

THE DREYFUS TRIAL

Thursday's Session the Most Trying One the Prisoner Has Experienced.

A Very Significant Question Asked by a Member of the Court That May Possibly Mean a Change of Tactics on the Part of the Generals.

RENNES, Aug. 29.—Neither side was pleased with the outcome of today's proceedings before the court martial that is trying Captain Dreyfus. The Dreyfusards expected that Col. Cordier, who was deputy chief of the intelligence department under the late Lieut. Col. Henry, would testify that the handwriting of the bordereau was that of the late Col. Sandherr. Had this expectation been realized, the testimony would have been a strong point in favor of the accused, because it would have been a reply to the anti-Dreyfusards, who have all along contended that Henry received the bordereau and forwarded it to Sandherr, a thing he would not have done had the bordereau been as the Dreyfusards assert, written by his accomplice, Esterhazy. In that event, Henry would have recognized the handwriting when he received the bordereau from the German embassy and would have suppressed it, instead of forwarding it to Sandherr.

Col. Cordier, however, testified today that he was absent from the intelligence department when the bordereau arrived, but that he believed it was received by Henry. Naturally this statement elicited the anti-Dreyfusards, but the Dreyfusards had good reason to congratulate themselves upon the renunciation of Cordier's testimony, as it was wholly in favor of Dreyfus.

Today's attendance was the largest since the opening of the trial. Every body was on the qui vive to hear the testimony of M. De Freycinet, senator, former premier, former minister of foreign affairs and former minister of war. This able politician, the "White Mouse" of French politics, sat upon the fence as well as he could. His expression of a fear that the Dreyfus arbitration would injure the discipline of the army greatly annoyed the Dreyfusards, who regarded his silence as the judges' acquiescence in the accused. But he followed with an eulogy of the pioneer of the Dreyfus campaign, M. Schœrer-Kestner, former vice-president of the senate, whose character he said he held in the highest esteem.

Maitre Labori then secured another concession favorable to Dreyfus by getting M. De Freycinet to admit that he could not recall a single fact going to prove that money had been sent into France from abroad to promote a campaign in favor of Dreyfus. The general feeling is, however, that his appearance on the witness stand has not materially helped the counsel of the accused.

BERLIN, Aug. 29.—The Cologne Gazette today, in an inspired article replying to the "Morning News," says: "After the failure of Major Panizardi and Col. Schneider to convince the French people, Col. Schwartzkoppen's intervention in behalf of one innocent sentenced would be futile, especially since Germany has already done more than could be expected by Count Von Bülow's solemn declarations, which were given as representations of the empire and the emperor, and Col. Schwartzkoppen's word of honor in his declarations in November, 1897, that he never had any relations with Dreyfus."

The Tagesblatt says the government might name the real spy.

RENNES, France, August 30.—In the matter of evidence, today was quite a Dreyfus day, only the deposition of the last witness, Gen. Deloye, being unfavorable. The testimony of M. Plot, a member of the institute, is little likely, however, to serve the cause of the accused materially. If at all, because his introduction of Col. Schneider, the Austrian military attaché, as champion of Dreyfus, was rather calculated to arouse resentment and adversely to influence the judges, especially as it was followed by Gen. Goyon's tactical protest against Col. Schneider's uncomplimentary allusions to French officers.

RENNES, Aug. 31.—Dreyfus today had the most trying day he has yet gone through. The strain proved too much for him and, for the second time in the course of the trial, he gave way to his feelings and sought relief in tears. The generals have branded him as a traitor before the court, their subordinate have pointed the finger of scorn at him. But he only once flinched—when the official report of his treatment on Devil's Island was read before him, and the picture of his sufferings, mental and physical, were thrown vividly on the screen of his memory. Then he hid his features and wept.

He passed through another crisis today, when after Captain Lebrun-Renaud and witness after witness brought up before him again that cold January morning which ushered in the scene of his degradation, Major Forcinetti, a man of heart, told in simple words and unaffected manner, the story of Dreyfus' struggle with the menacing temptation to take his hands off the secret of his own guilt as an angel, pointing out the road of duty. Then again the prisoner's breast heaved with emotion and tears trickled down his cheeks. He rose, and after a forced effort, remained calm, as he spoke a few words concerning his denial to Col. Du Faty De Clam that he wrote the bordereau, he turned to Forcinetti with a look of thanks for his consolation so needed. Dreyfus then uttered these words of heartfelt gratitude to his wife for the courage with which she inspired him: "It is due to her that I am alive today."

The prisoner could articulate no more, but sat down abruptly to conceal his distress. The proceedings concluded a few minutes later and he was taken back to his prison, where his wife visited him, and in the presence of Mme. Dreyfus and the gendarme on guard, he broke down completely. The tension had been too much for him. He sobbed convulsively and the mastery of his sorrow joined him in a solace of tears.

Capt. Lebrun-Renaud introduced the new assertion that the fact that he had not related the incident of the confession to President Castelnau-Perier was because he overheard himself called "canaille," "cur," and "traitor" while waiting for the trial. He, however, could not explain why he kept this to himself instead of recounting the incident before the court of Cassation. Nor did his explanation as to why he destroyed the page of his notebook containing the record of Dreyfus' confession sound very convincing.

