FRENCH-CANADIAN LIBERALS ASK GOVERNMENT TO CANCEL BILINGUAL RESTRICTIONS

He was told that the reports were still in the hands of the printers, to which Mr. Rowell replied that the finances of the province could not be discussed until the reports in question had been considered by the house. they termed British fair play. They spoke on a return asked by Mr. Mageau for all copies of correspondence between the minister of education and other members of the government and any person or persons during the past three years relating to the investigation made by Dr. Merchant of bilingual or English-French schools. Hon. Dr. Pyne made no objection to the orderchant of bilingual or English-French schools. Hon. Dr. Pyne made no objection to the order and spoke briefly on the satisfactory carrying out of the circular issued by the government last year and the resultant improvement of English-French schools. The French-Canadian members protested vigorously against the restricting of the teaching of French in the schools.

Report Was Unfair.

Mr. Mageau claimed that Dr. Merchant's investigation should have covered all the primary schools of On-covered all the primary schools of On-tario and he believed that similar re-sults as to lack of teaching efficiency would have been disclosed in the public and separate schools. After reviewing Dr. Merchant's report he stated that defective laws had been the cause of the inferior position of bilingual schools. Out of 254 schools visited schools. Out of 254 schools visited 229 were classed as passable, or over 90 per cent. as good schools, and there were only 22 teachers out of 600 who did not possess knowledge of English. He said there were complaints from all parts of the province in regard to the standard of education in public schools, let alone separate or English-French schools. He quoted Prof. G. H. Wheeler of Toronto University as classing the educational system of Ontario "a crime against the nation." Dr. Merchant's report wofully and wrongfully misinterpreted the true facts respecting bilingual schools. One of the chief setbacks to bilingual schools was caused by the lack of a uniform set of text-books.

schools was caused by the lack of a uniform set of text-books.

Don't Get Share.

He congratulated the government for establishing English-French training schools within the last couple of years. Had this been done a few years ago there would have been no grounds for Dr. Merchant's investigation. He then made a few comparisons as to government grants to education. "The government devotes yearly about $2,000,000 for education, which amount if divided on a basis of population would entitle the French-Canadian people of Ontario to about $250,000," he continued. "What do we get? I find that the English-French schools in 1911 received less than $25,000, representing about 50 cents for continued. in 1911 received less than $25,000, representing about 50 cents for each of

He laid stress on these figures because it showed that there were a great many reasons why it was made possible for Dr. Merchant to find room for improvement. French-Canadians had always contributed their quota towards defraying the cost of education of the Dominion Railway Act. The court of appeal, he said, had decided that the municipality had the right to the full control of its streets, but the privy council's opinion was efficiency he said that the French-Canadians asked for the money they were rightfully entitled to, more training schools, both model and normal, and uniform and cheaper books.

"Finally," said Mr. Mageau, "we want British fair play by amending the law which is accountable for so many of the unsatisfactory conditions in which English-French schools are placed today, and administer the same from a broad and patriotic standpoint. It is unjust of the premier to cut out the privileges which the French-Canadians formerly enjoyed. It was an extraordinary piece of legislation, one which met with the general disappropriet. It was an extraordinary piece of legislation, one which met with the general disapproval of school trustees."

In defence of his language the speaker said that the French were in Canada before the laws were framed and the language was one of the offi-

It was not the desire of the French to make their language the dominant language of the country, but they believed that the best way to make worthy citizens was to teach their mother tongue to them. French-Canadians wished to get a working knowledge of both English and French.

and French.

The Double System.

He then referred to regulation 17 in the circular, which restricted the hours of teaching French in the bilingual schools. He believed that this regulation placed the government in lingual schools. He believed that this regulation placed the government in a false position. The double inspection system should never have been established. The French inspectors were placed in a very inferior position and the English inspectors, who were the supervisors, did not know French and therefore were not capable. Inthe supervisors, did not know French and therefore were not capable. Instead of one year of French, as the language of communication and instruction in these schools, he urged that the government lift this restriction so as to have the French language used up to the end of third in a description of the interior of the Making Improvements.

In replying Hon. Dr. Pyne spoke of the great improvement to the English-French schools since the recent regu-lations. Four inspectors had been ap-pointed and two more training schools had been established. He said that uniform text books were now under pointed and two more training schools had been established. He said that uniform text books were now under consideration. The department took uniform text books were now under consideration. The department took every care in selecting the best and most capable men as inspectors. All the English inspectors had a conversational knowledge of French. I would be a difficult matter to get inspectors more qualified to do the work. In years gone by he said with the least surprised at what The Globe the least surprised at what The Globe had said editorially. "It was distinctly a Globe editorial," he said. He referred to the story in the news work. In years gone by, he said, only 30 minutes were given for the teaching of French. He had no objection referred to the story in the news columns, which cut in two a letter which he had sent to Sir Glenholme Falconbridge. "Practically speaking Chief Justice Falconbridge and my statements agree," said Sir James. "I wish to merely show the deliberate attempt of The Globe to shut out the knowledge of what I said, by not publishing part of the letter."

Will Not Obey Law. Mr. Evanturel denied that he had split with the Liberal party because of his attitude toward bilingual schools. The French-Canadians wanted a square deal and nothing more. His main objection to the new regulations was the appointment of English inspectors. He believed that when the government received its first annual report from the inspectors it would come from the supervising inspectors, who did not understand French. Mr. Evanturel wondered why many model schools were operating on the first day of January in the years 1906-6-7-8-9-10-11-12 and 13.
