PUBLIC BET $74,403
STRAIGHT FIRST DAY

Critical Review of New System of Betting at Woodbine—O. J. C.
Earns $7500.

[illegible]

Five favorites were beaten, two won and three were placed in the plate race. The money was spread over the horses, so that by 6 o'clock Mr. Bookie was wearing a beaming smile, saying that the public would have bet the bookies, the books as they did win the machine, the books would get $900, which the books would give to the crowd and for their help, and also to unknown persons. A very large sum which they would have given to the town with them, we find out that the public had bet the bookies a very large sum of the amount which they actually did get on Saturday. For the bookies had bet the public on the machines. Of course, bookmakers do not always win. Sometimes they are badly beaten, but they are not the favorites, but as a class their winnings are regular and generally in large amounts.

The facts thus established that the public were gainers on the whole by the introduction of the machines. As to how they fared individually there were naturally differences of opinion. In some cases the short odds that regular players were far from satisfactory, but in others the long prices were well beyond their expectations. There were reasons for this.

One has only to remember that the system was new and untried here, and that the majority of the players had no limited knowledge of the horses and no odds to guide them. Anyone used to the mutuels and having an average mathematical skill can form a very

of the odds of how the odds will turn out, but Saturday the greater number of people were all to drink. Consequently, those ignorant of the quality of the horses, followed the example of those who they thought did know, and the result was that as the public made the favorites and as the greater the delay on them the shorter the price, when favorites were in the money the odds were disappointing, while when longer shots won the prices were correspondingly juicy. For example, 15 to 1 on Bigot, in the steeplechase, would have been a very good price, but the maker in thousand years while on the other hand, sooner than chalk up 10 to 20 for Zeus, for show, he would ub it off the board. So that it all amounts to this. In a race where a bookmaker is worsted, the public are better off betting with the books, while in the opposite case they fare better with the machines. The reader is left to judge which occurs the oftener. Finally, in regard to place and position. In the machines employed in this there was a constant and heavy play on Saturday. Of this the favorites, for the reason given above, carried an enormous share, and it is safe to say that never in the bookmaking days did they get anything like the play they got on Saturday for place and show. A common price for a favor-to in the books as a "sure" and "sure" body, but the winning bettor touches 1 to 5 on a horse or how, and so it is passed up. Saturday, not knowing how short the odds would be, many a ticket was placed on favorites or second choices place or how that would have been switched to another horse could the layer have seen the odds. As usual, many of these short-priced horses finished in the money, and the bookmaker overcame them, and then used them the odds were reduced to very small figures.

However, one has only to remember that a bookmaker must deduct far more than 5 per cent. to pay his game, his hired help, and still make profit, an only one conclusion can be reached, that the machines are better than the books.

Eighteen Innings Saturday to a Tie.
MONTREAL, May 20.—An eighteen-innings contest, ending in a draw, was the result of the fourth meeting of the Royals and the Orioles here. It was the third consecutive game of the same, and the first in which the Royals used three twirlers, while Billy Hurst went the route for the locals. He struck out seven and passed but one. The home run and Furtell's fielding were the only features. Score:
Baltimore, 20; Orioles, 20.

VICTORY FOR M'GINLEY FINAL FROM SKEETERS

Well Played Game Before a Large Crowd—Kocher Featured With the Bat—Other Games.

The Leafs on Saturday won the fourth and final game of the series from the Skeeters by 3 to 1.

The contest was a pitchers' battle between the Leafs' old favorite, Jim McGlinley, and Bartley, recently secured by Jersey City from Boston, and the honors went to McGlinley on account of his steadiness, keeping the hits well scattered, and only walking two men. McGlinley's team was not without double plays and the fielding generally was excellent. Dora performed well as a third base for the Skeeters, and also did well as a first baseman. The pitcher, Delinger, are a pair of class-fielders. The Leafs' lineup continues good as usual, with a timely hit by McGlinley with an error for juggling a hard hit ball which allowed a runner to score. The Skeeters' pitcher, Bartley, popped the ball to third, Bradley getting a runner there who had overrun the Kocher, batting was the feature of the game, the young catcher making a fine play. The pitcher was a big bagger. He also caught in excellent style. On his fourth time to bat he was out, but the runner allowed him to get the runner to reach first.

Jersey City secured their one run in the fourth inning. The pitcher was in base on balls. Bartley singled over second, placing Tompenan on third, and getting a fast double to Vaughn, to Jordan, getting Bartley at second and Deining on first. Tompenan, however, scored on the play.

Abstein started with a double in the fifth inning, but was thrown out. In the seventh McGinley struck out Fullerton and Tompenan, and McGinley was out. On the eighth, the ninth, with one out, Doan doubled, but Tompenan and Bartley flew out at the plate.

cutting off any batting rally by the visitors in the ninth innings. Miller, who was called to bat in the eighth, was the first to get out. Kocher hit down first base in the eighth and by good base running and a throw by Miller, he was out. Miller walked. Vaughn hit one over Miller's stop when Fullerton, by bumping in from a knee knock-out, and were full. McGinley was walked out forcing in a run. Delahanty fouled out in the ninth. H.H. Brown was walked out. Shaw was lucky to stop, Mullen scoring on Shaw. Ford O'Hara at second. Fullerton was the fifth man out when Shaw, the first batter, singled over second, advancing on Jordan's throw. Fullerton, Briley, Dolan, but Kocher singled to right and Shaw scored. Mullen was the last man out.
