MURDER OF OLD SCOTT.

Fu'l Particulars of the Tragedy in Nissouri.

Inquest Was Opered Yesterday and Adjoursed to Friday.

Mrs. Scott Arrested and Lodged in the County Jail.

Thorndale, Sept. 13.-Harvey Scott. aged 76 years, of the fifth concession of Missouri, was shot and killed by his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Wesley Scott, at 7.30 this morning. Mrs. Scott is now lodged in the county jail charged with An inquest was opened at the Scott home this morning before Coroner Hughes and the jury sworn in. The hear-ing of the evidence will take place on Friday evening.

The first news of the tragedy to reach

The first news of the tragedy to reach here was received by Dr. Aminstrong. Joseph Vining, a neighbor of the Scotts, phoned to him, telling him that the old man, Harvey Scott, had been shot. He in turn notified Constable Gumb, of Nissouri, and then hurried to the scene.

When he arrived at the house he was met by Alfred Scott, another son of the deceased, his son Arthur and Joseph Vining. Mrs. Scott was sitting in the house. He found the body of Harvey Scott on the ground just in front of the one door of the house. The head was resting on the ground in a pool of blood, which covered the ground for about a yard distant. Upon examination he found that the bullet was just behind the right ear. Scott was quite dead.

The doctor then went into the house and found Mrs. Scott sitting at a table. She admitted to the doctor that she had shot her father-in-law.

CHIEF CONSTABLE NOTTFIED.

On his return to Thorndale Dr. Armstrong notified High Constables Hughes at London, who is the coroner of Thorndale, and he at once hurried to the scene, arriving there at 4 o'clock.

During this time farmers for miles around had gathered at the Scott home, where the tragedy had occurred.

So many of the farmers from the nearby country were at the house when the coroner arrived that the constables had no trouble in selecting a jury. Twelve men were soon secured and called into the house. Mrs. Scott had been sitting in the room, but she was asked to go into the other room. Her daughter went into the other room. Her daughter wen with her. The viewing of the remain

At the request of the coroner the doctor showed the jury just where the bullet had entered.

ADJOURNED TO FRIDAY.

The jury were then called into the house and the coroner, after conferring with the high constable, notified the jurors that he would adjourn the hear ing of the evidence till Friday evening when they will meet in the Orange at Thorndale at 6 o'clock.

As soon as a permit was given Albert Scott sent one of his sons for a door, and on this the body was placed and taken to his own home. Dr. Armstrong ordered the body taken into the driveshed at the deceased's own home, and here he performed the post-mortem examination.

Mr. Joseph Vining, who was the first to hear of the tragedy, stated that he had been to the cheese factory and was returning home. This was about 7,30 a, m. When he was nearing the Scott home and had just passed John Gourley's residence he saw Mrs. Scott coming down the road and waving her arms. When he got nearer to her he saw that she was crying.

As soon as he got within hailing distance he stopped his team and asked her what was the matter.

GO IN AND SEE.

"She told me," said Mr. Vining, "to go up to the house and I would see what she had done."

Mr. Vining at once started his team on, and when he had gone a few feet looked back and saw that Mrs. Scott was following. He was driving a rather wild team, and as he could not stop at the house or get near the fence on account of the ditch he started on past the house. As soon as Mrs. Scott saw that he was going past the house he said she began to cry and shout and wave her arms for him to stop.

"I kept on," said Mr. Vining, "and when I got to the gate at the other Scott home I tied my horses. Just as I was starting back for the house I saw Albert Scott and his son Arthur driving along some distance down the road. I called to them and the three of us went HUSBAND AWAY. At the time of the tragedy Wesley Scott, the husband of the woman now charged with murder, was assisting with the threshing at the farm of Albert Mirrell, on the sixth concession, which can be seen from the Scott home. The daughter Clara, 18 years of age, was not at home. She was working at the home of E. Vining, about a quarter of a mile from her home.

One of Albert Scott's sons ran and told Scott that his father was dead, while Mr. Vining told Clara Scott that her grandfather was dead.

Wesley Scott, the husband, said that he was not altogether surprised when he received the word that his wife had killed his father. "It was a surprise in a way," he stated, "as I often said and feared that he would kill some of us."

The story of abuse and the domineering ways of the father, as told by his son, shows that all were afraid of him. At the present time, though he is fifty son, shows that all were arrand or our. "I was in the barn feeding the horses," said Wesley, Scott, "when my father came in and told me not to feed them any more. I said that they had nothing and that it would save me coming back in an hour's time to give it to them. Before I could move he grabbed a pail and threw it at me, cutting my hand. Later he said that the pigs were in one of the fields. I said that I did not think so as I could not see them. Just then I saw them in their own field running for all they were worth. I smiled, and he, thinking that I was laughing at him, hit me over the head with a pitchfork, raising a large lump.

"Many a time he had done the same," stated the son, "but I always ran from him and never struck back.

