Can I integrate DJI into Microsoft Outlook?

Absolutely. DJI will deliver the articles resulting from your CustomClips folder to your e-mail daily. To keep your inbox from being overwhelmed, you can set up the Rules Wizard in Outlook to direct Dow Jones to e-mail directly to dedicated folders in your Outlook inbox. See the guide "Dow Jones Interactive - Creating CustomClips" published by the DFAIT Library. The guide is an ideal starting point to CustomClips. It can be found at <http://www.dfait-maeci.gc.ca/link/eserv/index.html>

How much does DJI cost?

DFAIT pays a flat fee for the use of Dow Jones Interactive, so we encourage you to use as many of its features as often as you like. This fee does not release copyright to any of the articles to DFAIT or its employees. The material can be shared with your colleagues, but using it for purposes other than your work as a trade officer may contravene copyright and licensing. You can read the copyright information on DJI or check with DFAIT's Library Services (SXCI).

Don't believe everything you read...

As with print media, it's important to question the sources of electronic news services. When reviewing material on DJI, scrutinize the news stories, know what the source is and verify their credibility.

CAUTION!

Dow Jones Interactive is an extremely powerful system that combs thousands of sources around the globe to gather the information you're seeking. Carelessly defined searches can make your inbox the instant destination for literally thousands of items.

AVOID INFORMATION OVERLOAD!

Take the time to set up your search parameters carefully, using the tips and DJI industry and region codes supplied in this guide and DJI will prove to be an invaluable tool.
