

SETTLERS WITH MONEY NEEDED

Hon. Charles Stewart Forecasts Government's Immigration Policy.

MAY ALLOW FARM HELP

Mrs. Derry, London Labor Delegate to Convention, Reviews Work Done.

That the Hon. Charles Stewart, acting minister of immigration, realizes the seriousness of the situation and advocates that extreme care be taken that only the proper type of citizens be allowed to enter Canada, is the message brought back from Ottawa by Mrs. C. Derry, who attended recently in that city the Canadian council on the Immigration of Women.

Mrs. Derry, who is a delegate to the London Trades and Labor Council from the local Foot and Shoe Workers Union, was Labor's only representative at the gathering, substituting for Thomas Moore, president of the Dominion Trades Congress, who was unable to be present.

At the regular meeting of the trades council on Wednesday night she delivered a brief but illuminating report respecting the convention, explaining that the latter comprised representatives from all the national associations in the country.

Allow Only Farm Help. "One of the most significant remarks uttered by the acting minister of immigration," said Mrs. Derry, "and upon which he laid special emphasis time and again, was that it would be highly injudicious at the present time to bring into the Dominion any immigrants other than farm laborers, and in certain parts of the country even these were not needed."

"He pointed out further that the most desirable citizen under present circumstances is the settler with certain funds at his disposal, and as far as he could forecast the policy of the present administration, it would appear that it was the intention to concentrate upon this class of immigrant."

Mrs. Derry explained that while there is only one class of female allowed to enter Canada at the present time, that is, the one designated as "servant," the same "camouflaging" was being accomplished as in the case of the farm hand. "Many of these women," she stated, "come out supposedly as servants, but soon drift into factories and similar pursuits, thereby helping to flood the female labor market."

Pass Resolutions. She reported that this and several other matters of equal importance to the workers had been submitted to the minister of immigration, who, she pointed out, agreed in many instances and assured future co-operation. Among the resolutions passed was one asking the government to prevent agencies other than the government offices to engage in the work of immigration, and incidentally to make unlawful the payment of grants to induce people to come to the Dominion.

A resolution asking that all prospective immigrants be subject to a committee board of examiners, either at the port of entry or overseas, and that none be allowed a permit to enter without the required qualification, was forwarded to federal and provincial immigration authorities, as well as to British labor headquarters in London, England.

SEEKING BETTER TRADE RELATIONS

LONDON, April 5.—(By Canadian Press Cable).—A Reuters dispatch from Paris says that the Canadian section of the British Chamber of Commerce in Paris, with the aim of promoting better trade relations between France and Canada, has inaugurated a series of monthly luncheons to be attended by businessmen as guests of honor. The first luncheon today was in honor of Henri

Citizens' Research Committee Ends Prosperous Year.

THE local advisory committee of the Citizens' Research Institute of Canada wishes to thank the various public boards, the press and civic officials for the hearty co-operation they have received during the first year of the institute's local work.

The institute is a voluntary organization, is not conducted for profit, has no share capital, and is non-partisan. Its managing director, Dr. Horace L. Brittain, has had extensive training and wide experience in public administration and search in public education and municipal and governmental finance. It has never been the policy of the institute to take credit for results attained. Its objects are: to supply facts, pertinent and timely, "that those who run may read," to generally assist governments, civic officials, and through them the citizens at large. The institute has been repeatedly informed, by councillors and officials throughout the country, that they have not the time to thoroughly investigate and make research into the numerous problems that confront them, and have to make decisions without all the facts which should be available. The institute will be glad to supply any information from its files not involving extended research and, as it is doing elsewhere, will make, when desired, extended inquiries and administrative surveys at cost.

Bulletins Issued. The following bulletins have been published and distributed during the year:

City of London Expenditures (recommending appointment of a commissioner of finance); Exemption from Municipal Taxation; Regulation of Government to Business and Industry; Cost of Government in Canada (1919); When is a Public Utility Paying Its Way; Cutting Down Public Expenditure; The Scourge of Unemployment (Story No. 1, General); The Scourge of Unemployment (Story No. 2, Government and Unemployment); The Scourge of Unemployment (Story No. 3, Employers and Unemployment); The Cost of Government in Canada (1920).

WATERLOO CREEK CREATES HAVOC

Floods Cellars of Houses on Pepler Street Despite Lowering of Dam.

THIEF SECURES MONEY

Ransacks Residence Thoroughly While Occupants Absent Attending Funeral.

