cident happened last Saturday a little after 6 p.m. at H. John's, near Elimville. He is raising his barns this year and had torn down one of the old barns, and intended to raise the other barn and join to it a newly-framed one. The men had succeeded in raising the barn to a height of about eight feet, and were clearing the timber and rubbish away from under the building, when the barn feil down, a piece of timber used for cribbing having broken. Three men and a team of horses were under it at the time, but hearing the timber crack, ran out, just barely escaping with their lives. Not two pieces of timber in the framework of the barn were left united.
