

$87.50 Per Foot

St. George Street, excellent building lot, 11 feet frontage. Must be sold at once.

H. H. WILLIAMS & CO.,
26 Victoria Street, Toronto.

PROBS: Northwesters' sales; a national show; ere of thunderstorm.

'ALL OR NOTHING' CHANCE FOR DECLARER

Lloyd-George, at Newcastle, Denounces Lords—Indications of General Election in November.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—The past week has been one of great political excitement, culminating in Prime Minister Asquith's sudden visit to the King and the announcement that the house of commons would adjourn for a week from Saturday.

There is no longer any seriousness in the attempts to keep up the pretense that the visit of Lord Rosebery, the Earl of Cawdor and Mr. Asquith to Balmoral were not connected with the political crisis. The official and reasonable explanation of the week's adjournment is that fully a week is required for drafting alterations to the budget, but there is no doubt that these visits to the King and the week's adjournment have one object, that of affording an opportunity to ascertain whether the constitutional crisis cannot be averted.

It is not suggested that the King is giving the weight of his personal aid to either side, but rather that he is acting in home politics, as he has so consistently done in international politics, in his favorite role of peacemaker. Meanwhile, nothing is said of the fact that the King's visit to the situation. What finally will be the action of the lords and the government remains a mystery.

General Election Next Month. Mr. Lloyd-George, chancellor of the exchequer, declares that the lords must pass the budget as it stands, but despite assurances such as this from responsible ministers, there is a strong tendency to revert to the first idea that a general election will come in November. It seems almost impossible that the point of dissolution can be reached in such a short time, but the specter looms large. The Outlook warns the Unionists against a sudden dissolution. The Saturday Review admits that it appears absurd, but says if the government thinks the psychological moment has come, then dissolution will occur in November.

Speculation on these points and interest in the constitutional crisis, in the budget, in the trade, tariff reform and other planks in both political platforms into the background, but the Unionists evidently are not without unemployment, which is expected to be greater than ever during the coming winter, as their chief card.

Lloyd-George at Newcastle. Lloyd George, chancellor of the exchequer, in a speech at Newcastle Saturday afternoon, made a vigorous defence of the budget and the attack on the house of lords. He declared that the bill was now practically in the form in which it was to become an act of parliament. He said that instead of the measure being an attack on industry and property it was a fact that since its introduction in the house of commons, trade and industry had increased.

The only stock which had gone down since the introduction of the bill, said Lloyd George, was that in the market in which there had been a great slump. A fully equipped duke cost as much to keep up as a couple of Dreadnoughts. So long as dukes were content to be mere idols and preserved that kind of stately silence which became their rank and intelligence, said the chancellor, all went well. When the budget came, however, they stepped down from their perches because the measure knocked a little off of their pretensions. He said that the lords would do with the budget, declared the chancellor, concerned themselves more than it did the government. The move, irresponsible and featherbedding among them wanted it thrown out. What the others would do depended in the first place on reports from the country.

All or None. The chancellor went on dramatically: "What our fathers obtained through centuries of struggle, we must not give up. The constitution is to be torn to pieces. Let them realize what they are doing. They are forcing a change of a revolution," said the chancellor, "but it is the people who will direct it. Issues will be raised that they little dream of."

The chancellor concluded by declaring that the government was going to have all the taxes in the budget or none.

CONVICTED OF MANSLAUGHTER

Captain Ralph Pringle Faces Imprisonment in Michigan.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 10.—The jury has returned a verdict of manslaughter against Capt. Ralph Pringle, well-known as a navigator of the Great Lakes, who was tried for the killing of George Birrell McKinnon in the "Hole in the Wall" Saloon in St. Clair last winter. The verdict carries a penalty of from 5 to 20 years in prison.

Pringle's plea was that Birrell had invaded the sanctity of his home.

KILLED ON TRACK

Terrible Death That Overtakes a Well-Known Farmer.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Oct. 10.—(Special).—Henry Woodruff, of St. David's, was killed on the G. T. R. tracks at Stamford early this morning. The body was terribly mangled. Deceased left his home yesterday and came to Niagara Falls. He left there last night walking home on the tracks.

He was 70 years of age, and one of the oldest and best known farmers in this district.

Lady Constance Had a Hatch

Was Among the Suffragettes Who Chased Lloyd-George to His Auto, and is Placed Under Arrest.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, Eng., Oct. 10.—When Lloyd-George was leaving the theatre a crowd of suffragettes made a dash toward his car. Lady Constance Lytton, who was armed with a hatchet, and Mrs. N. N. Brailsford and Miss Davidson were arrested.

