

MAIDEN SPEECH OF LORD MILNER

Powerful Oration on Situation in South Africa

BY THE FORMER COMMISSIONER

Lord Elgin Repudiates "Taint of Slavery" Remark Made by One of His Colleagues.

London, Feb. 26.—There was a dramatic moment in the House of Lords to-night, in a crowded and excited chamber, the Lord of Elgin, colonial secretary, was interrogated by Lord Harris on the phrase "taint of slavery," which Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman had applied to the conditions of Chinese labor in South Africa. "I decline to take responsibility for the use of that term," said Lord Elgin, whilst the opposition laughed. "I wish to express my deep regret that this term has been used," he added. The opposition cheered loudly and long. Ministerial lords hung their heads. Members of the government from the other house, who were clustered on the steps of the throne, showed that they had never felt so uncomfortable in their lives. Mr. Chamberlain, who was standing on one side of the throne, gave a significant toss of his head; while Mr. Lyttelton, on the other side of the throne, laughed outright. Lord Elgin did not flinch. He gave his reason for repudiating the language of the Prime Minister and knocking away the ladder by which most of the Radicals had secured their return. First, he did not think that colonialists who had fought for us should be placed under an imputation; second, because it might give rise to the suspicion that there was a difference of opinion between the two parties in the country on the great question of slavery. "I will not believe that for a moment," he said; "I believe with all parties that slavery cannot exist under the British flag." It was the fullest and most complete apology that any minister of state has ever made for his party having ridden into power on a false cry.

Lord Milner's Maiden Speech.
Truly, it was an historic night in the upper chamber. It was known that Lord Milner, late high commissioner and governor-general in South Africa, would make reference to the condition of affairs in the land which he ruled so long. It was to be his "maiden" speech in the House of Lords. Excitement and interest ran high. The house was full, Lord Milner, sitting on the front cross bench with the Earl of Rosebery and Lord Roberts as companions, was dignified. The neighborhood of the throne was crowded and comfortably with privy councillors, ministers and ex-ministers from "another place," and the eldest sons of peers; the little strip of gallery which circles the chamber was pressed tight with peepers, so that many of them had to stand in the aisles. The gallery Whitehall and the Marquis de Seville represented the United States and Portugal; the side pews allotted to members of the Commons were packed to inconvenience; the strangers' gallery was unusually crowded. The night was hot, and the peepers swayed their fans.

A murmur of greeting sounded as Lord Milner slowly walked from the cross bench to the table. He was a tall, serious, dignified figure as in the stress of excitement he braced himself, and with careful deliberation and gravity he unfolded his "maiden" speech. His countenance was stern and immobile. At first he spoke with lowered, even halting voice. But in a couple of minutes he had "found himself." There was no passion; he spoke with measured deliberation. His voice was rhythmic, soft, almost velvety. Of set purpose he avoided partisanship, but considered South Africa with the confidence of a man who knew he was entitled to speak—and the very restraint of his manner gave an additional force to his words. It was a speech pregnant and virile—probably the most remarkable

TOOTHACHE SALADS
Promote Health and Plesse Palate.

A lover of good living writes from Chicago:
"The favorite salads in my family," he says, "are prepared with Grape-Nuts, according to your recipe. We regard them as unapproachable. We are also fond of Grape-Nuts with cream as a breakfast food, and use it daily."

"I was a great sufferer for years," he continues, "from stomach trouble, which gave rise to painful headaches, and I was at last completely prostrated and bed-ridden with ulceration of the stomach and bowels. I suffered untold agonies while the doctors were trying to cure my ailment with medicines."

"I could retain nothing on my stomach but an occasional sip of cold water, or a teaspoonful of olive oil, and at last even these could no longer be kept down. The doctors then gave me up—said there was no hope for me. In this strait my good angel induced me to try Grape-Nuts Food, and I may sound ludicrous to say of the initial experience that the sensation was 'empty, heavenly' but nothing milder than that will express it."

"My recovery was rapid and in a very few days I was up and about, and in a few weeks I was a perfectly well man again. And it was all the work of the Grape-Nuts Food, for as I have said, the doctors had ceased to give me medicine, considering my case hopeless."

"Since then Grape-Nuts has been, and always shall be a staple article of diet with me." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in all packages.

