miffaries never met, and the Affair died away, without any farther Notice.

th

fu

th

ha

P

fel

th

civ

M

th

gu

rer

bli

fic

rat

Se

th

try

W

as

du

an

di

pr

CC

cl

SI

In the Year 1720, Col. Rickards was appointed Governor of Newfoundland, and Nova Scotia, where, being justly offended with the pert and faucy Behaviour of the French Inhabitants, he had a mind to bring them into better Manners, and began by forbidding them all Commerce with theI fland of Cape Breton. After which, he ordered that they should all within a limited Time acknowledge themfelves Freeholders under the Crown of Great Britain. But they immediately affembled together, and let the Governor know, that they look'd upon themfelves to be independent on the Crown of England, and held the Title to their Lands by a Grant from the King of France, their lawful Sovereign; and that if he proceeded to push them to Extremities, he should find them Savages in Reality.

Before this, and foon after the Peace of Utrecht, they had furnished the Colony of Cape Breton with Wives for the better peopling of that Island: And lately, in the Year 1746, being affisted by Monsieur Junquiere, who succeeded to the Command of the French Fleet, after D'Anville's Death, they made a a dangerous Attack upon the New England Auxiliaries, at Minas; so that upon all Occasions they have made good their Words given in 1711, to the Governor of Quebec, that