Earlier in the day, four other sympathizers with the suffragettes were sent to fourteen days at hard labor for indulging in a window smashing campaign at the local Liberal club.

GENERAL'S WIFE SLAIN FOR DOG'S JEWEL EYE

Remarkable Story That Chinese Vengeance Was Responsible For Mysterious Crime in England.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 10.—The American public may still remember the story of the general's wife who was killed by a dog's eye. The story is a remarkable one, and the Chinese vengeance was responsible for the mysterious crime in England.

General Luard on his wedding day presented to his bride an antique ring in which was set the precious stone that had been carried off long ago from a Buddhist temple. All thru her happy married life, Mrs. Luard wore the ring. Then all these years ago a Buddhist temple, the name of which she did not know, hidden away in a corner of the Himalayas, was destroyed by fire. With something of Oriental magic the murderer vanished. Thru the cordons of police he slipped, carrying the relic of some decades men of his race has sought and the acquisition of which would make him a hero or saint among his people.

ARE SURELY COMING

Liverpool Journal Says Irish Ship-builders Have Big Plans.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—(C.A.P.).—The Liverpool Journal of Commerce says that some far reaching developments are about to take place in connection with Canadian shipping. It has the highest authority for stating that seven weeks ago Harland & Wolff of Belfast sent a representative to Canada to formulate a scheme for establishing dry docks and repairing sheds capable of dealing with the largest liners or warships as they have done at Southampton.

The Canadian government is dealing jointly with them in the scheme. Meanwhile, the Allan line is on the eve of some far reaching developments. Hugh Allan, now in London, is arranging the details of the work. Developments will be along independent lines in no way connected with the G.T.R.

CARNEGIE GIVES $100,000

Toward the General Fund of McGill University.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 10.—Andrew Carnegie has given $100,000 to McGill University for the general fund. Some months ago it was resolved to raise the sum of two million for the general funds of the university, and Mr. Carnegie has given his handsome gift in the shape of one hundred thousand.

CZAR TO AVOID ITALY

Official Reason Is Ill-Health of the Empress.

ROME, Oct. 10.—The czar's visit to Italy has been abandoned. The present, owing to the illness of the empress, which is due to nervous excitement and worry. Apart from every other consideration, the czar cannot risk hostile reception, which would affect the czarina's health.

Not Mr. Klein. In the column headed "Why Are You Single?" there appeared in The World on the 2nd inst., a letter purporting to have been signed by David Klein, corner Huron and Grange. The letter was written without his knowledge or consent, and Mr. Klein is being besieged with letters from affinites and voice specialists. The World regrets that it was the medium of submitting Mr. Klein to the annoyance of this hoax.

COOK COMING TO CANADA.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 10.—(Special).—Dr. Frederick A. Cook will go to Canada to tour several cities late this month. His first lecture will be delivered in Montreal on either the 13th or 19th. After a tour of ten days in Canada he will go to the northwest states.

HALF CITIZENED GARRISON ON PARADE

Not as Many Men, But Spectacle Was Just as Brilliant on a Perfect Autumn Day.

PARADE STATE.
Brigade Staff	4
Cavalry Brigade	60
B Squadron, R. C. D.	150
C. G. B. G.	150
9th Mississauga Horse	145
9th Field Battery	44
No. 2 Co. Field Engineers	103
XIII. Field Ambulance	33
Infantry Brigade	51
R. C. R.	700
Q. O. R.	570
Royal Grenadiers	570
48th Highlanders	606
Army Service Corps	42
X. Field Ambulance	47
XI. Field Ambulance	46
Total	2610

As usual the garrison parade yesterday afternoon drew out large crowds of spectators. Although not quite up to the strength of former years, the parade was nevertheless a grand spectacle and the weather conditions were favorable for marching and sight-seeing. The total strength of the parade was 2610.

The streets over which the march was made were lined with crowds of people and the cheering was evidence that the big military turnout is all ways popular. The route of march was up University Avenue, thru Queen's Park, along St. Alban's, Wellesley, Jarvis, Wilton, Yonge and Bloor.

Officers in Command. The staff officers were: Brigadier-General Cotton, Lt.-Col. Septimus Denison, Lt.-Col. Bruce, Lt.-Col. Grant, Lt.-Col. Hall, Lt.-Col. Stoughton, Major Lang, Capt. Shanley and Capt. Col. W. C. Macdonald was in command. Lt.-Col. C. A. Denison, with Lt.-Col. Wallace as brigade major, was in command of the cavalry brigade, and Col. P. C. Mason, with Major J. C. Mason as brigade major, was in command of the infantry brigade.

