BURNING METEORS

It is supposed that meteors begin to burn when they are within about 125 miles of the earth and that combustion is completed and they disappear at from thirty-five to fifty miles above the earth. When we see a falling star, therefore, we may consider that we have watched it through a flight of about a hundred miles before it finally burns out and disappears from view.

DOHERTY CASE GOES TO JURY

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., June 12.—The trial of A. E. Doherty, charged with the murder of Joseph D. McMillan of Miscouche on May 10th, came to a close today, having lasted three days. The addresses of the two counsel and the judge's charge lasted an hour each, the case being given to the jury at 4:30 p. m. The prisoner, charged through the proceedings each day apparently unperturbed and quite cheerful. This morning on direct examination he said that at no time had he any suspicion of Stella McDonald's conduct. On cross-examination he said that he had three brothers in Winnipeg, one a lawyer. The evening of the shooting he was looking in a coat for a handkerchief and found the revolver, which he transferred to the coat he was wearing. Asked about the two hours just preceding the shooting he said that he had been sitting in a room, but did not remember giving details to a newspaper man, the details of which he now claimed to have no knowledge. Donald McCallum of St. Eleazer's testified to the prisoner's tender-heartedness. He would not look at sheep being butchered on the farm. Dr. Jardine of Summerside, who visited the prisoner many times in jail, testified as to his mental condition. His intelligence was below the average.

HER OFFENSE.

The defendant damed had been apprehended in the very act of drinking carbolic. The speedy work of skilled physicians saved her life. The physicians afterward admitted that she had saved it. An officious constable arrested her on the ground of attempting suicide. Then a wise man present interposed and said: "I object to this high handed procedure. If this person is to be seized on any charge it should be as a violator of the pure food law." "How so?" exclaimed every one in unison. "Because she was putting acid inside her." Whereupon the crowd released the woman and with one accord handed the author of the pun to justice.

BAPTISTS DISCUSS BIG FALLING OFF IN THE ATTENDANCE AT ALL COUNTRY CHURCHES—REMEDY SOUGHT

The annual meetings of the sixth district of the United Baptist churches of New Brunswick were continued yesterday morning and afternoon in the Gouda Point United Baptist church. The morning service opened with devotional service by Rev. H. G. Kennedy. At 10:30 o'clock the regular business was taken up. In the absence of Rev. George Howard, who was to have addressed the meeting on the subject of "Our Vacant Churches," Rev. J. W. Kierstead combined that subject with an address on "Our Depleted Ministry." The speaker brought to the attention of the body many problems connected with country churches. He showed that in all parts of the country the smaller churches were weak and that unless some remedy should be applied soon it would be too late to derive any benefit. The morning session closed with a report of the country churches, which showed that with only five exceptions had reported an increase. But the country churches with only five exceptions had reported an increase. But the country churches with only five exceptions had reported an increase.

A TERRIBLE CRIME

LONDON, June 12.—A peculiarly ghastly tragedy came to light yesterday afternoon. During the morning of that day a man carrying a large parcel entered a public lavatory in St. George's road, Southwark. The attendant noticed the man because he seemed to be either exhausted by the weight of the package or else in a very dazed state. The attendant went to discover the contents of the parcel, and after removing the outer covering of brown paper used for padding, discovered the mutilated body of a little girl wrapped in a blanket. The throat had been hacked across, and there was a long gash down the chest and abdomen. The head had been wrapped in a piece of linen, and the legs folded from the knee and tied back, with the evident object of reducing the length of the parcel. The body, which was nude, had been washed after the commission of the crime, and very little blood was found upon it; while the fact that the blanket contained a good deal of sand led to the conclusion that the body had been buried. A medical examination showed that death had taken place within twenty-four hours. The police were communicated with, and the circumstances were promptly investigated by Sir Melville Macnaghten, head of Scotland Yard, and Detective-Inspector Fegret. The lavatory attendant was asked to give the following description of the man who left the parcel: Age about thirty-three, height five feet six inches, fair, brown dark-tinted coat, dark grey trousers, double collar, dark sailor knot tie, dark green cap. But the appearance of a respectable working man. A clue to the identity of the murdered child was not long in forthcoming. The very morning a man named Bailes, an artisan, living in Prebend street, Islington, had sought the aid of the police in tracing the whereabouts of his seven-year-old daughter, Marie Ellen Bailes. Marie was a scholar at the Catholic school in Duncan terrace, Islington, and left with the other children at 4:30 on Friday afternoon. As she failed to return, her father sent a description of the child to the police station. On Saturday afternoon he was communicated with, and on arriving at the Lambeth mortuary he identified the body as that of his missing daughter. He collapsed on seeing her, and it was some time before he could give any details as to her disappearance. Although nearly 700 detectives have been engaged on the case during the week, no clue to the murderer has yet been discovered. The police at Derby detained on suspicion a man who had pawned some clothing on the night before the murder, and was unable to account for his movements on the Saturday, but the Scotland Yard authorities ordered his release. Some of the little girl's clothing has been found on the bank of the New River at Islington.

WOULD'NT EMPLOY AN ENGLISHMAN ON ROAD

Thos. Malcolm Says Italians are Best Work on International Railway Being Rushed to Completion

Thomas Malcolm, contractor of the International Railway, was a guest at the Royal yesterday. To the Sun last night he said that construction on the road was being pushed ahead with all speed, and that the weather permitted the grading of the road bed would be completed before next winter. There was now forty miles of road completed from Campbellton and grading had been completed fifty miles out at the Campbellton end of the line and ten miles out at the St. Leonard's end. There were 1,100 men employed on the construction of the line and the work was progressing very rapidly. Next week there would be 400 more laborers employed and 200 horses would be at work. Regarding the class of workmen most desirable for railroad work Mr. Malcolm said that Italians were undoubtedly the best and the most of his men were of that nationality. Austrians were also good men, but he had found Englishmen not up to the standard for railroad labor. "I would not employ an Englishman to work on the road," he said, "for last year I lost over $5,000 by doing so."
