

Frost, and snow, and rattling hail,
Freezes, covers, piles the vale :
Roaring howls the mad'ning storm,
Nature's children, are yet warm ?

Whether has the lambkin sped,
Is he living, is he dead ?
See, in yonder cot he stands,
Feeding from Adelia's hands.

Yes, methinks the bird replies,
I have flown to vernal skies ;
Fields of rice and stores of grain,
Wait me on the southern plain.

Where is ev'ry insect gone ?
Sure they're not a distance borne ;
No ! oh no, behold them dwell,
Safe, secure, in thick lin'd shell.