The officers in command of the different units were: Cavalry brigade, Major Elmsley, R.C.D.; Lt.-Col. Fleming, G.B.G.; Lt.-Col. Chadwick, 9th Mississauga Horse; Major Brown, 9th Field Battery; Capt. Biggs, No. 2 Field Engineers; and Major Roberts of No. 13 Field Ambulance; infantry brigade: Lt. Chrysler, R.C.M.; Lt.-Col. Robertson, 48th Highlanders; Lt.-Col. Goodenham, 10th Royal Grenadiers; Major Mercer and Major Rennie, Queen's Own; Major Cowan, Army Service Corps; Lt.-Col. Fenton, 10th Field Ambulance; and Major McPherson, 11th Field Ambulance. The different units were attached to various regiments.

The marching was up to the standard. At Yonge and Shuter there was considerable disorder in the ranks of the highlanders, due to the action of a roadmaster on a Yonge-street car attempting to force the car thru the lines. The march was broken up by this indignity and forced their way across in front of the car, with the result that many of them marched right over the car and broke it.

At Massey Hall. On arriving at Massey Hall the soldiers filed into the building and when the service was opened by Rev. W. L. Baynes-Reed, the choir sang "The Mississauga Horse, the auditorium and first gallery were filled with militia-men. A few lady friends of the officers were the only public admitted, and they occupied the boxes. On the platform were the massed bands, which, under the direction of Bandmaster John Waldron of the 10th Royal Grenadiers, provided the musical portion of the service. The service of prayer was led by Rev. C. Ensor Sharpe, chaplain of the Grenadiers, and the lesson was read by Rev. T. Crawford Brown, chaplain of the Q.O.R.

"Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong," was the text chosen by Rev. Mr. Baynes-Reed for his sermon. The words were the message of a great man, a great thinker and a great soldier, not a soldier in arms, but a soldier for Jesus Christ. They were words of admonition, written by Paul to the Corinthians.

"The words," said the speaker, "are like the command of an officer, they have a military ring to them." The first requisite for the soldier, he pointed out, was to be ever on the watch, not only when performing the duties of a soldier, but in every day life. By watching his habits he will always retain a strong character. The speaker always believed in the soldier answering to the call, and with pride referred to the response made by Canadians to the call to go to South Africa, and to-day comes a call from the mother country to help protect the empire's trade routes.

"We should be recreant to our duty," he said, "if we did not respond to the call. We must quit ourselves nobly." Mr. Baynes-Reed concluded with a plea to every soldier to do his part to our several cities late this month. His first lecture will be delivered in Montreal on either the 13th or 19th. After a tour of ten days in Canada he will go to the northwest states.

NOT FAIRLY BALANCED

The One In the Air: Hi! Jimmie, hand me up those two weights, will you?

200,000 PEOPLE WANT A RAILWAY SCARBORO GRADE IS CHIEF OBSTACLE

Suggestion is Made That Dominion Government Should Provide Means for Relief.

Towns That Can't Grow And the Reason Why

Dr. Kaiser of Oshawa has spent several days recently in Toronto in the endeavor to awaken the city to some interests which have been notoriously neglected during the last half century. Dr. Kaiser, with 200,000 other good people in York, Markham, Scarborough, Pickering, Whitby, Darlington, and other townships, adjacent and further east, has a grievance, and if Toronto people understood it in all its bearings they would share it with him.

Oshawa is a town of 6000 people lying 33 miles east of Toronto. Whitby, a few miles nearer, used to be almost as big as Oshawa, and now has little over 2000 people. Pickering, 23 miles off, is stagnant.

The college formerly situated there under the Society of Friends has been transferred to Newmarket. Whitby still has a seminary, but if it were burned down, like the Pickering College, it might be moved to Hamilton. Oshawa is a wonderfully energetic little burg, with a nest of factories, but as Dr. Kaiser remarks, they do not increase in number, and if one closes up or it attracted elsewhere there isn't another to take its place.

When Dr. Kaiser was mayor, as he was for several years, negotiations failed to bring new factories on account of a certain disability. One of these factories on which Oshawa had its claim went to Berlin, and another went to Galt. In Oshawa they would have contributed to Toronto. As they are they help to build up Hamilton.

The Root of the Trouble. The trouble with Oshawa and Whitby and other places within 35 miles of Toronto is lack of railway communication. When the Grand Trunk Railway was built 50 years ago, the company was not encouraged as it thought it should be by the town, and instead of building thru them the company laid its tracks some distance, one or two or three miles, to the south.

