

WOMAN SUFFERED TEN YEARS

From Female Ills—Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Belleville, N.S., Canada.—"I doctored for ten years for female troubles and did not get well. I read in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. I write now to tell you that I am cured. You can publish my letter as a testimonial."

—Mrs. SUVERNE BABINE, Belleville, Nova Scotia, Canada.

Another Woman Recovers.

Auburn, N. Y.—"I suffered from nervousness for ten years, and had such organic pains that sometimes I would lie in bed four days at a time, could not eat or sleep and did not want anyone to talk to me or bother me at all. Sometimes I would suffer for seven hours at a time. Different doctors did the best they could for me until four months ago I began giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and now I am in good health."

—Mrs. WILLIAM H. GILL, No. 15 Pleasant Street, Auburn, New York.

The above are only two of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which show clearly what great things Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound does for those who suffer from woman's ills.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Anstole France says that the most amazing thing about the war is the cult of the Amazon idea. It is a fact that in nearly all recruiting centres girls with cropped heads and their brothers' clothes on, constantly appear, and only take flight outside the doctor's door. Only one or two have been known to pass the letter. No one wishes to see it, but a woman's corps would undoubtedly enrol tens of thousands of British women in a few hours.—London Opinion.

In the newspapers now-a-days we find a lot of fun about the man behind the counter and the man behind the gun, the man behind the plow and the man behind the fence, the man behind the times and the man behind the rents; the man behind his whiskers, the man behind his fist and everything that is behind is entered on the list. But they have skipped another fellow of whom nothing has been said—the fellow who is even or a little way ahead; who pays for all he gets, who's bills are always signed—he's a blame sight more important than the man who is behind. All we editors and merchants and the whole commercial class are indebted for existence to this honest fellow-man. He keeps us all in business and his town is never dead, and so we take off our hats to the man that is ahead.—Walt Mason.

Canada is proud of her unrivaled development, vast resources and brilliant prospects, but something thrills her to-day more than anything ever chronicled by the most graphic of her biographers and advertisers. Her finest sons are at the battle front or on the way there, and some of them have already fallen in the vanguard of the Empire's defenders. This great achievement and revelation of loyalty to Motherland stirs the British heart in all countries. And it makes the heart of the common enemy quail with foreboding. Germany depended on lethargy and indifference in the colonies to win her war against Britain, and she is amazed to find the farthest outpost of the Empire seething with the spirit of the nation's most illustrious fighters—to find, in fact, that the same, unselfish spirit that was contemporaneous with Cromwell is contemporaneous with Kitchener of Kartoum.—Chicago British-American.

Warning to The Public

W. B. Graham, registrar of the Ontario College of Pharmacy, in a recent circular letter to druggists, points to the appalling number of deaths and serious accidents resulting from the use of carbolic acid. He suggests that druggists not only take time to warn purchasers of its dangers, but to sell it in special containers, such as blue burred bottles, or some other special patent bottles so that the user may be reminded of its dangerous contents. Mr. Graham also urges a strict compliance of the law in regard to the sale of all poisons named in the schedule, for a better protection of the public and the druggists themselves.

LOSING A GOLF MATCH.

Just a Little Lack of Concentration Once Defeated Travers.

Writing on golf in the American Magazine, Jerome D. Travers suggests that lack of concentration, particularly with reference to keeping one's eye on the ball, is the greatest cause of bad golf playing. He says that to practice concentration is very difficult, as he knows from personal experience. He then tells the following story showing how he lost a great match through this fault:

"I know how hard this practice is. I have always thought that but for breaking this cardinal precept I might have had a very good chance to beat Hilton in 1911 at Apawamis—when the English champion carried away our chief amateur trophy.

"In the morning round over the first eighteen holes I had been playing badly and finished four down. Every one, including Hilton, considered the match all in and over. But in the afternoon I started with a rush and won the first three holes, leaving myself only one down and well within reach. At the next hole I had an easy two foot putt to make to win my fourth straight hole and square the match.