A very significant question was put to Col. Guérin by a member of the court, Gen. Col. Brongniart, who sits at Col. Jousset's right hand and always puts pointed questions. He has thoroughly studied the Dreyfus case, and is reputed to be one of the best authorities on the case. It is certain Col. Jousset consults him frequently during the proceedings. Brongniart is said to be a rabid anti-Dreyfusard, and he, today, in a quiet tone asked Col. Guérin if he thought M. Weyl, who is a friend of Esterhazy, also knew Dreyfus. The latter at once rose and declared he had never before heard of Weyl. The point of this question was that Esterhazy has written to Col. Jousset, as announced, and has undoubtedly mentioned Weyl as a go-between for Dreyfus. This is a person referred to in yesterday's despatch as "V," a mistake for "W." If relations can be proved between Dreyfus and Weyl, a person from whom obtaining treasonable information from Weyl, then he could assume Dreyfus was a traitor. The generals, if sufficient evidence of a Dreyfus-Weyl-Esterhazy connection can be produced, can abandon the contention that Dreyfus wrote the bordereau and admit Esterhazy is the author of it. This is, possibly, the chance of tactics on the part of the generals which has been hinted at recently.

It was reported this afternoon that General Mercier, Rogot and Gonz and M. Cavaignac, met today at General Mercier's house and discussed the evidence Col. Schwartzkoppen's housekeeper, Mme. Badilant, could give if she was subjected to a severe examination, with the result that it was decided her evidence was not conclusive enough to justify summing her as a witness for the prosecution.

The Matabele are showing signs of unrest. The Boers are energetically engaged in pillaging the minds of the natives against the British, and they have approached the Zulu chief, who appears undecided which cause to espouse. But the Zulus are preparing for the expected fighting, and it must be remembered that Chief Dinisela was deported to St. Helena with several other chiefs and kept prisoner there by the British for several years.

PERTORIA, Aug. 30.—The British diplomatic agent here, Conyngham Green, has handed to the secretary of state, F. W. Reitz, the reply of the British secretary of state for the colonies, Joseph Chamberlain, to the Transvaal's alternative proposals to the joint commission suggested by Great Britain to inquire into the effect which the proposed franchise reform measures will have on the Uitlanders. Mr. Green afterwards had a long audience with the state officials, the nature of the dispatch is not disclosed, but was subjected to the consideration of the executive this afternoon. It is understood that another conference may occur at Cape Town. The result is anxiously awaited.

CAPE TOWN, Aug. 30.—At a meeting of the Scandinavians of Johannesburg, only two of them voted in favor of forming a volunteer corps in case of war.

TRANSVAAL CRISIS.

The Situation Believed to Have Become More Serious.

Boer Women Are Becoming Very Warlike and Are Forming Rifle Clubs.

The Transvaal's Proffered Concessions Made With a Sincere Desire to Fully Settle All Differences and Avert a Disastrous War.

CAPE TOWN, Aug. 29.—The members of the progressive party in the Cape house of assembly freely declare their dissatisfaction with the speech of the premier, the Hon. W. P. Schreiner, last evening in the debate upon the proposed Transvaal settlement. They are convinced that the German government will maintain the strictest neutrality, we consider it all the more our duty to warn the Transvaal against a disastrous policy.

CAPE TOWN, Aug. 30.—There was a violent scene in the Cape house of assembly today, when the Boer representatives were discussing the Transvaal settlement. The Boer women are becoming very warlike and are forming rifle clubs. Several industrialists were afterwards arrested from the street for merely retorting against this statement. The government has refused to provide facilities for women and children to leave Johannesburg.

There is great activity at the steamers town dockyard in drilling men on shore and overhauling vessels. LONDON, Aug. 29.—The Daily Mail says this evening's telegram that a large number of Boer women are being recruited in England for the Boer army, recently being shipped through German agents.

JOHANNESBURG, Aug. 30.—The Boer policeman who recently assaulted an American, after the latter had rebuked him for his abusive language when demanding the American's rifle, was today found guilty and fined 37s.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—The situation in South Africa has become rather complicated. The strong feeling of the Dutch element in the Cape Colony evidently influenced the secretary of state for the colonies, Mr. Chamberlain, to do everything possible to avert a rupture, and explain the further evidence after a conference at Cape Town to arrange for the settlement of an arbitration court and to deal with the question of suzerainty which, neither franchise nor takes the leading place in the controversy.

The Boer papers now solace themselves with the remark that England can easily prevent such a settlement if a crisis demands extreme measure, and that the action of Portugal does not imply unfriendliness toward Great Britain.

The special despatches from Johannesburg express the belief that the volksraad will oppose President Kruger's going to Cape Town. General Joubert is credited with saying: "There will not be any, but Great Britain will not get all she wants."

The outlanders are much irritated at the prospect of further delays. PRETORIA, Aug. 31.—President Kruger today announced to the volksraad that he had received a telegram from the governor of Mozambique, saying the detained ammunition would be forwarded immediately.

The entire correspondence between the imperial and Transvaal governments was read in the volksraad. President Kruger asked the raad to meet secretly tonight for the purpose of considering a reply. President Kruger also claimed that in the convention held the preceding day of Great Britain was distinctly stated. But he added there was no mention of it in the convention of 1884. He demanded the British government should be held to its word.

client whose stock is valued at $40,000 daily has daily sales now worth about $5.

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—The Nourie Nachrichten, which registers its detestation regarding neutrality in the Transvaal, says: "The Boers should have fought the question on the basis of the Bloemfontein sphere of discussion. The anti-Dreyfus feeling in the Transvaal would have been averted if Great Britain's demands were granted."

France without Russia cannot stir a finger, and Russia will not. Austria-Hungary desires neutrality in 1899, and Italy will do the same. Firmly convinced that the German government will maintain the strictest neutrality, we consider it all the more our duty to warn the Transvaal against a disastrous policy.