Halfway between Whitby and Oshawa there is a union cemetery. Other little rural God's acres may be seen along the highway, touching these towns. It is a pretty country, but it was when first settled. Last summer only a few people were met. Two were in an unfinished motor car making a trial spin from the Oshawa factory. Two were ladies walking into

Continued on Page 7.

EXCHANGE SHOTS WITH BURGLES

Constable's Posse Tackled Them in Dark—Trio Boldly Invade Small Villages Near Arnprior.

ARNPRIOR, Oct. 10.—(Special).—The pickpocket safe blowers have again evaded the clutches of the law by the use of their revolvers. This time it was the village constable of Galetta, a small village six miles from Arnprior, who, with three assistants, endeavored to capture the bandits. Since last Monday morning, when the safe was blown, the men have been hunted by posses of police in the Gatineau Hills. Last Wednesday one of the quartet was arrested at North Wakefield, up the Gatineau in Quebec, but the other three by ready use of their revolvers, got away into the bush.

They were seen by two boys on the following morning on the top of a hill, three miles from the scene of the fight. On Saturday evening they put in an appearance at Quyon, having tramped almost entirely thru the thickly wooded hills for thirty miles. It was thought that they might appear there, but no special constables had been placed on guard. When the burglars arrived about 6 o'clock, there were men who were sure they were the much sought desperadoes, but none attempted their arrest. Instead, they facilitated their departure by giving them information asked, and selling them supplies.

To the people they talked to, the men said they had been hunting "red" and lost their way. Only one of the men had a rifle, but this they explained by saying the other two had lost theirs in the bush.

Get Supplies and Supper. They went boldly in to the village, purchased shaving soap, tobacco and other supplies at the stores, and then they went to Doyle's Hotel, where all three had supper, and several drinks in the bar. They then enquired how to get across the Ottawa River, and were directed to the ferry, which goes from the Quebec to the Ontario side of the river.

They crossed over shortly after six o'clock to the landing, which is about four miles above Fitzroy Harbor, and there took the main road which leads to Galetta, passing over a quarter of a mile of the main road, and then to Fitzroy Harbor. In the meantime Fitzroy Harbor had been notified by telephone, but no one from Quyon followed. J. D. Craig, a farmer, offered a side of one man, walking some distance from the other two, but was told that all three were together going to Arnprior, and were armed with revolvers, and so he drove on. At Fitzroy Harbor, Herman Kedy, hotelman, was notified by Craig and the operator of the ferry, and he passed the word on to Galetta.

A Plucky Constable. Constable Johnson polished his star and loaded his Winchester rifle and then swore in three volunteers to help him. Two of these he armed with 38 calibre revolvers and the fourth with a rifle. The plan was for two to lie beside the road at one place, and the other two a couple of hundred feet away, thus getting the men between the two divisions. But while they were waiting, the constable got to have a gun and was lying down in the grass when the trio arrived, walking on the opposite side of the road. As soon as they passed the constable quietly approached to within thirty feet—at least that is how Constable Johnson figures the distance.

"Hold boys, hold up your hands," commanded the constable, as he raised his weapon. But two of the burglars blazed away with their revolvers, one firing one shot and the other two, and all three ran. The constable and his assistants used all their charges without effect. It was now a few minutes to 9 o'clock, and quite dark.

Separated Under Fire. One man darted up a side road, another vanished, the constable did not know where, and the third constable, alone along the road, tried to garden to another street and along past the general store, where the usual Saturday night crowd of fifteen or more men were getting Sunday provisions. They heard the shots and knew who had been expected; they saw the fugitives with the constable after him, and then they suddenly had an irresistible impulse to see the inside of the store again.

This morning William Key, night operator at the G.T.R. station found two empty and two full cartridges near the water tank. Apparently, Mr. Burglar reloaded his revolver and prepared to resist attack.

Constable Johnson remained around for the rest of the night and phoned Ottawa, and a squad of eight city and Dominion police arrived early this morning. All day barns and outbuildings were searched in vain. To-night men are stationed along the railway and on roads leading to Arnprior, Pakenham and other villages. Men who saw the fugitives say they appeared all fagged out.

Prejudice, Prudence, Penny, is the epitaph that should adorn the tombstones of many unsuccessful business houses. Time is fleeting. Advertise in The World and succeed. See special advertising article on Page 6.

Commissioner Harris Explains. OTTAWA, Oct. 10.—Mr. Harris, Canadian trade commissioner in Japan, who, it was stated some time ago, had written a Toronto merchant, warning him not to ship goods direct to Japanese merchants because they could not be trusted, says that his caution applied to one individual only, and not to Japanese business men.

