here. Butter is scarce this week and although there is no change in the price of eggs there is a very good supply offered on the market. Cheese is a little higher for the older makes but new cheese is a little easier. Meats are higher at this season. The supply of vegetables is such that the prices are considerably lower this week. The fruit market is also better supply. Sugar is very strong and higher prices are looked for. In consequence of the high price on raw sugar molasses is very strong. The reports of the new crop of Japan tea, which is expected on the market at the latter part of this month, are not any more promising. The prices will likely be high. Coffee, cocoa and spices continue strong. Some package cereals are higher, as is also evaporated milk.

Toronto—Supplies of granulated sugar in wholesalers' warehouses are practically cleared up. Refiners have nothing definite to say as to when stocks will be coming forward. The market for molasses is strong with indications towards higher prices. One cereal market is steady under the recent advances on corn and wheat products. The volume of business being transacted is small, both wholesalers and retailers are apparently clearing up surplus stocks. The primary spice market generally has developed a slightly easier tone. Nutmegs and ginger are scarce and quotations steady. The coffee market is firm with a shortage noted on old crop Santos. There is no change in the tea situation. The market is firm, fine teas are difficult to obtain, while the market is apparently flooded with the low-grade cheaper varieties. There is a steady tone to the dried fruit market. Prunes are slightly easier. The nut market continues unsettled. Bordeaux shelled walnuts are being quoted at a lower figure than almonds, something that has not occurred for some years. Shipments of rice have somewhat improved; quotations, however, are high and there is no indication that lower prices will prevail for the year. Southern vegetables are arriving freely and prices are lower. Potatoes are becoming scarcer. The Cuban pineapple season is now at its height. Naval oranges are quoted very cheap this week. Advances have been registered on canned haddie, macaroni, health salts, chocolate, salad dressing, evaporated milk, Old Dutch Cleanser and Postum cereal.

Fresh meats are firm with slight advances on some pork and beef cuts. Cooked meats are also higher. Cheese is firm. Shortening, lard and margarine are steady. Butter is weak and quotations lower. Eggs have firmed. Poultry prices are maintained.

Winnipeg—The Western market has been quiet this week, due to the outcome of the budget being put through the House at Ottawa.

Sugar supplies are scarce, and the raw market in New York took a decided drop, but prices of raw material is still much higher than refined is being offered to the trade. Corn syrup remains firm, with indications of further advances. Rolled oats advanced this week.

Pure and compound jams are selling very freely; retailers are taking advantage of their opportunities to buy these goods at much lower prices, than they can possibly buy later on. The coffee market is strengthening, and reports from the primary market show an advance. The tea market is in a very unsettled condition. The primary market for tapics or sago has declined slightly. Supplies of fresh fruits and vegetables are arriving very slowly and are being quickly snapped up.
