

That Style? Your Figure? Impossible!

But women who are contemplating a new gown in the mode will have to contemplate a reduction of their flesh before they visit the dressmaker.

Fortunately this is nothing like the hard labor it was when one had nothing but exercising to get results with. Nowadays a short course of the Marmola Prescription Tablets shows any woman, however fat, the proportion necessary for her to wear a fashionable gown.

Let her take a Marmola Tablet (made in accordance with the famous prescription and therefore, harmless) after each meal and at bedtime and she should very soon be losing a pound a day. This result, accomplished without disturbing one's table customs, forming wrinkles or distending the stomach, astonishes everybody.

Even one large case, costing only 75 cents at any drugstore, or the same amount direct by mail from the Marmola Company, Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich., gives positive results. This constitutes the acme of economy.

Have a Joy Shave!
Oil Your Razor
with 3-in-One

Always do this before and after shaving: Draw your "ordinary" or "safety" razor blade between thumb and forefinger moistened with a little 3-in-One Oil. Oil your razor, too. Then you'll secure keenest edge in "tuckest time."

3-in-One Oil Prevents Rust from forming on the microscopic "teeth" which form the cutting edge of every razor blade. It's not that dull razor, makes it "toll" and hunt. You can't ever wipe all the other moisture out of your razor "teeth"—but 3-in-One Oil positively wards off any rusting between shaves.

Right now buy a bottle and have perfect shave. The back of your head tells you hundreds of other helpful uses, indoors and out.

For sale at all grocery stores, drug, grocery and general stores. 1 oz., 10c; 2 oz., 20c; 4 oz., 40c; 8 oz., 80c; 1 lb., $1.00. 3-in-One Oil, Oils, 25c.

SEVEN KEYS TO BALD PATE

The New Sensational Comedy

"A fascinating pursuit," laughed Mr. Magee. "I'm glad you've told me about it, and I shall watch the progress of the work with interest. Although I can't say that I entirely agree with you. Here and there is a woman who more than makes amends for whatever trouble her sisters have caused. One, for instance, with golden hair and eyes that when they meet yours—"

"You're young," interrupted the little man, rising. "There ain't no use to debate it with you. I might as well try to argue with a storm at sea. Some men keep the illusion to the end of their days, and I hope you're one. I reckon I'll start you first."

He went into the outer room, and Mr. Magee lay for a few minutes listening to his preparations about the fireplace. This was comfort, he thought, and yet, something was wrong. Was it the growing feeling of emptiness inside? Undoubtedly. He sat up in bed and leaning over, gazed into the hermit's basket. The dull yellow saw there was his feeling of emptiness the more acute.

"I say, Mr. Peters," he cried, leaping from bed and running into the other room, where the hermit was persuading a faint blaze. "I've an idea. You can cook, can't you?"

"Cook?" repeated the hermit. "Well, yes, I've had to learn a few things about it, living as I am from the rathskellers the way I do."

"The very man," rejoined Mr. Magee. "You must stay here and cook for me for us."

"Us?" asked the hermit, staring. "Yes, I forgot to tell you. After Mr. Quimby left me last night, two other amateur hermits move in view. One is a haberdasher with a broken heart, and another a college professor who made an incorrect remark about blondes. You won't mind them, I'm sure, and they may be able to help you out a lot with your great knowledge of the world."

"I don't know what Quimby will do," studied the hermit, "but he'll run his against this thing—afraid of fire."

"Quimby will come later," Mr. Magee assured him, drawing on a dressing-gown. "Just now the idea is a little water in your tub, and a nice cheerful breakfast after. It's going to pay you a lot better than selling postcards to romantic ladies. I promise you. I won't take you away from your work for which the world is paying without more than making it up to you financially. Where do you stand as a cook?"

"Wait till you taste it," said Peters, reassuringly. "I'll bring you up some water."

He started for the door, but Mr. Magee preceded him.

