NINETY-FORR CLAUSES

Ninety-four clauses of the 212 of the new Joint Stock Companies Act were considered by the legislature in committee of the whole yesterday, and with one or two exceptions, left over for further consideration, were adopted. The house sat till after 10 o'clock and carefully scrutinized the effect of the new legislation. Duncan Ross took part for the first time in the business of the house, and the opposition members were more active than the rank and file of the government in their suggestions and criticisms. A. G. Mackay stated that in the years he had been in the house he had never seen so much work put on a bill nor so much care taken in the drafting, and in the citing of cases from imperial acts and other sources. Hon. Mr. Hanna mentioned Thomas Mulvey, assistant provincial secretary, as having been concerned in the work.

S. W: Armstrong, treasurer of the Township of York, was successful at the supreme court in his case against the Canadian Northern Ontario Railway Company. The railway company offered Mr. Armstrong $1172.50 for crossing his farm. Mr. Armstrong was not satisfied and the case went to arbitration and Armstrong was awarded $1170, $250 less than the company offered. This award carried all the costs against Armstrong. He appealed to Chief Justice Meredith, who decided that $220 shall be an equitable allowance, the costs to be born by the railway company. Then the railway company appealed to the supreme court of Ottawa, where it was decided that the railway company of the railway company of the railway company appealed to the supreme court of Ottawa, where it was decided that the railway company of the railway company of the supreme court of Ottawa, where it was decided that the railway company of the railway company of the railway company of the supreme court of Ottawa, where it was decided that the railway company of the railway company of the railway company of the railway company of the results of the whole, when an effort was made not to report the bill enabling her to practice dentistry. Hays' Gold Discovery.

Mr. Kerr moved for a select committee to enquire into the claim of George D. Hays to lot 9, north concession of the Township of Marmora, in Hastings County. Hays claimed to have discovered gold there in 1869, and had been trying to assert his claims ever since. He was now old and poor and had been unjustly and unfairly treated, he thought.

Premier Whitney told the other side of the story. Hays never told about his discovery until others had discovered gold on the lot also and entered their claims. He had gone into the matter in 1888 and found the records were clear, Hon. Mr. Hardy, when commissioner of crown lands, had offered Hays 200 acres of land, which he refused. The present government had offered him $200 on condition that this would be in satisfaction of all his claims. He had accepted the money, was back once more.