"I have always thought that if I had made that putt the odds would have been in my favor. Now, in putting I made it a set rule to look at the ball until my club has struck the spot I am looking at. I have been able to do this by constant practice of concentration. But on this occasion I had a down hill putt, and I was overanxious. And just before my club struck the ball I looked up, pushed the ball to the right of the cup and missed the shot. This upset me for a moment, and I topped my drive at the next hole, losing it. The combination, coming suddenly, restored Hilton's confidence, which had been ebbing away, and he got going again, with the result that I was beaten three and two."

NO DISCOUNT ON PIES.

Yet It Seemed as Though, Considering, There Should Have Been.

Mrs. Hannah Fifer, a widow, who earned her living by renting rooms for light housekeeping, had the reputation of being a shrewd manager and much inclined to carry economy to the furthest possible point. She was hard-working, thrifty and seemed never to reach the end of her daily labor. On a certain day Mrs. Castle, one of the "light housekeepers," finding a surplus of time on her hands, kindly offered to help Mrs. Fifer out with her overflow of work.

"Well, if you feel like it, I wouldn't care if you'd take hold and bake me up a couple of pies," Mrs. Fifer conceded. "That'll help me a lot. There's a bowl of apple sauce that I'm afraid won't keep if it ain't used soon."

After Mrs. Castle had begun work Mrs. Fifer appeared with a supplementary suggestion. "While you're about it," said she, "mebbe you wouldn't mind baking four pies. 'Twon't take any more coal to bake four than two, and that'll be a saving. You can make the filling hold out by having lots of juice to it."

Mrs. Castle agreed to the amendment and worked away industriously until her task was accomplished, when, wearied with her labors, she retired to her own apartment.

In a short time Mrs. Fifer's small daughter, Peggy, appeared at her door. "Ma says," reported Peggy, "that she don't b'lieve she'll be able to use all them four pies before they dry out, and she wants to know if you won't buy two of 'em off her for 20 cents, and she'd like the 20 cents right away, please."

Mrs. Castle bought the pies, observing to herself with a dry smile, "She might have let me have two for 15 cents—considering."—Youth's Companion.

Advice to Stage Villain. "Don't go down to the scene of your crime in the last act," says Jerome K. Jerome. "You always will do this. We suppose it is some extra cheap excursion down there that attracts you. But you take our advice and don't you go. That is always where you get nabbed. The police know your habits from experience. They go down to the last act to the old hall or the ruined mill, where you did the deed and wait for you. In nine cases out of ten you would get off scot free but for this idiotic custom of yours."—London Standard.

Curable Case. The widow Gilroy had just told a friend of her engagement. "But, my dear Margaret," said the friend, "you don't really mean to tell me that you intend marrying a man you've only known for three weeks?"

"Oh, yes," replied the young widow. "I can easily overcome that objection in time. I hope to know him tolerably well after we have been married a couple of years."—Philadelphia Record.

Don't Kiss Babies

For the first few months should do little but sleep and should not be tossed about and tickled, nor should it be about, visiting; its feeding should be regular, and between let it alone.

The persecution these little suffer at the hands of silly and family friends is really leave the babies alone and grow.

The death rate in the first years of child life is great after that every added year is its safety.

The most frequent cause of mortality is improper feeding; impure milk; the stomach new babe is a very small, delicate affair, but it is through action of this small and organ all growth comes, food which Nature has prepared for the babe's stomach is the milk.

The wise mother will insure nursing her child not only child's sake, but also for the mother's sake. The mother-fed child is the one who escapes a hundred dangers to the bottle-fed babe is exposed to Nature and it is well for mother and child. Nature loves her child when we stray from infant mortality begins.

The mother must be wise she would feed her child; a mistake about this. To have so many food fads, and many things that often the milk is deficient in certain elements necessary for the growth.

Think of all the elements of bone, muscle, energy, nerves can't live to-day without nerves, heart, lungs, in fact all the organs, all the abdominal viscera, the brain—all must be kept growing; and the mother through the food she takes for herself and her child.

It is not difficult to understand that a most generous diet is to meet these demands. The stuff should be a part of the daily rations from the time caption until the child is weaned. There is no better resting a child than in a roomy car with the verandah, sheltered from winds, or in the south room house, well ventilated, warm winter time.