"The haberdasher," he explained, "sleeps below, and he's a nervous man. He might commit the awful error of shooting the only cook on Baldpate Mountain."

Mr. Magee went out into the hall and called from the depths the figure of Bland, fully attired in his flashy garments and looking tawdry and tired in the morning light.

"You open up hours," he remarked. "I heard somebody knocking around the kitchen, but I ain't seen any breakfast brought in on a silver tray. My inside feels like the Mammoth Cave."

Mr. Magee introduced the Hermit of Baldpate.

"Pleased to meet you," said Bland. "I guess it was you I heard in the kitchen. So you're going to cater to these few, are you? Believe me, you can't get on the job any too soon to suit me."

Out of a nearby doorway stepped the black-garbed figure of Professor Thaddeus Bolton, and him Mr. Magee included in the presentation ceremony. After the hermit had disappeared below, burdened with his market basket and the supplies Mr. Magee had brought the night before, the three amateurs at the hermit game gathered by the fire in number seven, and Mr. Bland spoke feelingly.

"I don't know where you plucked that cook, but believe me, you get a vote of thanks from yours truly. What is he—an advertisement for a hair restorer?"

The white outdoors; the fire sputtered gaily in the grate. Also, Mr. Peters' falling for literature interfered in no way with his talents as cook. The three finished the repast in great good humor, and Mr. Magee handed round cigars.

"Gentlemen," he remarked, pushing back his chair, "we find ourselves in a peculiar position. The lone men, knowing nothing of one another, we have sought the solitude of Baldpate Inn at night, before you came, Professor Bolton, Mr. Bland gave me as his reason for being here the story of Arabella, which I afterward appropriated as a joke and gave as my own reason. I related to Mr. Bland the action about the artist and beseeched the novelist. We swapped stories when you came—it was our merry little method of doubting each other's word. Perhaps it was bad taste, at any rate, looking at it in the morning light. I am inclined to return Mr. Bland's Arabella, and no queer House of Commons. He is again the haberdasher. I am inclined to believe implicitly your story. That is my proposition. No doubts of one another. We are here for whatever reasons we say we are."

The professor nodded gravely. "Last night," went on Mr. Magee, "there was some talk between Mr. Bland and myself about one of us leaving the inn. Mr. Bland demanded it. I trust he sees the matter differently this morning. I am sure he should be sorry to see him go."

"I've changed my mind," said Mr. Bland. The look on his thin face was not a pleasant one.

"Very good," went on Mr. Magee. "I see no reason why we should not proceed on friendly terms. Mr. Peters has agreed to cook for us. He can no doubt be persuaded to attend to our other wants. For his services we shall pay him generously in view of the circumstances. As for Quimby—I leave you to make your peace with him."

"I have a letter to Mr. Quimby from my old friend, John Bentley," said the professor, "which I am sure will win me the caretaker's warm regard."

Mr. Magee looked at Bland. "I'll get Andy Rutter on the wire," said that gentleman, "and he'll listen to him, I guess."

"Maybe," remarked Magee carelessly. "Who is Rutter?"

"He's manager of the inn when it's open," answered Bland. He looked suspiciously at Magee. "I only know him slightly," he added.

SYLVIA PANKHURST AGAIN ARRESTED
Police Were Not Fooled by Suffragettes' Clever Ruse.
London, Dec. 10.—Neither strategy nor force availed to prevent the re-arrest of Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, at the instance of the London police. A meeting last night, held for the purpose of organizing a local company of her "people's army," Miss Pankhurst seemed unusually nervous, and appealed to her east-enders to save her from arrest, as they had often done before.

Surrounded by a bodyguard, armed with clubs, she left the hall before the meeting ended. At the same time a dummy dressed to resemble her was carried from the rear door. The police declined to be diverted by the ruse, and a sudden rush upon Miss Pankhurst, whom they captured before her bodyguard got into action. Three of her followers were also arrested.
