THE TORONTO WORLD

ONE CENT MORNING PAPER.
No. 35 YONGE STREET, Toronto.

A FAST ST. LAWRENCE LINE. We talk of a fast Atlantic line, but is it not a fast St. Lawrence line that we have been missing? It is a question whether it is advisable to term the fast Atlantic steamships up to Quebec or Montreal at all. Half the difficulty of raising capital for a fast mail line is due to the fact that we have been trying to establish a fast St. Lawrence service instead of a fast Atlantic service. Possibly it would pay to make it not the same rule that has been named. Fast passenger ships might run to St. John in both summer and winter, with Louisbourg as a port of call, while great cargo ships could proceed more slowly up to Montreal in summer. With a fast train service from Montreal to St. John and Louisbourg mails, passengers, freight and other light freight requiring fast delivery could go on the fast Atlantic line, while heavy cargoes could be loaded on the freight ships at Montreal.

A smaller number of fast ships would serve the purpose if the John were the terminus all the year around. Calling at Louisbourg would make the voyage to St. John a little longer, but it would probably save half a day in the delivery of mails.

TWO CLASSES OF IMMIGRANTS. Protests continue to be made in Manitoba and the Northwest Territories against the policy of Mr. Sifton in encouraging the immigration of Galicians, who are arriving in the country in large numbers. They are described as dirty, lazy, ignorant, quarrelsome and unprogressive in every way, and as most of them are absolutely without means, it is feared that the industrious people of our Northwest may have to bear the burden of supporting many of them.

The Galicians have always been regarded as the least intelligent and least progressive of the races that inhabit Austria. The cable despatches lately described the difficulty the Austrian authorities are having in preventing the massacre of Jews by the Galicians. It was announced not long ago that the Dominion Government expected to have a quarter of a million Galicians in the Northwest within ten years. Such an influx might create a race problem in the Northwest much more serious than any Canada has yet had to deal with.

We have had trouble in Ontario and Quebec, because of differences in language and religion, but the English and French have many things in common. The people of England have a good deal of Norman-French blood in their veins and the English language owes much to the French. In customs, manners and dress England has borrowed freely from France. The Galicians, like the French-Canadians, are Roman Catholics, but they are far inferior as a race, and have nothing in common with the Protestants of Manitoba.

It is strange that in these years of prosperity, with enormous crops and high prices for our products, we should be importing so many Galicians. These new settlers present a great contrast to the Icelanders who settled in Manitoba a few years ago. The Icelanders are well-educated, energetic, progressive people and make most valuable settlers. It is a pity that the population of Iceland is so small that we cannot get many more immigrants from that country. However, the Danes, Swedes and Norwegians are of similar race, and there is no reason why we should not get immigrants from those progressive northern countries, instead of the half-civilized hordes of southern Europe.

There is no doubt that the only way to get the people of those Scandinavian countries well educated in their own language, but English is thoroughly taught in many of their schools, and it is not an uncommon thing for a Scandinavian immigrant to speak English quite fluently on his arrival in this country. The Danes would make especially good settlers for Canada, as they are a nation of farmers and send immense quantities of butter and other farm products to England. The Germans, too, have proved very valuable settlers in both the United States and Canada, and if Holland would send us some of her sturdy Dutchmen we could turn them into good Canadians. We want most of all to encourage immigration from the British Isles, but we have room also for all who wish to come from the progressive countries of north-western Europe.

LITTLE KINGDOMS OF THE PRESIDENT. When the idea of keeping the Philippines first came to the Americans the general impression was that it would be necessary to alter the constitution of the United States to do so. It was felt that the people of those islands could not have representation in the United States Congress or share in the Government of the United States in any way, and many of the newspapers were in favor of handing them over to Great Britain, on the ground that the British constitution was especially adapted to the government of colonies. But, as the thirst for empire has grown stronger, many of the newspapers have come to the conclusion that the constitution of the United States is perfectly adapted to the government of colonies. In fact, according to The New York Tribune, the United States has had colonies ever since the adoption of the constitution. It says:—

"The constitution was not adopted until 1789. But in 1783 the confederation had acquired the territory lying between the Alleghenies and the Mississippi. What was the status of the settlers therein? They were not citizens of any of the thirteen States. They did not become such citizens when the constitution was adopted in 1789. Those in Kentucky did not enjoy full rights of citizenship until 1792, those of Tennessee until 1796 and those of Ohio until 1802. Down to these dates, in their cases, our policy did discriminate against the rights of colonists and those of the people who enjoyed full citizenship in the United States. It was a discrimination, and it is so today in the cases of New Mexico and Arizona and Oklahoma and Alaska. The people of those territories are colonists. They are subject to the laws of the United States, civil and military. But they do not enjoy the rights of citizenship. They send delegates to Congress, but those delegates cannot vote. They have no representation in the Electoral College and no voice in the choice of President and Vice-President. They are not citizens. They are the people of our national constitution."