Factory Site

100 feet frontage, 120 feet deep to railway. Siding may be obtained with use of their revolvers. Dundas and Bloor vicinity. Price $3800. Williams & Co., 26 Victoria Street, Toronto.

29TH YEAR

Twelve Pages—Monday Morning October 11 1909—Twelve Pages

NOT FAIRLY BALANCED

EXCHANGE SHOTS WITH BURGLES

Constable's Posse Tackled Them in Dark—Trio Boldly Invade Small Villages Near Arnprior.

ARNPRIOR, Oct. 10.—(Special).—The pickpocket safe blowers have again evaded the clutches of the law by the use of their revolvers. This time it was the village constable of Galetta, a small village six miles from Arnprior, who, with three assistants, endeavored to capture the bandits. Since last Monday morning, when the safe was blown, the men have been hunted by posses of police in the Gatineau Hills. Last Wednesday one of the quartet was arrested at North Wakefield, up the Gatineau in Quebec, but the other three by ready use of their revolvers, got away into the bush.

They were seen by two boys on the following morning on the top of a hill, three miles from the scene of the fight. On Saturday evening they put in an appearance at Quyon, having tramped almost entirely thru the thickly wooded hills for thirty miles. It was thought that they might appear there, but no special constables had been placed on guard. When the burglars arrived about 6 o'clock, there were men who were sure they were the much sought desperadoes, but none attempted their arrest. Instead, they facilitated their departure by giving them information asked, and selling them supplies.

To the people they talked to, the men said they had been hunting "red" and lost their way. Only one of the men had a rifle, but this they explained by saying the other two had lost theirs in the bush.

Get Supplies and Supper. They went boldly in to the village, purchased shaving soap, tobacco and other supplies at the stores, and then they went to Doyle's Hotel, where all three had supper, and several drinks in the bar. They then enquired how to get across the Ottawa River, and were directed to the ferry, which goes from the Quebec to the Ontario side of the river.

They crossed over shortly after six o'clock to the landing, which is about four miles above Fitzroy Harbor, and there took the main road which leads to Galetta, passing over a quarter of a mile of the main road, and then to Fitzroy Harbor. In the meantime Fitzroy Harbor had been notified by telephone, but no one from Quyon followed. J. D. Craig, a farmer, offered a side of one man, walking some distance from the other two, but was told that all three were together going to Arnprior, and were armed with revolvers, and so he drove on. At Fitzroy Harbor, Herman Kedy, hotelman, was notified by Craig and the operator of the ferry, and he passed the word on to Galetta.

A Plucky Constable. Constable Johnson polished his star and loaded his Winchester rifle and then swore in three volunteers to help him. Two of these he armed with 38 calibre revolvers and the fourth with a rifle. The plan was for two to lie beside the road at one place, and the other two a couple of hundred feet away, thus getting the men between the two divisions. But while they were waiting, the constable got to have a gun and was lying down in the grass when the trio arrived, walking on the opposite side of the road. As soon as they passed the constable quietly approached to within thirty feet—at least that is how Constable Johnson figures the distance.

"Hold boys, hold up your hands," commanded the constable, as he raised his weapon. But two of the burglars blazed away with their revolvers, one firing one shot and the other two, and all three ran. The constable and his assistants used all their charges without effect. It was now a few minutes to 9 o'clock, and quite dark.

Separated Under Fire. One man darted up a side road, another vanished, the constable did not know where, and the third constable, alone along the road, tried to garden to another street and along past the general store, where the usual Saturday night crowd of fifteen or more men were getting Sunday provisions. They heard the shots and knew who had been expected; they saw the fugitives with the constable after him, and then they suddenly had an irresistible impulse to see the inside of the store again.

This morning William Key, night operator at the G.T.R. station found two empty and two full cartridges near the water tank. Apparently, Mr. Burglar reloaded his revolver and prepared to resist attack.

Constable Johnson remained around for the rest of the night and phoned Ottawa, and a squad of eight city and Dominion police arrived early this morning. All day barns and outbuildings were searched in vain. To-night men are stationed along the railway and on roads leading to Arnprior, Pakenham and other villages. Men who saw the fugitives say they appeared all fagged out.

Prejudice, Prudence, Penny, is the epitaph that should adorn the tombstones of many unsuccessful business houses. Time is fleeting. Advertise in The World and succeed. See special advertising article on Page 6.

Commissioner Harris Explains. OTTAWA, Oct. 10.—Mr. Harris, Canadian trade commissioner in Japan, who, it was stated some time ago, had written a Toronto merchant, warning him not to ship goods direct to Japanese merchants because they could not be trusted, says that his caution applied to one individual only, and not to Japanese business men.