THE EXECUTION OF JEFF. DAVIS of the moment, the recollection of the inparies sustained at the hands of the Southern THE DROWNED MAN .- A gentleman reafter a careful and impartial hearing.

It has been customary, since the American civil war commenced, for every European journal to criticise the actions of both North and South, and we have no doubt that the execution of Davis and Breckinridge will be severely commented on by many even of the friends of the reunited Republic. There is always an unconscious leaning to falleh greatness, and sympathy often arises for those in misfortune where justice would discard every tender thought. Much, no doubt, of this description of feeling will be shown by the outside world in this hate tragedy. It will be pointed out how Davis was the bona fide head of a Confeder racy that had its armies in the field, and ite cruisers on the ocean-of a Confederacy that was recognized at least as belligerents by all the great powers, and that was able for four years to defy the whole might of the Northern States. How Davis, with remark, road, about ten miles from Victoria, The shie tact and statesmanship, steered the old she-wolf showed herself as he was carry-Confederacy through all its early difficulties ing off her whelps, but decamped hastily as a and succeeded in almost gaining the recog- rifle bullet was sent after her. All this will doubtless be shown, and considerably enlarged upon, until the public will see in Davis' execution something akin to the shooting of Marshal Ney, or the exile of Bonapatte. If it were purely a matter of high treason, we should take a somewhat similar view, but the crime of murder, or at least the accessory before the fact, is the damning record in Davis' and Breckinridge's career, and places the culprits outside the under their new foreman, Mr. Dougal, were category of sympathy or pity. THE CHARGE OF EMBEZZIOMENT.-W. Allen came up on remand yesterday in the Police Court, charged with embezzling $10 50 from R. Maynard. Mr. Dennes deended the prisoner. Mr. Produce was examined and proved that he purchased a pair of boots from the prisoner and paid him for he same. The prosecutor was sworp, who believed the boots produced in court had been given the prisoner for sale. Mr. Dennes contended that this was not a case of embezzlement, but simply a business transaction between the prosecutor and the prisoner. He cited the case of Regina v. Newman in Burns' Justice, where it was held that "since embezzlement necessarily involves secrecy and concealment, if the prisoner in rendering his account instead of denying the appropriation account instead of denying the appropriation of property, admits the appropriation, alleging a right in himself, no matter how unfounded, or setting up an excuse, no matter how frivolous his offence, in taking and keeping, is no embezzlement." " UNHAND ME, WOMAN !"-Ellen Holland was charged yesterday in the Police Court by officer Thompson with assaulting him in the execution of his duty. The officer said he had apprehended a Chinaman for fighting when the accused struck him, and did all she could to rescue the prisoner, using abusive language at the same time. Mrs. Holland indignantly repelled the assertions of the officer, and accused him of laying hands upon her. After hearing the testimony, the magistrate said the officer had exceeded his duty in arresting a woman in her own house, en he could have taken out a summons She had however acted improperly and met with merited disgrace.