It is an essential feature of our constitutional system. It has prevailed, unbroken, for a hundred and nine years. There is no reason why it should not prevail for a hundred and nine of nine hundred and nine years longer. In most cases, after years of preparation, the colonies, or territories, have become states, and their settlers have been received into full citizenship. Kentucky was thus received in three years, Tennessee in seven, Ohio in thirteen, Wisconsin in five, and California in five. Montana was kept in the colonial condition for eighty-three years. New Mexico and Arizona have been mere colonies for fifty-two years, and are likely to remain so for some years to come. Alaska has been a colony, with even less rights than these others, for thirty-one years, and no one expects to see it become anything more. Why should not the same rule that has been applied to these colonies for more than a century be applied to Porto Rico and the Philippines, and other lands we may legitimately acquire?

While the discussion was going on in the American papers a case relating to the Government of Alaska came before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at San Francisco, which gave judgment in the following words:—

"The answer * * * is found in the now well-established doctrine that the territories of the United States are entirely subject to the legislative authority of Congress. They are not organized under the constitution, nor subject to its operation, but are subject to the power of government, as the organic law, but are the creation exclusively of the legislative department and subject to its supervision and control."

In the June number of The Forum Henry Littlefield West has an article entitled "The Little Kingdom of the President," which does not refer in any way to the war or the policy of expansion, yet most of those who see it will think of the new colonies while reading it. The Little Kingdom of the President is the District of Columbia, over which the President rules as an absolute monarch. In this district, within which lies the city of Washington, the people count for naught. There are no elections. The executive power, control and administration of the District of Columbia, is in the hands of the President. The three commissioners who govern the local judiciary, the recorder of deeds, the registrar of wills, even the justices of the peace and the notaries public—in fact, all the principal administrators of municipal affairs—are appointed by him.

West quotes ex-Senator Ingalls as saying that the best-governed city in the United States is the one where the people do not govern themselves, and proceeds to show that this is true.

There seems to be little doubt that either the territorial system of government, or that which prevails in the District of Columbia, might be applied to any new territories that the United States may become possessed of as a result of this war, but it does not necessarily follow that these methods of government would prove as successful in far-distant colonies, inhabited by alien races. However, the American people are not likely to be deterred by dealing with alien immigrants, as well as with the negroes of the South, and they may show themselves as capable of governing distant possessions as the British, whether they treat them as ordinary territories or a little kingdoms of the President.

Assaulted the Crown Attorney. Yesterday was a quiet day in police circles. The only arrest, outside of the usual holiday drunks, was that of Wm. Stradwick, Markham-street, charged with disturbing the peace and assaulting the police. Stradwick and two companions visited the island and also the bicycle path, where they annoyed bicycle riders. One of them was Crown Attorney Curry, who remonstrated with them, and, as a result, had to call to his aid Special Constable Stephenson. Thereupon Stradwick and his companions set upon Messrs. Curry and Stephenson and a serious fight ensued, in which the Crown Attorney and the constable got the worst of it. Then Stradwick and his companions ran away. Later, Crown Attorney Curry identified Stradwick as one of the men, and he was arrested by P. C. Forrest.

Geo. Hurdman Mangled to Death. St. Thomas, Ont., July 1.—A man who gives his name as Geo. Hurdman and comes as Corinth, Ont., about fifteen miles from this city, met his death in the Wahwah yards here to-day while trying to board a freight train. He slipped and fell under the wheels, both legs being cut off. The unfortunate man was removed to the Ottawa Wood hospital, and died shortly afterwards.

In J. Fenimore Cooper's Leather Stocking Tales, we read stories of the physical endurance and the unerring accuracy of the eye of the American Indian when he reigned supreme over this continent. Before he was debauched by modern civilization, he was a magnificent specimen of physical manhood. He lived entirely in the open air, and knew no medicine, save the simple herbs gathered by his squaws.

Civilized man leads an unnatural and unhealthy life. Unlike the Indian if he would maintain his physical and mental health, he must take reasonable precautions to combat disease. Nearly all diseases have their inception in disorders of the digestion, torpidity of the liver and impurity of the blood. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made of simple herbs. It restores the lost appetite, makes digestion perfect, invigorates the liver, purifies the blood and promotes the natural processes of excretion and secretion. It sends the rich, life-giving blood bounding through the arteries and corrects all circulating disturbances. It dispels headache, nervousness, drowsiness, lassitude, and drives out all impurities and disease germs. It cures 99 per cent of all cases of consumption, bronchitis, asthma and diseases of the air-passages. It gives sound and refreshing sleep, drives away all bodily and mental fatigue, and imparts vigor and health to every organ of the body. Medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing else, "just as good."

"A few of my symptoms," writes Charles Book of Clinax, Kalamazoo Co., Mich., were heartburn, indigestion, acid, belching, flatulency, loss of appetite, and a general feeling of weakness. I have taken Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cured all these and I am perfectly well."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are sure, speedy and permanent cure for constipation. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative and a mild cathartic. They never gripe. Found at all medicine stores.
