Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

RESPECTED AND RESPECTABLE.

RUTH CAMERON

She is a young person with considerable poise and a burning sense of justice and when her mother rebuked her in that way she thought it over for a minute and then said, "In mother, but oughtn't old age to be respectable?"

Did Young People Are So Intolerant Anyway!

I couldn't help feeling that was a pretty good retort, and I sat down to write about it. And then as I sat before my typewriter, I fell to thinking and I said to myself, "If I do that will not excuse lack of respect and reverence for any older person whom they do not deserve respect."

And so I didn't write it. But the other night when I was reading Dickens I came across these verses:

"Honor thy father and thy mother. And ye fathers provoke not your children to wrath."

And then I thought, "Well, if Saint Paul wasn't afraid to admit that the obligation of honoring was two-sided I don't suppose I need be."

Of Course One Should Be Tender To Physical Infirmary.

It goes without saying that one ought to be gentle and chivalrous towards the physical weaknesses of old people because they are unavoidable but mental and character weaknesses are not unavoidable except in advanced childhood.

There's no use titling at them because as a rule they are altogether too firmly fixed to be changed, but one can be asked to respect their infirmities in that particular?

A friend of mine used to play bridge with an elderly man who had the very exasperating habit of talking across the board. He would make absolutely unallowable comments on the bid and would tell his partner some card was good when he feared she might trump, etc. My friend was very patient with him and then one day when I happened to be watching the game she took the liberty of cutting for herself instead of waiting for the player who should have cut to come back from the telephone. "I'm sure no one will mind," she said.

Whereupon the old gentleman towards whom she had shown such tolerance said most testily, "Well, it isn't allowed!" She didn't say a word, just gathered up the cards, and waited to have them properly cut.

Not A Justification.

"Why didn't you call his attention to the things he does that aren't allowed?" someone asked her afterward.

"Oh, well," she said, "he's an old man."

To refer once more to Bismarck, "That may explain but does not justify his act."

As our hair turns gray we all want the traditional respect that belongs thereto. Is it not well then that we concern ourselves with being respectable?

Admirals Ail.

(From the Westminster Gazette.)
Admiral Sir Edmund Fremantle, G. C. B., who retired from active service twenty years ago, has been visiting Devonport to meet his son, Vice-Admiral Sydney Robert Fremantle, who put in with his fleet for a few days. It is seventy years since Sir Edmund entered the Navy as a midshipman, and nearly twice as long since Sir Thomas Francis Fremantle, G. C. B., his father who fought under Nelson at Copenhagen and Trafalgar, did so. Another naval family is that of the Seymours, with two cousins, the late Sir Michael Culme Seymour and Sir Edward Hobart Seymour, as Admirals of the Fleet, and the son of the former as Rear-Admiral. The grandfather of the two Admirals of the Fleet was Admiral Sir Michael Seymour, K. C. B.

THE DEATHKNELL OF MILITARISM.

The sternest and most drastic terms of peace ever imposed upon a great nation were formally presented to the German plenipotentiaries at Versailles recently. German world-power, in the only sense in which it was ever understood by Junkertum, is obliterated. The treaty in its final form is the death certificate of German militarism and German imperialism, and as affecting the welfare of mankind, that is its most important provision.—New York World.

NO ROOM FOR HATE.

We have room for the man with na honest dream.

With his heart on fire and his eyes aglow;

We have room for the man with a purpose true.

Who comes to our shores to start life anew.

But we haven't an inch of space for him Who comes to plot against life and limb.

We have room for the man who will stand by our Flag in its troubled days;

We have room for the man who will till the soil.

Who will give his hands in a fair day's toil.

But we haven't an inch of space to spare For the breeder of hatred and black despair.

We have room for the man who will neighbor here.

Who will keep his hands and his conscience clear;

We have room for the man who'll respect our laws

And pledge himself to our country's cause.

But we haven't an inch of land to give To the alien breed that will alien live.

Against the vicious we bar the gate! This is no breeding ground for hate.

This is the land of the brave and free And such, we pray it shall always be.

We have room for men who will love our flag.

But none for the fiends of the scarlet rag.

Fashions and Fads.

Blue serge frocks show flounced skirts and raised waistlines.

Steel gray is one of the most delightful colors in velveteens.

Godet fullness promises to be a feature in the coming gowns.

Tricotines will be the most popular of all fabrics for fall suits.

High-necked tailored shirts of silk are worn with sports suits.

A summer hat of white horsehair is trimmed with orange blossoms.

The French ankle strap is making its way into American shoe styles.

One evening gown of jersey silk shows long sleeves and trousers.

Black-and-white striped silks are much favored by Paris fashion makers.

A few tucked voile waists are fastened with crochet buttons in the back.

Multi-colored striped wool is used for trimming gray and tan velour coats.

The large open-mesh veil with no scrolls or large dots is most fashionable.

The newest Paris coats have no fastenings, they merely wrap around the figure.

Sashes of crepe or chiffon in colors contrasting with the frocks are much worn.

An evening gown of black satin is girdled in apple green and lemon colored taffeta.

A dark blue foulard frock is ruffled in linen and trimmed with strands of ivory beads.

To carry with light frocks are purses of gold or silver metal brocade, combined with black.

Blue and black striped velvet is one of the most striking materials used for short-sleeved gowns.

Matching the stones in the shoe buckles, the back combs and the ornamentation of evening gowns is a fad of the moment.

ABBEY BELLS TO RING IN PEACE.

Westminster Abbey is now in possession of a full peal of eight bells ready to ring in the peace.

The last time the bells of the Abbey were heard was at the coronation of King George. Then the bells were only six in number and did not constitute a full peal.

To complete the octave, two bells have been added the old bells returned and the whole eight have been re-hung for the peace.
