Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, Oct. 30.

At the opening of the House, after some routine business had been disposed of, Mr. Palmer continued his speech, which was broken off on the precious evening by the adjournment. He concluded in about an hour, and then Mr. Cartwright saidshat taking only the facts actually proved in evidence, he was obliged to come to the conclusion that agree of the said from a young their offences were limited to the acts the Ministers confessed to have committed. No political exigency could excuse crime, and he compared the fine-fraw arguments of those who sought to extenuate the conduct of the Ministry of the old disputation as to how many angeis could stand on the point of a needle. The situation was not without precedent, for twenty years ago the Graud Trunk seandal had obtained the attention of variament. The word on to examine and reply to the different lines of defence adopted by the advocates of the Government. The question was not what Allan received, but what, as a consideration for his accession. He or the conduction of the most he was indebted with conditions that made its avery unprofitable bargain. He orticised Sit Heaven the Grant ment promised to give him. Shylock was offered his pound of desh, but it was trammelled with conditions that made its avery unprofitable bargain. He orticised Sit Heaven the condensition of his successand his boasted prosperity. He sympathised with those bound by the ties of party alegance to the Prime Minister, and the standard of the model, on this occasion. He or gard et the low state of public moral the condensition of his offence. The conduct of the English Parliament in dealing with Lord Bacon might well be the condensition for his many qualities to exette their admiration. He was a great calamity, and that would be the condensition of his offence. The conduction of his offence have a conduction of his offence. The conduction of his offence have a conduction of his offence. The conduction

—he must, for one, give a verdict of guilty.

Mr. McKay explained the reasons which had occasioned him, with much regret, to sever party associations, and determine it was his duty to vote for the amendment of Mr. Mackenzie.

Mr. Kırkpatrick was looked for with some curiosity, owing to the sentiments he was known to have entertained with respect to the act of prorogation. He explained his views on this matter, the gist of which was that he had been of opinion the House alone should deal with the charge against the Ministers, but after seeing the Premier and fluding a Royal Commission would be appointed he had changed his opinion, and believed that the Commission had been more satisfactory than a Committee.

Mr. S. McDonnell condemned the personal tone of Dr. Tupper's and Mr. Jas. McDonald's speeches, and showed the untruthfulness of the charge made by the latter, that the Local Government of Nova Scotia had used the public money to aid in the election of a member of the Dominion Parliament.

Mr. Conningham explained the ground on which he opposed the Government. He admired much in the career of Sir John, but compared him to an old ship so covered with barnacles that it would be better to put it into a dry dock for a season to have all the barnacles cleared that the Ministry had wilfully compared to the covernment.

Mr. Joly referred to his recent visit of England. and to the close attention now being given in that country to the subject under discussion. He had found the promise of the charter.
