Editor's Talk

TWO weeks from this issue we shall publish our annual tourist number. It is now at least one month since townspeople began to talk about summer holidays. Every year the great but all too brief break-away from office routine gets into the nerves just a little earlier. That's temperament, conditioned somewhat upon weather. The tourist number of The Courier expects to reflect somewhat the vagabondism of the time and the place. It will contain fresh pictures and articles from the by-ways of Canada, presented in a way that will interest a reader without making him feel that he's reading a guide-book.

For the benefit of those who still take politics along with their gardening and May weather, we should like to point out that in this present issue we have paid respects to two great and once rival leaders, Sir Charles Tupper and Sir Wilfrid Laurier; one as he leaves Canada for good, the other an old man almost a generation younger as he makes a new appeal on the navy question to the people of Canada. When Premier Borden makes a similar move we shall give him just as much space and consideration. For, after all, it's a good thing the navy question has been taken, at least temporarily, out of Parliament.
