

Condition of Savages—Confusion of Family Affection and Moral Feeling—Absence of Moral Feeling—Religion not necessarily connected with Morality—Morality and Religion—Law and Right—Growth of Moral Feeling—Origin of Moral Feeling . . . . .	PAGE 293
--	-------------

CHAPTER VIII.

LANGUAGE.

Gesture Language—The Origin of Language—All Language reducible to a Few Root-words—Origin of Root-words—Wear and Tear of Words—Nicknames and Slang Terms—Origin of the Terms Father and Mother—Words for Father and Mother in various Languages—The Choice of Root-words—Poverty of Savage Languages—Deficiency in Terms of Affection—Absence of Abstract Terms—Deficiency in Numerals—Savage Difficulties in Arithmetic—Use of the Fingers in Arithmetic, as shown in the Names of Numerals—The Origin of the Decimal System . . . . .	313
---	-----

CHAPTER IX.

LAWS.

Importance of the Subject—The Character of the Laws of Savages—The Multiplicity of Laws among Savages—Rules relating to Hunting—Salutations and Ceremonies—Conduct of Public Business—Property in Land—Communal Property—Laws of Inheritance—Absence of Wills—Roman Wills—Rights of Children—The Vasu—Custom of Naming Parents after Children—The Punishment of Crime—Regulated Revenge—The Laws of Property—Manifest and Non-Manifest Thieves—The Wergild—General Conclusion . . . . .	341
---	-----

APPENDIX.

PART I.

Difficulty of obtaining Conclusive Evidence—The Stationary Condition of Savages—No Evidence of Earlier Civilisation—Evidence derivable from Domestic Animals and Pottery—Indications of Progress among Savages—Savages not incapable of Civilisation—Indigenous Origin of Mexican Civilisation—Progress as indicated by Language—Traces of Barbarism in Civilised Countries—Arbitrary Customs—Unity of the Human Race . . . . .	369
---	-----