Sir Richard Cartwright observed that now Sir Richard Cartwright observed that now was a convenient time to inquire of the Finance Minister when he would deliver his budget speech. Mr. Foster for the was definite. "The budget speech wha" said he, "be delivered on Tuesday nex. Meanwhileas a sop to the hon. gentleman, present him with the ten days' statement." Sir. Richard had insisted upon a statement of the receipts and expenditures being laid on the table of the House ever ten days until the budget was presented. Sir Hector Lengevine manifested no disposition to answer Mr. Laurier's question, so the United States and Great Britain which anticipates the passage of an order of that character.

Dr. Macdonald (Huron) inquired what steps the Government had taken with a view to having the order of the United States putting an embargo on Canadian sheep and swine entering that country removed. Mr. Haggart, answering for the Department of Agriculture, said that on June 16 an order had been made amending the Canadian regulations so that sheep and awine entering Canada from Europe should be subject to fifteen days' quarantine, which was the United States regulation, instead of their simply being inspected. The United States had been advised of this officially. This order being only issued yesterday was undoubtedly the result of the question which the member for East Huron had given notice of. At an earlier stage in the session Mr. McMullen brought the important matter to the attention of the Government. Mr. Allison wanted to know of the Government if it intended to make a grant of land to each of the survivors of the volunteers who assisted in suppressing the rebellion in Canada in 1837 and 1838. Sir A. P. Caron replied in the negative. The Government, he said, considered it was a matter affecting the old Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada before Confederation. Mr. Gibson moved for an order of the

The Government is Urged to Mr. Tupper introduced a bill which has been on the order paper for more than a month entitled "An act to amend the law to a been a constant of shira." In moving the month entitled "An act to amend the law respecting safety of ships." In moving the first reading he explained that recent legislation in the Imperial Parliament fixing the load line of vessels leaving British ports had seriously alarmed the shipowners of the Maritime Provinces. It was proposed under the Imperial act to adopt an extraordinarily severe regulation in relation to the loading of ships. All the local ships, as well as the ships built at home, j were compelled to component to the Imperial were compelled to component. were compelled to conform to the Imperial rules as to the extent to which they could tral. He held in his hand a message which showed how necessary it was that there should be no further delay.

Mr. Tupper replied that he had intended to introduce the bill tt-day, but he found that he was obliged to incorporate a new provision. The Minister further informed the House that owing to certain vessels being on the point of departure an order had been issued by the Minister of Agriculture prescribing the space for each animal on board ship. Members on both sides of the House took up the subject. Mr. Featherstone was the first to move. He is a practical agriculturist and knows what I I featherstone was the first to move. He is a practical agriculturist and knows what farmers' interests are. Dr. Sproule and Col. Denison also exhibited telegrams from Montreal showing that the department had made a mistake. They had fixed the space for each animal at two feet six inches on the upper deck and two feet eight on the lower. Two feet eight inches should be insisted upon in the case of both the decks. Mr. Tupper replied that he understood instructions had been sent to insist upon two feet.

until the budget was presented. SirHector Lengevine manifested no disposition to answer Mr. Laurier's question, so the leader of the Opposition put another.
"Do I understand that the statement I referred to will be made to-morrow?" SirHector Langevine replied. "Did the hongentleman say to-morrow or some other day? I will probably be able to state something to the honorble agentleman tomorrow." Then he added in the best English he could command at the moment, "I don't promise nothing." Replying to Mr. Gordon, Mr. Tupper said the Government had not been advised by the Imperial Government that it is the

When the House rose at 6 o'clock the motion of Mr. Langelier's was not allowe by the Opposition to pass, as they are a satisfied that the debate should end at the satisfied that the debate should end a mat juncture, and after recess, when the House was about to resame business, there was a lively passage-at-arms between Sr John Thompson and the member for Queens, Mr. Davies, contended that the Committee on Privileges ought to have been convened before this time beyed all manner of doubt, but rumors were in circulation that it was not to be alled together to morrow but on Fridar This together to morrow, but on Friday. The was to be regretted on many consider tions. It could not but be remember that the conduct of one of the leading mer bers of this House was being investigated and the dignity of the House was at stake. Under these circumstances reasonable peed should be adopted by the committee in its proceedings.

There were a large number of winesses in attendance by virtue of the subpruss. Of course the expense was inconsiderable, but when they considered the graity of the charges and the position of the gatlemen against whom the charges were made and the inevitable conclusion that the charges if proved would be followed by most serious consequences, he stood mass at the fact that the committee had nather called, as had been promised, de in diem, and that its meetings were leing postponed without cause or explanation being given. He thought if the Government were responsible they ought to be blaned, and if the chairman of the committee were and if the chairman of the committee vere

The agreement arrived at had been brien.
Sir John Thompson lost his tempe and hotly and repeatedly charged that Mr.
Davies had blamed the Government fit the delay. Mr. Davies replied that he had neither placed the blame on the Government nor the chairman of the committee, but he was anxious to know on whom the blame ought to be placed.
Sir John continued to reiterate his charge, though repeatedly called to order, and wound up by excusing the committee from meeting because of the unsettled condition of affairs since the death of the late Premier.

Mr. Tarte called the ror each animal at two feet six inches on the upper deck and two feet eight on the lower. Two feet eight inches should be insisted upon in the case of both the decks. Mr. Tupper replied that he understood instructions had been sent to insist upon two feet eight inches space for each animal above and below deck. He was surprised to hear about the two feet six inches order having gone out. He would see the Minister of Agriculture and have it cleared up.

Before the questions standing on the paper were taken up, Mr. Laurier had an inquiry to make in which the House and the country are deeply interested. He said: "I would like to call the attention of the leader of the House to the fact that in the leader of the House to the fact that in the leader of the House to the fact that in the leader of the House to the formation of a new Cabinet he made no statement what twer as to what would be the policy of the new Administration. I shall expect that it will be convenient to him he will inform the House in that respect. Sir Hector Langevin stroked his chin, turned to Sir John Thompson, whispered to him and sat down.

Mr. Job Scales, of Toronto, writes: "A short time ago I was suffering from Kidney Complaint and Dyspepsia, sour stomach and lame back; in fact, I was completely prostrated and suffering intense pain. While in this state a friend recommended me to try abottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. I used one bottle, and the permanent manner in which it has cured and made a new man of me is such that I cannot withhold from the proprietors this expression of my gratitude."
