

Henry Alan Dickie, Truro, N.S.

The name of Dickie has always been a prominent and honored one in Nova Scotia, and the short career of the subject of this sketch promises well for the upholding of its reputation. Mr. Dickie is the youngest son of the late Hon. J. B. Dickie, and was born in Truro on October 7th, 1879. He was educated at the Royal High School, Edinburgh, and was an undergraduate in Arts at the University of Edinburgh when the South African war began. He went out, with other students, enlisting as a trooper in "Roberts' Horse." He was present at all the important engagements under Lord Roberts, including Paardeburg, and won promotion to the rank of Lieutenant. He returned to Nova Scotia but enlisted again as Lieutenant in the 4th Canadian Mounted Rifles. After the war he took up the study of his profession at Dalhousie Law School. During his college days he was ever prominent, playing on his college football team for four years and captaining the winning team of 1903, as well as being editor of The Dalhousie Gazette. He studied law in the office of Mr. H. A. Lovett, Truro, and on being admitted to the Bar in 1904, began practice in his native town. He has been very successful in getting together a good practice and has retained his interest in sports, being a keen curler, playing lacrosse on the Truro team, golf with the Truro Golf Club and tennis with the Lornedale Tennis Club. He is also a member of the Markland Club, Truro.

Gordon Ernest Matthews, Trenton, Ont.

The canning industry has become one of the most important of Canadian business enterprises, and nowhere has it been pushed with more vigor than in Eastern Ontario. One of the most important factories is located in the growing town of Trenton, and the manager of it is a young Canadian, Mr. Gordon Ernest Matthews, Lakeport, Ontario. Mr. Matthews is a fine example of the native Canadian, his parents having been both born in Ontario. He is of English descent, his grandparents coming to Canada about seventy years ago. His father first entered the marine business, but was attracted by the possibilities of the canning trade of which he took hold with success, and his son is now emphasizing the wisdom of his choice. Mr. Matthews received his education in Colborne, and has spent his life in the district where he promises to be one of the most prominent of the men of affairs.
