On motion of Mr. MacInnis the debate was adjourned.

BUSINESS OF THE HOUSE

Mr. Harris: Monday, of course, is private members' day, but all hon. members know that the Prime Minister intends to make a statement at the beginning of the day. On Tuesday we shall have a motion to go into supply.

At ten o'clock the house adjourned, without question put, pursuant to standing order.
