The Globe finds fault with Mr. Blake for having straddled the tariff question last February. It is pretty cheeky of The Globe to throw stones at Mr. Blake while his back is turned, especially as the Deacon himself straddled the same question at the same time until he was almost riven in two.

The New York Post asserts what everybody knows—that the Union will never give the Dominion a voice in levying the former's imposts, and that should Canada adopt the American tariff "the power to tax Canada with the ceded to Congress, and the power to tax acts arrise all other powers with it." No one but a fraud or a fool will deny so self-evident a proposition.

trom The Globe, but we are bound to say that the latter is the more logical, inasmuch as direct taxation is the inevitable concomitant of free trade and both journals are Free Traders, theoretically at least. But The Advertiser is content to compromise upon customs duties adequate to the production of sufficient revenue—no more and no less. JUDICIAL RENTS.

Mr. Philen, The Standard and The Times
Discuss the Reductions.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—The order for the reduction of judicial rents in Ireland applies only to the year commencing on the gale day immediately before Aug. 25, 1887.

John Dillon, M.P., speaking at Newcross, said that the reduction of judicial rents completely justified the policy of the Nationalists, and the plan of campagn. It was true that Lord Salisbury had said that the measure he now adopted was a Unionist measure, but that only showed that Salisbury and his colleagues were quite ready to do that which is dishonest norder to climg to office.

The Standard says it may be right in the interests of peace to make a haphazard present to the tenants, but the landlords have reason on their side in declaring that the boom ought not to be given exclusively at their expense.

The Times says some annoyance is perhaps excusable in landlords, but the majority will, on reflection, own that reductions awarded in general are more than just.
