DAIRY MANAGEMENT OF CALVES.—The milk of the dam is Nature's food for developing young calf. But this is very expensive food—often worth more than the calf—so we advise the dairymen to take the cream, which is the most valuable marketable product of the milk for butter making, and restore the oil in a cheaper form for the use of the calf. The value of the cream for feeding to calves may be restored to the milk for less than one-sixth the value of the butter. From fresh cows, in spring, it often takes 30 lbs. of milk for one pound of butter. The oil in this milk is found in about two pounds of flaxseed; but since the flaxseed has other important elements than oil, being very rich in mucilage, forming and bone building elements, one and a half pounds of flaxseed will fully restore the value of the cream, and this will cost in most places, about 4 cents, while the best butter is worth more than six times that amount. There is probably no other oil so easily obtained that is so well adapted to take the place of the cream. We know from practical experience in feeding many calves, that flaxseed boiled to jelly and mixed with skim-milk makes a food second only to milk. We have had some foodsters that gained an average of three pounds per day for 25 days in succession; but no great growth is consequent upon this, unless upon good Short-horn calves, but with thrifty common-stock calves, full fed, two and one half pounds per day may be an average. Calves, at seven days old, may be partially weaned from milk, and one half skim milk substituted for one full second only to milk. We have had some foodsters that gained an average of three pounds per day for 25 days in succession; but no great growth is consequent upon this, unless upon good Short-horn calves, but with thrifty common-stock calves, full fed, two and one half pounds per day may be an average.

George's Love for Cabbage.—George Abraham was extraordinarily fond of cabbage, and one day, seeing that quite a dish was left after dinner, asked his wife to save it for him. At night about midnight George came home laboring under a severe headache. Feeling hungry, and thinking of his favorite cabbage, he asked where it was. His wife replied, 'in the pantry, on the second shelf.' Down he went, found the cabbage, dressed it, and ate it all. In the morning he felt the pain of the stomach where she had placed it the day before, and turning to her 'Dear George,' innocently asked, 'did you not eat the cabbage, 'I did,' he said. 'How did you like it?' 'Oh, not very well!' It was tough and strong!' 'But here is the cabbage now,' where did you find any more?' 'Why on the second shelf, where you took it.' The wife gave a quick look at the shelf, and then came a cry of agony. 'Why, George, you have eaten twenty dollars worth of Isaac Collins and cabbage that I had put in starch! String cuffs into it!'—American Farmer.

—A Texas newspaper says: 'Good character counts for something in this State. A man who was on trial for arson brought forward witnesses to prove that he had neglected two dogs because of a trial horse, and the jury decided that 'no such man as that could be guilty of burning a barn.'

—What a nuisance! A gentleman at a concert, as a young fellow in front of him kept talking in a loud voice to a young lady at his side, who referred to the air 'demanded the top.' 'O no! I mean the musician, who keeps up such a noise with his instruments that I can't hear your conversation.'—the stinging reply.

—Mrs. Youngwoman wants to know 'what is the best way to mark table-cloths?' Leave the table-cloths in the wash tub for a week or two. Devil fish, with arms twenty feet long, are so numerous on the banks of Newfoundland that protesters can get back ten miles into the country to get drunk.

—A chap in Idaho has named his newspaper before the Legislature, but it won't be long before he calls it the 'O' and gives it priority of pronouncement.

'Your heart,' said the lecturer 'beats seven times a minute.' Well, we don't know much about physiology and anatomy, but this heart business depends a great deal. The ordinary heart may be able to get along very comfortably on seven beats a minute in the day-time and at dinner or at church or at sort of thing, but bless your anatomical ideas, doctor, we have stood on the outside of a little swinging gate no later than 10 o'clock on a night in June, not saying a word, but just looking at a pair of brown eyes on the other side of the pickets—eyes that paled the stars—and just waiting for the moon to get under a cloud, and—and—why—why man, all—seventy times a minute? Seventy times? A minute? Why even under seventy times a minute? A minute would only be an approximate estimate. We never tried to count them, but we know that seventy times a minute was an even freight train time under those circumstances. — R. J. Burdette.

—A man on the day he became one hundred years old went to have a pair of shoes made, remarking that he wanted them both substantial and plenty of both. The shoemaker suggested that he might not live to wear such a pair out, when the old gentleman reported that he commenced this one hundred years ago, a good deal stronger than he had the last one.

The Baltimore News says a man never forgets his first circus, his first fight, or his first lightning.

THE FORCE OF IMAGINATION.—They worked a racket on young Grip at his boarding house recently. They detected him making the pie-crust, and found that he had got away with a mince pie, some doughnuts, and some cheese. The landlady and her daughter together resolved on vengeance. They waited till Mr. Grip had devoured the food that he had taken and made his appearance in the sitting-room. Then the landlady said to her daughter, 'Mary, you know that mince-pie that was made out of the mince we bought of that strange butcher, and which proved to be mince meat?' 'Yes mother.' 'What did you do with it?' 'Put it aside to give to some doughnuts.' 'Put the doughnuts aside, and give the mince to the sitting-room.