"maiden" speech ever delivered in the chamber.

Risks of the New Policy.

He recalled how, on the Radicals coming into power, a whoop of triumph went up from the ranks of the anti-British press in South Africa. And the ministry proposed to grant responsible self-government to the Orange River Colony—a risky experiment. There was no affection yet for the British Empire, indeed, almost every leader had, since the war, devoted himself to thwarting the policy of reconciliation and to keeping alive the bitterest memories of the war. He brought the house to an impressive silence—marked by the fact that people forgot to cough, the true indication of close interest—when, with raised finger, and in solemn tone, he warned the government that they men, once the opportunity came, would never cease till all "offensive British taint" had been removed. He reached the tragic tone when he wondered how anybody could regard with equanimity the prospect that the very land which prepared the ultimatum of 1899 might, a year hence, draft orders which a British governor could do no other than sign. And if he refused? "I think," said Lord Milner, with a little bitterness, "I can hear the low growl of menace from press, platform and pulpit, and the scream from a section of the press in this country, and venturing to trample on the representatives of a people 'tainted' by the commission of a crime, through long and arduous wars, which have subjected to security. The house understood, and a rumble of cheers came from the opposition benches. The ministerial benches were hushed.

Lord Milner pointedly stated that what the government proposed was not a constitutional and gradual development, but a sudden revolutionary change, under which loyalty to the old system would be regarded as a black mark by those who supported the new. He pressed this point, and asked the government whether self-government was granted the Orange River Colony or not. He asked whether the political situation throughout South Africa, "the loyalty and the prosperity of the Orange River Colony is the result of a man who, through long and arduous wars, which have subjected to security. The house understood, and a rumble of cheers came from the opposition benches. The ministerial benches were hushed.

The Labor Problem.

What was the position in regard to Chinese labor? Six months ago the economic crisis was over. The position was day was one of harassing, paralyzing uncertainty. The economic development of the Transvaal, and the business interests of the Transvaal, and the Chinese entering into an agreement for mutual advantage. Towards the close of the year, however, the Chinese rose to high discontent. He was not much of a party man. "I had too long, too bitter, an experience of the effects of the Transvaal upon the Chinese national interests. It has been my duty to serve." His concluding sentence was terse, significant and prophetic. "The pendulum can swing backwards and forwards many times, but if you lose South Africa, you lose it forever. Chinese race strongly as he slowly walked back to his place on the cross bench.

Mr. Falconer, it is stated by Laurier, was the sole heir to the property in England, valued at three million dollars, but his surviving relatives are numerous and many claims are doubtless being made for shares in it. Laurier's mother died some years ago, he said, and he was brought up in the regular school of the law. He claims he has retained one of Hamilton's ablest lawyers, and with him will go to England to inquire into the matter.

FUNDS FOR MISSIONS

The Presbyterians to Extend Work Amongst Catholics in the West.

Toronto, March 18.—Large sums to be devoted to work in the west were allotted by the Presbyterian Home Missions Committee at its session in St. Andrew's Church yesterday. The sub-committee appointed to consider the question of the sum to be given for work in the two western synods recommended that $24,000 be allotted to the Synod of Manitoba and Saskatchewan for work amongst English-speaking people, and $14,000 amongst non-English-speaking people, a total of $38,000. They also recommended that $20,000 be granted for work amongst the English-speaking people and $2,750 amongst the non-English-speaking people in the Synod of Alberta and British Columbia. For work in the Yukon $1,000 was granted. The amounts granted for the different Presbyteries in Ontario and Quebec totalled $500 per week, or about $26,000 per year. Miss Mickle, Mrs. Bastedo, Mrs. Snellie, Mrs. Baird, Mrs. Hart and Mrs. Logie Macdonnell attended as a deputation from the Women's Home Missionary Society board to confer with the committee in regard to the educational work amongst the Catholics in the Northwest. The committee assured the ladies that the proposition submitted by them would receive consideration, and Dr. Carmichael, Dr. McLaren, Dr. Hendman, Dr. Somerville and Dr. Armstrong were appointed to go into the matter. It was decided that hereafter grants to home mission fields should be paid quarterly instead of half-yearly, as has hitherto been the custom. The appropriations that will be needed for the home mission funds will amount to $100,000 for the current year, this being $10,000 more than last year. A sympathetic resolution in regard to the death of Rev. Dr. Robert H. Warden was passed.