Albert Scott, the other brother, who lives acarby, stated that he was at his home just hitching up his team when he heard the shot. He did not pay any attention to it, but later was called by Mr. Vining, when he was coming up the road. He told of arriving at the house and finding his father lying on the ground. The plants, which will be owned or controlled by the new company, are believed to be among the best constructed and most efficiently euqipped on this continent; and, under a competent central management, not only will a uniform standard of quality be secured in the combined product, but an equable standard of prices may be maintained throughout the whole country. These plants will have a total capacity in excess of 4,500,000 barrels of Portland cement per annum. OBJECTS OF THE MERGER.

According to the returns made to the Dominion Government by the cement manufacturers, the average price at their works obtained by them in 1908 was $1.39 per burrel. This was the lowest price ever reported by the Canadian mills. In 1906 the average price was from $1.65 to $1.70, and in 1907, about $1.60. At the beginning of the present year it was realized by a number of the manufacturers that, even without any increase in prices, the business could be rendered much more profitable by a merger of several of the large competing companies on a conservative basis. The Canada Cement Company, Limited, is the outcome. The new company will own or control cement producing plants at the central points of distribution from the St. Lawrence River west to the Rocky Mountains; and, by securing a more efficient organization, which will be able to regulate the distribution of the manufactured product from these central points to the centres of consumption, large economies in the present cost of freight, which represents a large percentage of the ultimate cost to the consumer, will undoubtedly be effected. The establishment of one executive office in the city of Montreil, and the elimination of competitive salesmen, middlemen and brokers is also expected to effect a considerable saving in the costs of the Sales Department under the new management.

THE CANADIAN MARKET FOR PORTLAND CEMENT

The demand for Portland Cement in Canada has increased remarkably during the last five years. In 1904 the total consumption of Portland Cement in the Dominion was 1,694,988 barrels, of which 784,630 barrels were imported. In 1908 the consumption, notwithstanding the general industrial depression, was 3,134,338 barrels, and no less than 3,495,361 barrels were manufactured in Canada. Existing trade conditions indicate that the consumption during 1909 will largely exceed that of 1908.

The increase is not abnormal, nor due to merely local causes. In the year 1888, it is estimated that less than 200,000 barrels of Cement were manufactured on the North American Continent; and the enormous growth of the business is shown by the fact that in 1908 approximately 55,000,000 barrels were there produced. The manufacture of Portland Cement commenced in Canada in 1888, but until 1904 the importations into Canada of the foreign product exceeded the Canadian production.

The report of John McLeish, B. A., chief of the Division of Mineral Resources and Statistics of the Department of Mines Canada, on the production of cement in Canada, during the calendar year 1908, furnishes the following comparative statement:

Great as has been the development of the Portland Cement industry in Canada since 1904, it is only reasonable to assume that this growth will be largely exceeded in the immediate future, and for many years to come. The enormous public works in progress and in contemplation, including Railways, Canals, Bridges, Harbor Improvements, Piers, Wharves, Docks, Piles, Pavements, Building Foundations, and Buildings, etc., will all require proportionately large quantities of the manufactured products of the new company. The hydro-electric developments throughout the country will increase the demand, while the rapid substitution of reinforced concrete for other materials in the building trades will render necessary an increased production on the part of the new company.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH.

VERDICT OF CORONER'S JURY IN GRAFTON CASE.

Alexander Bunyan, Who Was Found Dead on Railway Track With Hole in His Head, Probably Lost His Life by Falling Off Train.

Grafton, Ont., Sept. 13.—Thanks largely to the excellent work of Provincial Detective Miller, the mystery surround-ing the death of the man who was found on the G. T. R. tracks on September 5th was practically cleared up to night at the adjourned inquest held by Coroner Dr. E. E. Latta, of Colborne. It was established that the deceased was Alex-er Dr. E. E. Latta, of Colborne. It was established that the deceased was Alexander Bunyan, formerly of Guelph, who for a few days previous to his death had been working at the Provincian Steel Company's works at Cobourg. When the body was first discovered it was supposed, from the appearance of the head, that death was due to a bullet wound in the base of the skull. A post-mortem examination was made by Drs. J. C. Hutchison and T. B. Hewson, but no trace of a bullet could be found.

The investigation of Detective Miller led to the identification of the body as that of Alexander Bunyan, who had the physical peculiarity of having been born with a hole in his skull. The medical evidence was to the effect that the cause of death was a broken neck. The skull was also fractured, and among the wounds was one which penetrated to the brain and might have been inflicted by some blunt instrument, such as a bolt. The injuries, the doctors explained, were in all probability caused by a fall from a train. Ernest Fresch, who was employed at the Cobourg railway restaurant, stated that he saw Bunyan at the Cobourg railway station under the influence of liquor and with a bottle of whiskey in his possession. Two other witnesses. Miss M. Andrews and Mrs. explosion occurred in the smelter here at 1.30 on Sunday morning. One man has died and two others have been badly burned. The water jacket surrounding the settler broke, and the contact of the water and the white heat of the settler caused the accident. Three attendants, all Poles, were sitting close by, eating their midnight meal, and were without a moment's warning deluged with molten metal, orick and scrap iron. One man lived when they were placing him on a special train, provided by the company, to be brought to St. Joseph's Hospital. A second man was brought to the hospital on the special, but died at 9 o'clock last night. The third man will get better. The flesh of all three was practically roasted off them.
