The death is announced of Rev. P. J. Gavan, formerly of Toronto. He died at Los Angeles of rheumatism of the heart. E. Pearson, aged 20, was a prisoner in Wilton Avenue Station last night on a charge of perjury. For some time past he has been paying attentions to Kate Moore, a 16-year-old girl, residing at 204 Parliament street, and on Wednesday evening last the couple were united in marriage by Rev. J. M. Cameron. In order to have the wedding consummated, it is charged Pearson swore that the young lady was of age, and had their parents' consent to the marriage. Neither statement, it is said, was correct, and Mrs. Moore, who was strongly opposed to her daughter entering upon married life, immediately interfered and took her daughter home. The latter, however, was quite satisfied with her bargain, and ran away from home to rejoin her husband.

Leamington, Ont., July 14.—The village of Wheatley, about nine miles from here, was on Saturday night visited by a disastrous fire, which completely gutted the whole main business block of the place. The fire started between 12 o'clock midnight and 1 a.m. in Underwood's livery. The building being frame and filled with hay, burned like wildfire. A west wind was blowing, and the flames soon spread over the remainder of the block, which consisted of Merritt's barn, Lightfoot's hardware store, McLean's butcher shop, Scott's general store, postoffice and telegraph office, and Eastman's general store. The latter building was owned by Lewis Wigle, ex-M. P. Messrs. Scott and Eastman are the heaviest sufferers, but are well covered by insurance in the following companies: Royal, Liverpool and London, Imperial and Ætna. The origin of the fire is unknown. Loss estimated, $40,000.

THE CROPS AND THEIR ENEMIES.

Wheat harvesting will be pretty general in Southern Ontario counties before another week has elapsed.

The oat crop in many districts is said to be very backward, and we have heard of many unfavorable reports.

The Gananoque Reporter has sent specimens of blighted wheat to experts who attribute the disease to the extreme wetness of the season. The blight gives the plant the appearance of having been attacked by rust or frost. Wheat on high, well-drained land in the neighborhood of Gananoque is rust or frost. Wheat on high, well-drained land in the neighborhood of Gananoque is affected to nearly as great an extent as that growing in low fields. Prof. Saunders, of the Experimental Farm at Ottawa, says: "It began with us with a peculiar whitening of the lower leaves of the young grain; in a few days the whitened leaves became red and then a very deep red." The leaves wither and then rust sets in. Mr. Saunders regrets to learn that the blight is quite common throughout the Ottawa district. On some farms near Toronto the oats exhibit the redness here spoken of. The farmers lay the blame not on the heavy rains, but on a new fangled grub or louse.

WILLING AND UNWILLING HELP.

Corporal B. L. Perry, of St. Paul, saw the wreck of the Sea Wing and at once hastened to the spot to render assistance. Finding a man standing near a boat on the shore, he asked to be taken out to the overturned steamer. When the man refused, Perry threatened to kill him. With the help of his unwilling assistant he saved the lives of fifteen or sixteen. The steamer Luella pulled the Sea Wing up out of the water, releasing three bodies—one woman s di three young men. Alice Palmer, of Tenton, was one of them, but the two men have not been identified.

LIEF-PRESERVERS IN REALITY.

Robert Adams, the 17-year-old son of Dr. Adams, of Lake City, and another boy, whose home is in Red Wing, secured three life preservers and were in the water for six hours before being teacued. Young Adams could swim but his companion could not. During the time they were in the water, from 9 to 3, they were buffeted by the billows and blown hither and thither by the gale. They first drifted about a mile down past the town, and then a change in the wind carried them up the river to Frontenac, seven miles from here, where they were receued by Dr. Kain and party. in the wind carried them up the river to Frontenac, seven miles from here, where they were rescued by Dr. Kain and party.

Mrs. Dr. Eachus, a daughter of Mr. Good, who was an inmate of the Good cottage, which was destroyed at Lake Gervais, says: "All our family were in the house. We noticed the storm approaching and some of the household suggested that we get into the cellar. My husband and I were standing at a window, while the others were scattered around the house, and all suggesting some place of security. After a few moments the great spinning cloud reached the center of the lake, and I saw the water divide and overflow the banks some 40 feet. As papa was looking out the door he saw the tree s near the Mullanch soutage crash beneath the whirlwind, and then Mullanch's cottage was swept away and then our barn was blown broadside against our house. Just at this time my husband threw me bodily down the cellar stairs. Then he threw Miss King and Mr. McPherson jumped after. My husband then tumbled down and called to the others to follow. The building crushed in upon us and then portions of it were hurled skyward. Trees were blown by, and a hugo ice chest fell into the cellar and pinned us all down. As we lay there in the painful refuge we heard the Schurmeir house crash and scatter timbers in all directions. For fifteen minutes the timbers and furniture of both houses were hurled about the site of the houses. After our release from the cellar we began looking for members of the household. We found them scattered about. Minnie Mass lay in the road, her head cut and her mouth bleeding badly. Carrie, her sister, was pinned under a tree. While I was dashing through the mud I ran across the body of George Miller, dead and mangled. His wife also was buried beneath the wreck and hurt quite badly. Mrs. Hastings and her daughter Stella were badly bruised, and Mrs. Hastings and her daughter Stella were badly bruised, and eye."

lodged upon the overturned boat. Those first gaining the temporary place of safety assisted others in climbing upon the slippery surface, and in ten minutes all the human beings in sight were upon the boat. Just as the storm was subsiding and hops was strong within them, the hoat gave another lurch and more lives were lost.

"When the boat began to careen so fearfully I leaped from the steamer to the bargo, and when the ropes were cut we drifted away from her some distance, and I was able to see almost everything that was going on. The heart-rending shricks and cries of agony that went up from the waves would have wrung with horror the hardes! heart. Here and there could be seen, as a flash of lightning revealed them, the white dress of some poor woman or child. One poor creature I saw go down clinging to hea child, whom she had been trying to save. The mother—for mother she evidently was —had fastened slife-preserver about her waist and with its aid was trying to keep herself and child afloat until help could reach them. Suddenly I saw the woman release the hold she had upon the child and sink beneath the water. She did not ris again and the child soon followed its mother."