Parker, Marquette Brakman, Passes Away in Chatham Hospital.

Chatham, March 18.—John Parker, who met with shocking injuries at the Pere Marquette yards Friday afternoon as the result of his head coming into contact with a car while he was swinging from the step of another car, died at St. Joseph's hospital Saturday morning at 7:30. He never regained consciousness from the time of the accident. He was from Wyoming, and leaves a wife, but no children. He was once stationed at Sarnia. The deceased man was widely popular with the other employees of the railway company, and his death has cast a gloom over the whole local system.

PLANNED TO KILL TWO EMPERORS

Conspiracy to Dispose of Czar and Kaiser Unearthed at Koenigsberg.

Berlin, March 18.—By the merest chance, the police of Koenigsberg, a German port near the Russian frontier, have just discovered an immense quantity of dynamite bombs, infernal machines and anarchistic literature, and discovered the Russian revolutionists are receiving direct support from comrades in the United States. Evidence of a plot to kill the Kaiser also has been found.

The town is full of Russian fugitives, who are allowed to hold meetings when they get a permit from the chief of police, who then sends an officer to be present. Last night, however, the police while searching for a petty criminal suddenly came upon a secret meeting of Russian revolutionists, who first drew revolvers, but then fled without firing.

When the house was searched, tons of dynamite bombs, and hundreds of revolvers were found in the cellar, as well as an immense quantity of pamphlets and a carefully mapped-out plan to kill the Czar at Tsarkoe-Seio. A number of letters, which had evidently contained money, dated at various American cities, were found behind the bricks of an old fireplace, and in many of these the senders denounced the Kaiser, as well as the Czar, claiming that he was a far more dangerous enemy of the cause of liberty than Nicholas, and that in case a Russian could be found in Europe willing to kill him, a man sent from America would assassinate him as Bismarck murdered King Humbert. Fifteen Russians have been arrested today.

PRO-BRITISH ARE THE SPANIARDS

Our Ideas in Sport, Clothes and Commerce Being Widely Copied.

Madrid, March 18.—A striking effect of the approaching royal wedding is the widespread love of everything English. Several politicians and writers have insisted, however, that British popularity is not a recent feeling in Spain.

quoting in support of this statement a popular refrain of the eighteenth century, when French court influence was strongly resented: "Con todo el mundo guerra y pas con Inglaterra." ("War with all the world and peace with England.")

The following passage from an important periodical indicates the general feeling regarding England and the royal wedding: "There will arrive in Spain with Princess Ena the currents of British life, by means of which Spain will be known better and esteemed more by that master of liberties, the lord and arbiter of the mercantile existence of the whole world, and whose influence is deeply felt in naval and governmental circles, in sports, clothes, fashions, horses and carriages."

The royal stables contain some fine English and Irish horses, bearing such names as Fly, Pretty, Big Ben, Foot-ball has now become quite popular, not only among the sons of the aristocracy, but in popular schools. The king offers a cup for the annual championship, Polo has been played for the last three years. Since the visit of Princess Ena to Biarritz golf has leaped into favor. Hitherto the game was unknown here.

It is hoped that the rigid court etiquette maintained by Queen Christina will be relaxed by the English queen. Spanish ladies especially wish for more personal freedom.

The principal shops have placed large orders for ribbons, neckties and handkerchiefs in English colors. "Princess Ena" fancy cakes and pastries are also being sold. For the carnival, beginning on Sunday, many fancy costumes, English tourists have been ordered.

English literature, too, is coming into fashion in this country.

BEARS ROUT SOLDIERS
How Inventory of a French Cathedral Was Successfully Blocked.

Paris, March 18.—The townspeople of Combaie devised a novel plan to defeat an attempt of the authorities to make an inventory of the property of the cathedral there. Being notified that a Government inspector was coming, they bought three black bears from a travelling showman. The bears were kept without food for two days in an adjoining cellar. They were released in the cathedral, hungry and angry, when the inspector reached the town. The inspector, with a military escort, upon arriving at the cathedral, was surprised to find that his entry was not permitted, but he was told to wait outside. The inspector hardly had time to speculate upon the meaning of this before he saw the bears hastily shutting the door and locking it. He tried to force the door open, but the men frantically tried to reopen the door, and the derisive laughter of those outside.

