NOTES AND NEWS.

The Aldine for May opens with a magdered with wonderful breadth and vigor, and vividly recalls the destruction of the ill-fatted Atlantic. "Unbidden Guests" represent a group of kittens on the table of an epicure, and making havoc among the dishes. "A Trout Brook," by Casilear is a glimpse of a roaring torrent, that goes winding and dashing on its way through the broczy woods, which the angier will be unwilling to leave as long as the trout rise, as they must there. There are besides six spirited filustrations of New Chicago. There is also an admirable view of "Drusenfall," a noted fill in Thuringia; and a charming illustration by Dore, imbued with that grace which he knows so well how to infuse into his pictures when the subject demands. These are some of the attractions of this monthly gallery of art. The literature of the May number is as good as usual.

> DETAILS OF THE ACCIDENT. At 3.15 o'clock yesterday morning the steamboat train from Stonington, which was due at Stonington Junction at 3 o'clock, had arrived there and stood on the track beside the mail train from New York, which was due at 8.10 a.m. There was hardly a hundred feet difference in the position of the trains here, and the switchman, as the steamboat train was that distance in advance and would have had, had it been on time, the right of way, was a small affair, so insignificant, in fact, that it would seem impossible to any one who knew the location to believe it could

Richmond Switch, the little station near which the accident occurred, is about fourteen miles from Stonington and thirty-six from Providence For some little distance here the road is perfectly straight and there is a double track, on one side of which freight trains switch off to allow the regular passenger trains to pass. From this the place takes its name. The double track begins to the westward of the station and extends by it over the bridge at which the accident happened and a short distance beyond eastward. As the doomed train approached this little station, at the rate of thirty-five or forty miles an hour, no one suspected there was any danger. No
