy a roofing that needs to be painted every little while to keep it tight, when, for the same money or less, I can buy AMATITE which needs no painting?"

The outer surface is composed of real mineral matter, which makes painting unnecessary.

With an Amatite Roof on your building you end your roofing troubles. When you buy a roofing that requires frequent painting you begin them.

Smooth roofings that require painting are a nuisance and an expense. When you buy them, you buy trouble—not protection.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

"He certainly doesn't stand pain well" or "she stands pain wonderfully" —

How often I've heard expressions like these and wondered at them.

I wish someone would kindly tell me "in case they chance to know" how anyone ever finds out just how much pain anyone else is bearing and consequently how well he is standing it.

It seems to me that we are apt to assume altogether too much knowledge of each other's inward workings and this is a good example of that tendency.

Since the only way to measure another's pain is by the show of emotion it causes in him, it is evidently impossible to say that one person bears pain better than another because he shows less emotion. For in so saying, you are measuring your measure by itself.

Until mental telepathy and mental science are advanced very much farther than at present, we can't possibly know the inside of any other human being's mind and the sooner we give up thinking that we can, the better.

* * * * * *

"When I was a girl," said the lady-who-always-knows-somehow, "my father would always be most indignant if he heard anyone talking about family trees.

"My dear child,' he would say to me, 'The people who really have family trees worth talking about, don't talk about them. That's a sure test. They just show the fruits in their manner. The kind of family tree that runs to talk, you can be pretty sure isn't much of a tree.'"

I thought the comment worth passing on.

* * * * * *

"No, I am not taking a single thing to sew or a single solid book to read. I'm going to have the most deliciously lazy time that ever was."

So I heard a woman say the other day.

Do you know I have a diametrically different receipt from that for having the most thoroughly lazy time.

It is, to be sure to take some one or two little tasks with you on your vacation.

For I don't think you can ever be quite so delightfully indolent as when you have something that you ought to do but aren't doing.

The feeling that you have absolutely nothing to do and two or three weeks to do it in is apt to induce ennui, but the feeling that you have something that you really ought to do gives a delicious stolen fruit sort of flavor to your idleness.

In the same way the story that you snatch the time from clamorous duties to read is always more interesting than the book you sit down to with an afternoon to be whiled away.

But you didn't want to exert yourself at all on your vacation and even a little task would mean some exertion.

But I didn't mean to do the task. Bless you, no. That would spoil the spell. Just have it to do.

Ruth Cameron

Fads and Fashions.

Very pleasing is the mid-season penchant for all-white— all-white hats, parasols, bags and frocks. But always colored sashes.

Wide lace collars worn on coats and dresses are bordered with soutache worked in a pattern which gives weight to the edges.

All or nearly all of the late summer gowns are showing the high waist line, and the skirt, if not really tunic, are tunic in effect.

Quite wonderful are new colored silk handkerchiefs from Paris—lavender, blue, even purple—to match summer costumes.

Most polo coats for young women are white—but suddenly has arisen a demand for the blue, especially for steamer wear.

In skirts the popularity of the panel back and front still holds. The newest skirts have pleats inset at the sides to give the desired fullness.

The most charming of children's bonnets are evolved from fine embroidered or spotted muslin over pink pongee, with ribbons to match.

The first authoritative autumn hats are sugar loaf shape, with fancy feather trimming. Crowns are rather high, and brims sharply upturned.

Portia's Fishery News.

By the Portia we learn that 16 vessels which were fishing in the Straits arrived at Bonne Bay, having done nothing. These vessels have gone north, beyond communication, and have not been heard of since they left. As regards the shore fishery, the voyage from Bonne Bay to Placentia is a remarkable failure. From Placentia here to St. John's, excepting Trepassey and the Southern Shore, for traps, the fishermen are well off and have an average voyage. There were eight or ten American vessels in Burgeo Saturday morning. Squid was very scarce and they picked up bait slowly. There is only a small complement of squid to be had all along the coast down to Burin. These bait fishes are numerous in the water but will not jig. It is thought when the weather becomes unsettled they will be had in abundance.

Story of the Amethyst.

By the Portia we learn that the Amethyst is now lying in Cape Mutton Bay on an even keel with 2 feet of her rail above water. There is nothing standing but the funnel, and she will go to pieces with the first heavy ground sea which a N. N. E. wind will throw in. The ship was lost at about 10 a.m. on Saturday morning, July 22nd. She was then running in her proper course S. E. by E. in a dense fog, and when sometime before she struck, her captain expected to hear the Cape Race Whistle he heard another fog alarm on her port beam. Not having any notice of Cape Freels fog alarm being in position, the captain decided the horn he heard was that of Cape Race and after having run a reasonable time to the S. E. of it he kept off E. N. E. down the Southern Shore. After running about six miles on that course he heard another whistle on his port bow and decided that it was another ship lying about in the fog. Feeling confident of his position he kept on a E. N. E. course when suddenly he found his ship in amongst the breakers. The order given from the bridge was hard a port; the ship answered the helm quickly but not swiftly enough to turn out clear of the "sunkers" close in at Cape Ballard. She ran up on the rocks forward and slid off again, and immediately the forehold was sounded and she was found to be making water quickly. Fifteen minutes later the captain seeing that the ship was about to sink lowered away his boats and abandoned her. The water tight compartments forward bore the strain and kept the engine room dry for a considerable time. She then drifted slowly in Cape Mutton Bay and became a total wreck.

Cable News.

Special to The Evening Telegram:

LONDON, Aug. 2.

Head counting in the House of Lords over the Veto Bill has now been transferred to the Liberal side of the Chamber. Morley has written a letter to all Liberal Peers intimating that the Veto Bill will be again submitted to the Lords, probably during August. After referring to hostile intentions of the Halsburyites against the measure, he asks in view of this emergency whether he may count upon the attendance in the Chamber on Aug. 9th of each recipient. This move of Morley's is interpreted to mean that the Government is now confident of its ability to outvote the Halsburryites without the necessity of creating more Peers. It is estimated that sixty to seventy Liberals will respond to Morley's invitation to attend the session, while it is tolerably certain that Halsbury cannot muster forty votes. Further, it is still expected that several Unionist Peers will vote with the Government, although the bulk of them will follow Lansdowne's advice and abstain from voting at all. Under present circumstances, the question whether a divided union party will be able to close up its ranks becomes a subsidiary matter. The dinner given to Lord Standries was private. A feature of the function was the cordiality displayed towards Mr. Balfour, who, contrary to expectation, did not allude to his speech on the constitutional crisis; whether anything of a conciliatory nature was achieved is not known.

LONDON, Aug. 2.

Dock laborers, to the number of sixty thousand, went out on strike today. The seamen's strike, which was settled some time ago, convinced dockers that they could also obtain their demands by similar action. As a result strikes have occurred in various shipping ports in England and Wales. London has hitherto not been seriously affected, but the meat trade is seriously threatened now by the strike, and at least twenty steamers loaded with meat are unable to discharge. Police reserves were sent to the docks, but their services were not required. The men went quietly from steamer to steamer calling on their fellow workers to join the movement, and were successful in every case.

Combined in the same alliance that resulted in the passage of the compromise wool tariff revision bill in the Senate last week by the Democrats and Republican insurgents, that body has passed a farmer's free bill list. The compromise takes fresh meat products out of the free list, except such as come from countries that do not admit certain American farm products duty free.