Realizing that he was trapped, the inspector made a dash for the nearest confession and clambered to the top of it, while the soldiers ran helter-skelter in every direction, seeking refuge, which they could not find. The townspeople then negotiated with the inspector through a window and obtained a very ready promise that he would quit if he was released.

The showman captured the bears, which were fed, while the inspector and his escort escaped. The animals being kept in the cellar against the next attempt at taking an inventory.

Would Be Dictator.

London, March 18.—Reynold's Newspaper prints a dispatch from Berlin to the effect that Kaiser Wilhelm is more determined than ever to have his own way in regard to Morocco at the Algeiras conference. His latest ambition is to pose as the dictator of the conference, and to assume the present moment a favorable one to assume the new role.

The more moderate of his ministers are very anxious lest the Kaiser shall provoke France too far, for fear that European hostilities may throw down the gauntlet to Germany, but the Kaiser will not allow anyone to question the wisdom of his policy.

PALE FACE, WEAK BLOOD

Why are some people strong and able to defy disease, while others are weak and subject to all the ills of human kind?

The difference is in the blood. Pale or the cerebri, gums and lips tell of blood that is lacking in quality and richness.

The person who has poor blood is subject to headache, dizziness, sleeplessness; the action of the heart is weak and there is sometimes palpitation; the breath is short, and there is lack of energy and strength.

This condition of weakness is entirely overcome by the persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which is above all else a builder and enricher of the blood.

New, rich flesh and tissue are added, new strength and vigor take the place of weakness and suffering, and instead of taking cold or contracting disease at every gust of wind that blows you find yourself getting strong and robust.

HOSPITALS CROWDED

MAJORITY OF PATIENTS WOMEN

Mrs. Pinkham's Advice Saves Many From This Sad and Costly Experience.

It is a sad but true fact that every year brings an increase in the number of operations performed upon women in our hospitals. More than three-fourths of the patients lying on those white beds are women.

Every one of these patients had plenty of warning in that bearing down feeling, pain at the left or right of the abdomen, nervous exhaustion, pain in the small of the back, pelvic catarrh, dizziness, flatulency, displacements or irregularities. All of these symptoms are indications of an unhealthy condition of the female organs, and if not heeded the trouble may make headway until the penalty has to be paid by a dangerous operation, and a lifetime of impaired usefulness at best, while in many cases the results are fatal.

The following letter should bring hope to suffering women. Mrs. Robert Glenn, of 434 Marie St., Ottawa, Ont., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham: "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so well and widely known that it does not need my recommendation, but I am pleased to add it to the many which you have in favor. I suffered untold agonies from serious female troubles for nearly three years, and the doctors told me that I must undergo an operation, but as I was unwilling to do this, I tried your Vegetable Compound and I am only too pleased that I did so, for it restored me to perfect health, saving me the pain of an operation and the immense bills attendant on the same. Pray accept my hearty thanks and best wishes."

Just as surely as Mrs. Glenn was cured of the troubles enumerated in her letter, just so surely will Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cure other women who suffer from female troubles, inflammation, kidney troubles, nervous excitability and nervous prostration.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all women who are ill to write her for free advice. She is a daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years has been advising sick women free of charge. Address, Lynn, Mass.

IF WOMEN ONLY KNEW

Thousands of women suffer untold miseries every day with aching backs that really have no business to ache. A woman's back wasn't made to ache. Under ordinary conditions it ought to be strong and ready to help her bear the burdens of life.

It is hard to do housework with an aching back. Hours of misery at leisure or at work. If women only knew the cause, Backache comes from sick kidneys, which admit of trouble sick kidneys cause in the world.

But they can't help it. If more work is put on them than they can stand it's not to be wondered that they get out of order. Backache is simply their cry for help.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

will help you. They're helping sick, overworked kidneys—all over the world—making them strong, healthy and vigorous. Mrs. P. Ryan, Douglas, Ont., writes: "For over five months I was troubled with lame back and was unable to move without help. I tried all kinds of plasters and liniments but they were no use. At last I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and after I had used three-quarters of the box my back was as strong and well as ever."
