

conclusion that this is a really deserving case. Mr. Pulman appears to be exceptionally qualified as a teacher of Greek and Latin.

In his letter, the Burgomaster of Mons states in effect : "Mr. Pulman who presently resides at Ixelles, "near Brussels, lived in Mons for more than one year and "gave a course of lectures that enabled me to appreciate him "very favourably. I look upon him as a man of high moral "and intellectual culture. Unfortunately, the legislation "of our country virtually precludes his appointment to a "professorship in the official universities and colleges. " Mr. Pulman is a married man with a family who is facing "almost insuperable difficulties owing to the present high "cost of living in Belgium. Under these circumstances, he "has decided to go to Canada and seek an appointment in "keeping with his learning. Several leading Belgian citizens "highly recommend him to universities. "

I would judge that Mr. Pulman possesses the required qualifications to teach certain subjects, Greek and Latin, in a Canadian university, high school or Collegiate institute, providing that he has a sufficient command in English.

I trust that you will pardon my temerity in writing you on behalf of Mr. Pulman. I certainly would deem . . .
