AS A REMEDY FOR HORSE SPRAINS.

READ THIS TESTIMONIAL.

London, June 26, 1899. My horse sprained the inside cord of its hind leg in getting up in the stable. He could not touch his foot to the ground. I got a bottle of Doyle's Liniment. First bathed the parts afflicted with hot water, then applied the Liniment three times a day; in three days I was able to drive him. I consider it one of the greatest remedies I ever used for a sprain, H. MEYER,

LOVE AND $300,000

John Jones, 76, Turned Both Over to Jessie Cressor, a Maiden of 18.

Kalamazoo, Mich., June 29. - Johnnie W. Jones is a youth of 76 summers, plus an equal number of winters. He formed a strong attachmen for Miss Jessie C. Cressor, a matured matron of 18, and his fervent love seemed to be more than reciprocated by the sweet young maiden. They decided to get married, and in order that the event might pass off quietly they hied themselves away to White Pigeon. But the fates were against them - they could find no minister. Nothing daunted, the gay swain secured a livery rig and drove to Constantine, where the nuptial knot was tied by the Methodist parson. The happy couple then returned to Kalamazoo.

Jones has amassed a considerable fortune, which consists of real estate in this city and county, besides many farm mortgages, the whole footing up to $300,000. It is said that prior to the wedding he willed all his property to his bride-to-be, and as he has no blood relations the will is likely to stand uncontested. 69 and 18.

Prescott, Mich., June 29. - Peter O'Donohue, a prosperous farmer of Logan aged 69 years, and Miss Kate Ann McNaughton, of Hamilton Reno township, aged 18 years, were married here yesterday at the Richland mansion.

Why Commissioner Evangeline Booth Was Clad in Rags.

Thrilling Stories of a Devoted Woman's Work in the Slums of London.

The announcement that Commissioner Evangeline Booth would speak at the Dundas Street Center Methodist Church last evening drew an audience that completely filled the large church, many persons standing throughout the evening. Commissioner Booth, who is a daughter of Gen. Booth, is the head of the Salvation Army in Canada, New-foundland and the Northwestern States. She is making a tour of Western Ontario, and travels on horseback. She is accompanied by the splendid staff band from Toronto, in charge of Staff-Capt. Morris. The band travels on bicycles.

The lecture in this city last evening was Commissioner Booth's first appearance in Canada in the costume worn by her in her work among the poor of London, England. She wore a ragged plaid shawl over her shoulders, and crossed in front, and her fingers toyed with the frayed ends as she spoke. A torn white apron half con-cealed a tattered gray calico dress, from beneath which peeped coarse broken shoes laced with twine. She wore no hat, and her hair was fastened loosely in a knot at the back of her head. Aside from its immaculate cleanness, the makeup was perfect, and would pass unchallenged in the most squalid court in Old London. On the platform with the commis-sioner were Major and Mrs. Southall, Ensign Welch and Wille and Pea two pretty little mites, charges of Miss Booth's, from the Rescue Home in London. Rev. Dr. Saunders, the pastor, opened the meeting with Major Southall spoke briefly, introducing Miss Booth, who was here two vears ago.

Miss Booth came forward and sang sweetly an old familiar Salvation Army hymn, accompanying herself on an accordion. Then in a low, pleasant voice she began to speak. Her work was so well known that she needed no apology for appearing in that peculiar garb. Many people wanted to know how she was able to go into the black-est, foulest haunts of vice and crime and poverty in the world and win the confidence of the unhappy people who lived there. Those people hated with a hot, bitter hatred all whose condition was happier or more prosperous than their own, and it was only by means of such a disguise that they could be approached. As a foreign singing girl or a water cress girl, Com-missioner Booth was wont to go among them. The vital part of Miss Booth's lecture was in the narration of incidents of her work in the London slums. It would be impossible to reproduce Miss Booth's stories. She lived them over again as she told them. And the audience saw them as if portrayed by some great tragedienne. The sickening brutality, the woeful want, the bitter, burning shame and black despair of those lives came home to the listeners with fearful reality. then the magic transformation wrought by the love and sympathy of one devoted woman was shown. At times Miss Booth's words came in a torrent of passion and they seemed to choke and burn her; again her speech was filled with poetic fire, as she turned for a moment from the black foulness of sin to contemplate the beauties of nature with a poet's passionate love. There were flashes of playful humor, too, as sunny and careless as a child's laughter. But through it all shone a beautiful, intense, devoted love and sympathy for the poor and the suffering. Love, sympathy, sacrifice and action—these were the keys, she said, which had opened to her the hearts of the crimthe poor and the inal.

sorrowful. The entire lecture was intensely interesting, powerful and dramatic, and the audience listened with almost breathless attention for two hours.

HARD DRINKERS.

Three Little Iowa Children.

I was a great coffee drinker for years, and tried often to stop its use, but could not until I found Postum Food Coffee. The change was perfecteasy, for when I had the Postum boiled long enough, it gave me as delicious a cup of coffee as I ever tasted in my life, and I could drink all I wanted of it without the heart trouble and dizzy headaches that had followed me for years. I was always tired when using coffee, and many times have I been told that if I quit coffee I could get well, but how could I quit? I am wiser and healthier now, and would not go back to the use of the old-fash-ioned coffee, for I enjoy life too well when I am healthy.

I came pretty near being driven away from Postum the first time I tried it, but I was determined to see that it was made right the next time, and I found out that it must be boiled, and there is to it. We have three little children, and they can have all the Postum Coffee to drink they
