RETURNED HEROES NEED DIVERSION

Toronto Ball Club Could Fill a Great Gap in the Lives of All Soldiers.

By Ida L. Webster.

There has been much talk as to whether the returned soldiers should be admitted to the ball park free of charge or whether they should pay 50 cents the same as all other citizens. In fact we have received some letters from different fellows, who are scattered around in the various hospitals, asking us to plead their case for them and pointing out that they are only receiving their regulation army pay and also that this pay has got to be saved so that when they are finally discharged from the army they will have at least a small savings account with which to start their lives once more; and when 50 cents is deducted from $1.10 it makes a rather large hole in the one which they feel that they should not be asked to make.

Then another tells of the drabness of their lives while they are cooped up in the hospitals, and how the baseball games are the only pleasure which they have; but that when they are asked to pay the full rate money, it is entirely too much for their pockets, and they, therefore, must content themselves with reading of it in the papers, which is indeed a trial for the poor unfortunate kids, especially when it is added to all the rest of their troubles. But the idea seems to be that the Toronto Baseball Club is asking the returned soldiers to pay the face value of the ticket if they wish to see the budding but somewhat frost-bitten Leafs perform, and the returned soldiers feel that they are being sold out.

Certainly there is no gainsaying the fact that there is nothing in this whole country that is so good for the men who have risked their lives to keep the Canadian flag waving over the city hall, and many who are suffering the inconvenience of having but one leg or one arm, and in several cases having no legs nor arms. There are two fans whom we have personally taken into the ball park who are in the latter class, and it must be said that when we learned that they had been paying each game, it was somewhat of a shock, but evidently they are all in the same fix and in the meantime the summer is going merrily on and these men are still paying their way, unless they are lucky enough to meet up with somebody who has an extra leg or unless Mr. Lol Solman happens to be on the dock, when he never fails to see that they are given a free afternoon.

Soldiers Need It.

But this should not be the way to have it and it is impossible for the returned men in free each day, then one or two days a week should be set aside for their benefit. With all due respect to the women of Toronto, they should not be given a free afternoon any more than the returned soldiers; in fact, they have not as much right to one, and there will hardly be any woman in the city who will not agree to this. Men have lost limbs in this war, lost them in helping to build the country, and if it were not for such fellows, there would not be a ball club in which Mr. McCaffery might hold the position as president, because had the remains awarded in here you can bet on it they would not have retained an Irishman in any capacity on the staff of the club, and the great years of experience would have gone for nothing, but these chaps rushed to the defence of the country, and we are now able to enjoy the fruits of their sacrifices.

It would not be fair to ask the Toronto Club to admit all returned soldiers, but simply those who are still in uniform, and it is also quite certain that the soldiers would be more than satisfied with one or two afternoons a week. The president of the club, Mr. McCaffery, is in communication with the secretary-treasurer, who, as we have mentioned, is Lol Solman. But at the same time we feel safe in saying that had we been able to interview Mr. Solman, he would have been no doubt of his answer, as he has done more for the soldiers in his own quiet way than any other man in the city, and when he is explained to him and the president it is altogether likely the days will be set aside for the benefit of the returned men of the season the hospital boys will get a chance to watch the progress of the Toronto Club.

Charles Comiskey, who is known the sports over as being one of the best of the big league, has made it a rule to allow all soldiers in uniform into his park free of charge. This is not a small matter by any means, and also the White Sox have a wonderful park, which will hold more than 40,000 people, and it does not take long to fill it up when one is entertaining all the soldier boys who happen along, and at the same time that the boys are being admitted the regular paying fans are being turned away, because there is no accommodation for them, and in addition to this Mr. Comiskey gives a percentage to the Red Cross, which usually proves to be a fairly round sum each week. So that he at least is not doing his share, not only to promote happiness amongst the fellows who will so soon be where happiness is limited to dreams and recollection, but he is also aiding by the use of his baseball club to provide the necessary comfort for the fellows.

Also there are not more soldiers in uniform in this city than in Chicago, yet admit those who are going over to the Niagara Camp, but there one good way around the difficulty, and that is by taking the Toronto club and whichever visiting club happens to be here over to the camp on Sundays. In this way all the chaps who get a chance to enjoy a good ball game. This, of course, might be done when the teams from the Military League are not playing, and in any case there are any number of ardent fans of the Leafs, and who have been for several years past, and it would give them the greatest pleasure in the world to be able to see their favorite in action.

It is not possible that any of the ball players would object to playing in so jovial a cause; in fact, they would be only too glad to do anything for those wonderful chaps who are going over to "carry on" where their brothers have left off. And it is also equally certain that Capt. Lou Scholtes would make all the necessary arrangements as to transportation, and the more vital one, of arranging for the players' dinners; so that there really appears to be no reason on earth why this suggestion should not be carried out, and the Canadian soldiers given at least some of the pleasure which Comiskey is so generously handing out to the American fellows. It is safe to say right now that any of the other clubs in the league will joyfully fall in.

Registration Card Supply May Be Short in Chatham

Chatham, June 19.—Altho 70,000 registration cards have been distributed in the riding of Kent by Registrar W. E. McKough, there is still possibility of a shortage of cards occurring on or before Saturday as a result of the fact that some of the deputes in the outlying districts registering parties from other municipalities. As a result of the step which is being contemplated by a great many farmers of making an excursion to the city on Saturday for the purpose of registering, W. E. McKough has found it necessary to order deputes not to re-
