RT. HON. JAMES BRYCE

The news that Rt. Hon. James Bryce desires to be relieved of his duties as ambassador at Washington is received with universal regret in the United States and Canada. Mr. Bryce has done invaluable service in relation to matters of international dispute, and has done much to cultivate cordial relations between the two great members of the Anglo-Saxon race. The Boston Herald voices the feeling in the United States as follows:—

"Any intimation that Mr. Bryce is for any reason to leave Washington and his post as ambassador for Great Britain will cause regret among the people of this country such as no similar news about any other diplomat would provoke. It is not conceivable that he should be recalled against his own desire; but if, perchance, it should be the case that physical infirmities now compel him to relinquish the burdens of official life, then he surely will let this present appointment be his last and thus crown a career of unusual length and range with success in the noble task of lessening the causes of difference between Great Britain and Canada on the one hand and the United States on the other."

THE I. C. R. ACCIDENT

The collision of two trains in broad daylight in a station yard where the crew of each knew they were to cross the other is something that should not happen. The fatal accident at Nauwigewauk yesterday was due to somebody's blunder. Collisions have not been frequent on the Intercolonial, and this one came as a greater shock because it was one which ordinary observation of simple rules would surely have prevented. One life was sacrificed and much property destroyed. It is needless to remark that both train crews believed they were obeying orders, and it remains to be explained why there was any confusion such as led to the accident. The sad affair emphasizes once more the fact that all who have to do with the movement of trains need to be ever alert and watchful, since they are responsible for the lives of passengers and crews. Universal sympathy goes out to the family of Buckman Case, whose thirty-five years of railway service had no tragic end. It must have been a trying experience for the returning holiday-makers to be witnesses of so sad a spectacle.

PRESIDENT TAFT'S TROUBLES

If the Washington correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce is at all well informed the Republican party is in a bad way. The party is in a state of disorganization. The more nearly getting into it is one of the distressing things in relation to the matter, as well as the wholehearted, that he too often joggles with his peck measure. It may even have a concave bottom which robs the buyer of a good per cent. of his order, or it may be filled only to a level when it should be brimming.

"Buying by the pound will at least bring back some of the lost tables in the arithmetic, and it will insure a square deal for all, without casting any aspersions upon the honest grocery man. Cleveland's experiment ought to be watched with interest by housewives everywhere."

The extent of the I. C. R. surplus will sorely trouble the fault-finders who desire to have the control of the road landed over to private interests.

The Canadian government hopes to benefit the consumers of the country by better trade relations with Belgium and Italy. This is another practical forward step in national growth.

The message of King George to the people of the overseas states of the empire will strengthen their confidence in his ability and desire to serve the highest interests of the vast realm to whose throne he has been called.

Premier Hazen had one eye on his Boston audience and the other on Conservative policy in Canada when he addressed the Intercolonial Club. In the meantime the government of Canada is pursuing a dignified and conciliatory course in relation to the proposed conference on reciprocity.

THE DAY OF THE LORD

It was not a day of feasting.
Nor a day of the burning cup;
There were bitter drops in the fountain
Of life as it bubbled up.
And over the tolling hours
Were weakness and sorrow poured Yet I said "Amen!" when the night came,
It had been a day of the Lord.

A day of His sweetest whispers
In the hush of the temple's whir;
A day when the Master's blessing
Was pure in his hand as a pearl;
A day when, under orders
I was fettered, yet was free;
A day of strife and triumph,
A day of the Lord to me!

And my head, as it touched the pillow,
When the darkness gathered deep;
Was soothed at the thought of taking
The gift of childlike sleep;
For what were the burdens carried,
And what was the foreman's sword,
To one who had fought and triumphed,
In a blessed day of the Lord?

—Margaret E. Sangster.

ONE OR THE OTHER.
Judge—Why did you burn your barn
down just after getting it insured?
Farmer—Your Honor, a poor man like me can't afford to have a barn and insurance too.—Megendorfer Blatter.

A FAVOR FOR PA.
"Say teacher," said the small boy, as he entered the school room, "Pa wants to know if you'll do him a favor."
"What favor?" enquired the astonished school master.

The favor of excusing me for being late this morning," retorted the youngster gaily.

OH, JOU ROOSTER!
Sam Sandlower—"Pete Green am gittin' mighty tony in his invitations dese days."
Bill Blackbury—"How's dat?"
Sam Sandlower—"Why, Pete killed dat old rooster he had foh do last five year!
He den invited de parson to a 'chantecler dinner on Sunday."

SEEING THE COMET.
I arose and saw the comet and the long tail streaming from it.
Streaming twenty millions miles away
behind.
Like my midnight backward streaming,
ghostly in the comet's gleaming.
Streaming, streaming, in the chilly morning.
And I said, or softly uttered, as I watched it where it flutered—Watched the comet, not my nightie, understand;
"Tramp of interstellar spaces, wanderer in
the distant past,
You have Weston in a pocket, have him
canned!"

I said: "Thing of tail tremendous, from you me, I have defended
If you'd hit the earth a solar-pluxus punch
We'd emerge from out the wrecksheet with no appetite for breakfast;
And we'd never heed the bell again for lunch."
Though you scot beyond our vision, man,
has marked out with perdition
What your outfit is to be till time shall cease,
And you cannot vary from it, cannot leave that path, O comet.
Man has tagged you, timed you, tied you sick as grease.

"There's my bed," I said, "O comet; I am sorry I can't see you
To see such a doleful thing; I'm going back!
I'm a greater thing, though smaller, than you are, celestial caller,
For I can, and you can never, jump the line.
Then I turned, but trouble met me, for a rocking-chair upset me
And I stumbling, bumped my nose against the door!
Then I heard my spouse complaining my nose and shin were paining
As I crawled to bed and snuggled.
"Nevermore!"

The Holiday

The weather yesterday was a disappointment but it did not prevent large crowds from going to the river on the steamers, and on the excursions planned by the Portland, Y. M. A., and the Alexandra Temple Minstrels. The ball games were postponed, as was the opening of the season for the R. K. Y. C. At the latter's clubhouse, however, Commodore Thomson addressed a number assembled, and later several of them sat down to dinner together.

Butler exported from New Zealand up to April 21 represented an increase of 111,000 cases on the amount exported during the same period last year. Cheese exported amounted to 28,000 crates more than in the same period last year.

Men's Correct
Furnishings

Certain stores get to be arbiters of men's fashions by virtue of being always right in style. It's the usual thing for such stores to "soak" its customers for all they will stand; because men—lots of them—will unhesitatingly pay a good price if with it goes the feeling of safety as to style. Hence many men naturally grow to think that style can only be had at a good fat price.

Wiesel's is changing all that. It is rapidly proving to more and more thoughtful dressers every day that correct style need not hinge on exorbitant price.
