

result of developments in Europe (in particular, investment liberalization), and that this may have shifted some of UK investments away from North America. However, there also appears to have been a shift away from Canada and to the United States since UK DIA to the United States have been substantial since 1990. Thus, Canada will need to increase its investment profile in the United Kingdom in order to reverse the declining importance of Canada to UK investors.