Reds Take the Second Battle

MISQUES AT CRITICAL PERIODS, PROVES BEAVERS' UNDOING

A misque at a critical period coupled with some very dumb coaching, proved the undoing of the Beavers in yesterday's encounter which they dropped to Knotty Lee's clan 4-2.

The misque referred to happened in the fourth inning after the two-run lead accumulated by the Beavers had been tied in the preceding session. With one down, Wade tossed the ball to first to Beatty and had from A. G. Grohman. Ayr. R. E. Seagram, Waterloo, won by default from G. Hynd, Aetion.

The Beavers took the lead in the second inning, scoring one and duplicating the stunt in the third, before the Brants donned their batting clothes. In their half of the third, however, Knotty Lee called upon his players to go over the top and they did. Two runs were scored on clean hits.

Lodestro pitched fairly good ball and might have pulled through had any of the breaks come his way, but his support in the field wobbled most painfully at times.

There was also some very poor judgment used by the coaches who were evidently bothered with the heat of a sultry day and lost all track of their business. One very glaring exhibition of ivory work was exhibited in the seventh inning. With a man on first and another on third and two down, the former attempt a steal of second, figuring that the catcher would not attempt to throw to second, but the Brantford catcher had his wits about him and promptly bottled up both runners and retired the side. Beatty was at bat at the time and a timely hit would doubtless have tied the score.

With Walker on the mound the Red Sox looked like an entirely different aggregation. Their umpire batting was conspicuous by its absence, possibly on account of the presence of so many ladies in the stands, it being Ladies Day.

The final game of the series will be played this evening at six o'clock and Benny Gilbert will probably work for the Beavers.

ON THE SIDE

Manager Hagel landed in Hamilton with fresh troop for his tailenders but even their addition couldn't stem the attack of the Tigers who won 9-2. Glasier was pitted against Foster and allowed the Tecumsehs only four hits.

By winning yesterday's game against London while the Aces were losing to the Creeks Hamilton crept up another full game and are now three games behind Saginaw. Hamilton will be here tomorrow for a three game series and local fans will then gain a first glimpse of Shaugnessy and his tribe.

After a day's layoff the Yanks looked horn again Julia Caesar held the Aces to one run while his mates clouted the old pill for five runs in Bay City the Wolves completely routed the Hallidens scoring twelve runs in two innings. The visitors scored twice.

FLORA BEDINI, SOMERSAULT

The circus is here and the kids from six to sixty are in the seventh heaven of delight.

The Sparks circus with its multitudinous attractions, red lemonade, toy balloons, double-bottomed peanuts, pop corn, freaks, wild men, snake charmers, big parake, courteous officials, lions, tigers, jeopards, elephants, and everything arrived early this morning to be greeted by an enthusiastic and circus-hungry crowd that swarmed about the long train of the first section and watched with unabated interest the always fascinating scenes of detaining.

Somebody must have handed the weather-man a bunch of combs for he dished up a brand of made to order circus weather to-day. It was hot, maybe a bit too hot, under the circus canopy but the show people did all in their power to make it comfortable for their patrons, even sacrificing considerable revenue from the sale of red lemonade and by letting down the side flaps of the big tent at the top and raising it at the bottom so that there was a cool breeze stirring in the big tent all through the performance.

Fat men and lean men with wild collars and red faces, women tugging fagged out kids and mopping up miniature revulets that rose on the neck and trickled down the spinal column elbowed and pushed their way into the show. The more fortunate with press or city official tickets took their time and waited till the rush was over before venturing past the smiling good natured officials on the main entrance.

In one way the Sparks circus was unique. There were no pleasant-faced gentlemen to stop the patrons and request the exchange of money nor did greedy dispensers of reserved seat tickets bar your progress and try and force you to part with more of your hard earned dimes.

Big Crowds This Afternoon.
The heat didn't prevent a crowd that filled all the seats from being out to see the show. Some estimated the attendance at 3000 but the circus people say there were not that number in the tent. It was a merry good-natured crowd that came out to be amused and they went away well pleased with the performance. The Sparks circus had all the features made familiar from constant viewing since boyhood days and several that no one had ever seen or expected to see beneath a circus tent.

Who ever heard of a seal talking?

RIDER WITH SPARKS' CIRCUS.

There was a seal with the show that not only said "Mamma" quite plainly but actually played the National Anthem on a set of cornets. Then there were the Japs. What they did was well worth the price of admission. Walking up a flight of steps on his head was as easy for one of them as walking heel and toe on level ground is for most of us. To eat a meal swinging up side down on a trapeze was a seeming pleasure for another and a youth turned flips and other gyrations on an unsupported set of bars balanced on the shoulder of his partner. Ladies fair, with golden hair and raiment fair for the weather flew through the air and rode on broad back horses, a school of well-trained horses cake-walked and shimmed, and two young ladies took chance of being ground to mince meat beneath a pyramid by three prostrate elephants.

The trio on the horizontal bars furnished a clever act and the seals, what they did would give the life to the most conservative and truthful reporter so we will just let it go by saying they went through a routine of tricks that must be seen to be believed.

Plenty of Clowns.

Were there any clowns? A circus without clowns would be like Christmas without Santa Claus or the new temperance beverages without salt. Say, the Sparks' joey put over a series of stunts never before seen that were a scream. They burlesqued the hula hula dance, played a funny game of baseball, the forthcoming prize fight with a wind-up in which an angry female supposedly a patron belabored the fighters with her bombast to the delight of the crowd, put on a Mutt and Jeff walk around and the young girl on the trunk who flirted with every one while the audience was coming in fooled everyone till "she" doffed her wig.

The Sparks circus while not claiming to be the biggest in the world, has a sizable show and one that all can see and enjoy. There are two rings and a stage and a bright, snappy quick moving performance further enhanced by the music from a better than usual circus band.

The parade that was viewed by thousands this morning was remarkably clean, presented fresh and attractive wardrobe, open dens of animals, three bands and a calliope that played the Maple Leaf and later popular airs, wild west cowboys and cowgirls and a goodly display of gold and gilded dens. There were six elephants and several camels and it was noticeable that the circus people were very liberal with the use of Union Jack and the National colors. In the long parade, the circus people were conspicuous in the long parade.

On its visit here the Sparks' show has certainly born out the ecumenism granted it by the press in other cities visited. Doubtless the big tent will hold another big crowd to-night.
