lect! Take that Author's own Words * as the Conclusion of this Head. " Indeed were we " disposed to aim at the utter Subversion of the " Spanish Power in America, no Means seem " to me more probable to effect it, than due " Encouragement and Aflistance given to these " (Patagonian) Indians, and to those of Chili.

From the preceding Arguments, it is prefumed this Conclusion may be fairly drawn, that whatever Part we take in future Wars, (hould be at Sea only; and by fudden Irruptions, into fuch Parts of the Enemy's Country as are most unguarded, and most liable to be fenfibly injured; fince by our naval Power we are best able to ferve our Friends, and fubdue their Enemies, without exhausting our national Treasure. Thus we may and ought to affift the Dutch, and all our natural Allies; but more efpecially the Spaniards, who, of all others ought to ftan 1 foremost in our Esteem, and we in theirs; because we are naturally united by mutual Ability to fupply each others Wants, without Danger of Rivalship; for no other Nation of Europe wants, or can take off their Fruits and Wines; nor can any other furnish them fo well with Woollen, and a Variety of other Manufactures, not interfering with their own Productions. Neverthelefs our ancient Friendship with Spain has been fatally broken, by a fervile Fear of another Court operating continually against us. Nothing therefore can reftore our former Amity,