Special to London Advertiser. WATERLOO, April 5.—Houses on Pepler street, Waterloo, have flooded cellars and considerable damage has been done as result of the overflowing of a large creek in the rear of Pepler street. Efforts were made to avoid this trouble this year by the lowering of the water in the dam and while the efforts were somewhat effective the cellars on the street suffered damage from the overflow. The water did not rise so high, but the rise was sufficient to make trouble.

The Waterloo police were searching today for the burglar who yesterday entered a residence and stole a considerable sum of money. Entry to the house was made while the occupants were attending a funeral. Upon their return they found the Open letters have been published especially for London through the courtesy of the local press on the following subjects:

What Other Cities Think of Their City Halls; Comments on the Proposed Pay-As-You-Go Policy of Civic Finance; Why a Budget; How a City Budget Should be Prepared; Classification of Estimates.

The committee notes with satisfaction the appointment of a commissioner of finance. The institute feels sure that the citizens of London will in the course of a short time be thankful for the wisdom shown by the council and other boards in this appointment.

Local Problems. Having, it is hoped, helped to secure some measure of co-ordination of civic expenditures the committee hope to be the medium by which the unrivalling experience of the institute can be brought to bear on local problems.

London has many problems, and after careful consideration of the more pressing of these the committee has decided to secure with the aid of the institute definite data on the following important matters:

"Is the amount expended from civic revenue for charities and corrections, including expenditure for hospitals, homes and similar institutions, excessive compared with the amounts expended by other cities?"

"The securing of data which will assist the civic authorities in solving the street railway problem or a whole."

"To assist the finance commissioner and civic bodies in an effort to effect greater economy in municipal administration."

It is contemplated that the institute will co-operate with the Western University in developing instruction in civics. If this is found feasible Dr. Brittain will render all possible assistance.

The committee which appeals for the continued and whole-hearted support of the citizens of London in carrying on the work for the next twelve months, is as follows:

Lieut.-Col. W. J. Brown, Lieut.-Col. Watson Leonard, D.S.O., A. M. Mitchell, A. E. Silverwood.

MODERATIONISTS TO ASK PLEDGES

Winnipeg, Man., April 6.—The executive of the Moderation League of Manitoba, at a meeting yesterday decided to take no active part in the approaching political campaign in the way of placing candidates in the field.

No member of the league will be put as a candidate, but the executive will ask every candidate to pledge himself to government liquor control.

SHILLINGTON IS NERVOUS IN COURT

known as a "Beau Brummell" among his companions, but as he was led away to the cells it could be seen that his clothes were sadly in need of attention, being badly dishevelled.

There was a large crowd in front of the police station anxious to get a glimpse of the youthful prisoner, but they were disappointed. He was brought up from the county jail before 9 o'clock to have his picture taken at the rear of the police station, and a constable stationed at the door admitted no one to the court not having business there.

Duncan MacArthur was present in the interests of the trust company, while A. R. Douglas acted for the crown.

His Arrival in City. When Shillington arrived in London at 10:10 o'clock Wednesday night, thoughts of the mother he left last November were uppermost in his mind.

Ten minutes after the C. P. R. train drew up at the station, the prisoner picked up a telephone at the police station to talk the news of his return to his mother. "5638, please," he said. And there was a word of pathetic impatience in his manner as he waited nervously for the answer from his home. "Is mother there?—Oh, how are you? I'm fine. They're all well."

And Shillington's desire to talk to the one he loves best in all the world after his long absence thousands of miles away from home, was gratified.

Then he went through the usual routine imposed on all prisoners that of being photographed at the station book, and being assigned to a cell to await the court hearing today.

Exciting indeed was Shillington's homecoming. Long before his train arrived a crowd of friends and curiosity-seekers had congregated at the Richmond street station. As the train pulled in, the throng rushed towards it. Someone noticed the London fugitive in the first coach and before Provincial Police Inspector A. E. Boyd could get his charge onto the platform, the spectators had rushed to the train, almost preventing the arrivals from getting off.

Had Car Waiting. One of Shillington's brothers was in the vanguard, and informed the inspector that a private car was waiting at the rear of the depot.

Across the lawn and around to the rear of the building the prisoner and his guard were forced to run, so closely were they pressed by the sightseers.

