is pending, indeed, it may be said, is already on, for about one hundred and nity thousand workers in the Penn sylvania anthracite mines have quit work, and the strike will in all prob work, and the strike with in a pro-ability extend to the bituminous mines as well. In all it is expected that close to a half a million miners will be involved in the strike. The coal war of 1900 will be eclipsed and coal war of 1900 will be eclipsed and there is such a danger of riot and bloodshed that the country is seriously alarmed. Miners are a difficult class to treat with at best but the frenzied Huns and Poles of the Pennsylvania mining districts are unusually dangerous customers. Unless strike is settled in its early stages its strike is settled in its early stages development will surely draw out the militia to protect non-union workers and sympathizers and maintain order. That this will be a tremendous task That this will be a tremendous task is branded almost as a certainty by the history of previous strikes in the same locality. Labor and capital are fighting for supremacy and the importance of the conflict, measured by the vast interests involved, will make the conflict stubborn and disastrous. Not only the mining industry will be affected but every business in the country will feel the depression. There is one consolation to be drawn from these struggles, however, and that is that each succeeding disagreement brings succeeding disagreement brings solution of the problem in the hands of the people or their representatives and when public feeling is excited to a pitch where toleration of the methods that furnish the excuse for strikes and the plan of retaliation that pre-cipitates them will no longer be con-sidered a virtue, the community of in-terest will be more carefully adjusted. New Zealand has a constitution that effectually bars these disturbances and unpleasant as the task may be, we are inclined to the belief that in a constitution amended to the needs of the times the salvation of public con-cerns depend. But all this is for fu-ture consideration, the present is the time to prepare for a rapid advance in the price of coal, that must follow the cessation of mining operations.

-Carnegie is variously described as a crank, a humanitarian, and a philosopher and he certainly can allore to be either judging from his latest oner to purchase the freedom of the Philippines. He undertakes to pay twenty million dollars to the United States, representing the original cost, for these islands, for the purpose of presenting the islanders with the deed of purchase. It is a hard headed and effective proposition for an absolute freedom and the unlikelihood of its acceptance will not detract from its originality or vigor. A man who is States, representing the original cost, for these islands, for the purpose of presenting the islanders with the deed originality or vigor. A man who is willing to spend twenty millions for any national cause ought to be a good citizen but just now it is hard ling and embodies a wholesale con-demnation of the greed for acquisition of territory that has apparently fas-tened upon the United States. The "what we have, we'll noid principle will eventually be a consideration of Mr. Carnegie's oner though the antiexpansionists are urging its acceptance. The act of the government in treeing Cuba is also represented as a most effective argument for restoring studied the matter that the Filipinos are as capable of administering the affairs of the Philippines as the Cu-bans are of Cuba. The situations are much the same and the peoples of both Cuba and the Philippines seem bred for a life of freedom or a death in fighting for it.

-The world is astounded at the awful calamity in the islands of Martinique and St. Vincent, and day atter day the news reports add horror to reveals no greater calamity, not even anaeum and Pompen that followed an eruption of Vesuvius similar to the eruptions of Mts. Peice and Southerre that have caused such widespread de-struction and death in the islands of the West Indies. Sixty thousand per-sons, it is now estimated, have been killed in these islands and the adjoining waters by the fiery hail and it is not improbable that the catastrophe is yet underrated. Both British and French possessions are involved in the destruction and it is likely that a few days will find them uninhabited and largely uninhabitable. Now that the degree of volcanic ac-Now that the degree of voicanic ac-tivity has been so fully established the islands will lose their attractive-ness to old and new settlers and will be ranked among the places of earth that are shunned by homeseekers, un-til the calamity of 190k shall/have passed from mind. A vigorous work is being conducted in America, Great Britain and France to raise money and supplies for the people whom the disaster has brought face to face with famine. Fortunately the succor has been speedy and the danger of further suffering from this cause is not great.

BELL EXPERIMENTS WITH KITES.

Halifax, May 17—Alexander Graham, Bell has returned from Washington and has resumed his experiments at Baddeck, Cape Breton, in aerial navigation machines. Mr. Bell has had a very large number of kites made on specifications prepared by himself and it is with these that he has begun work. He hopes some day to perfect a practicable flying machine which will be worked independent of any balloon. Mr. Bell does not believe in the balloon for this purpose.

The worst disaster in the history of Tennessee mining occurred Monday morning, when between 175 and 225 men and boys met instant death at the Fraterville coal mine near Coal Creek, Tennessee as a result of a gas explosion. Out of the large number who went to work in the morning, only one is alive and he is so badly injured that he cannot live.