Little time was wasted in getting Shillington into the auto. His two brothers, Frank and Jack, Inspector Boyd, and Provincial Officer Arthur Palmer followed. With a fleet of taxis close behind, the party sped to city police headquarters, drove to the rear and hurried into the station itself by a rear door. Simultaneously a crowd of spectators rushed to the front, almost preventing the arrivals from getting off.

After he had telephoned his mother, and answered routine questions put by the night desk sergeant, the weary prisoner was released to the county jail.

Shortly after being lodged there he was in deep slumber.

The fact that his was the bed on which Sydney Murrell laid awake and planned the escape which materialized successfully last September, did not worry the young Londoner.

When the breakfast hour arrived Shillington went with the rest of the prisoners to receive his ration of oatmeal, bread and tea. And he seemed to enjoy it.

After the hearing Thursday he was taken back to his cell in the police patrol, along with a number of men who had been convicted under the Ontario temperance law.

Dinner was waiting for him when he arrived, and although he had been waiting at police headquarters for a few hours, he had no complaints to offer.

During the next eight days he will occupy cell No. 1, which the Garfield brothers, one of whom paid the extreme penalty for murder, and the Murrell brothers, for whom the police of the continent have been searching for several months, and who are wanted on a charge of murder, occupied.

Shillington appeared pleased to be back on Canadian soil.

When his first meal on board the train that brought him to London confronted him, he remarked to Inspector Boyd that it was the first "real" meal he had had since he sailed from Glasgow on March 25. The meals, which he received as a third-class passenger on board the C. P. R. Steamship Tunisian did not exactly satisfy him.

He expressed himself as being entirely satisfied with the treatment accorded him while on the ocean. He was in charge of the captain, and under direct guard of the master-at-arms, but allowed to roam about his quarters at will.

While on board train, he discussed his experiences during the past five months.

Claims Capture Lucky. His capture he attributed to "luck. Officers in the little fishing village of New Haven, Scotland, which is five miles out of Edinburgh, were searching for a band of safe robbers when they accosted him, he explained.

"The only paper I possessed when they stopped me, which bore my name, was a prescription for a pair of glasses," Shillington remarked.

His doings in Southampton, England, and Glasgow and Edinburgh, he recounted.

During the entire trip from the coast, Inspector Boyd found him a model prisoner and a gentleman.

The clothes he wore were the identical ones in which he left London in November. Perhaps the only change in his appearance was in his moustache, which was a little darker and heavier than it was in the autumn.

The securities which were found in Shillington's possession when he was apprehended were not returned with him. They were forwarded to Canada on another date by the Edinburgh police and were insured for safe delivery by the London and Western Trust Company, the firm in which Shillington was employed for eight years before he left for the British Isles.

Activity Heightens in Sarnia Port As Navigation Opening Approaches

Special to London Advertiser.

SARNIA, April 5.—With the approach of the 1922 navigation season, there is lively activity at this port among the boats which have been moored at the dock all winter. The lake route is expected to be open about April 20, several days later than the average opening, owing to the prevalence of ice at the western end of the lakes.

Lighthouses along the St. Clair River and at the entrance to Lake Huron are being placed in commission, and the wireless station at Point Edward is in readiness to operate following the season overhaul.

No word has yet been received, however, of definite sailings. The big passenger boats of the Northern Navigation Company have their engineers aboard, and have had steam up for several days. Passenger service, however, will not open until May.

The localite of the Imperial Oil,

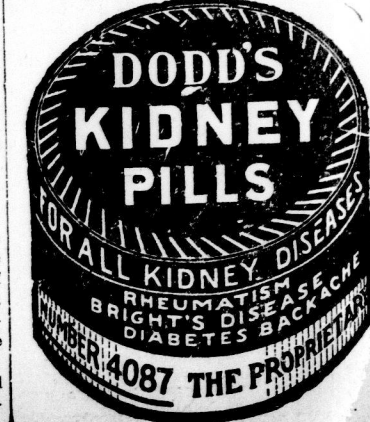

Limited, was the first boat to move from port, having made a trip to Windsor last week, and other boats of the company will be among the first to move from here, probably next week.

Meanwhile crews of the boats in port are assembling and the work of overhaul is being rushed.

CARRIED SMALL MUNITIONS CARGO

LONDON, England, April 5.—Winston Spencer Churchill, the colonial secretary, stated in the House of Commons this afternoon that the steamer Upton, which was seized off the Irish coast last week by raiders, who stowed its cargo in some unknown place, contained not more than 25,000 rounds of ammunition. The vessel originally was believed to have carried 500,000 rounds of ammunition.
