Detectives Still Search Energetically for Passengers Driven by Leapello.

Joseph Pills, who was seated beside Leapello in the latter's car when the couple engaged the machine for a ride, told his story to the police Saturday. He declares that the girl spoke to Leapello, saying that she wanted to ride to High Park in the green car with the white stripe. She explained that she had ridden in that kind of a car to the same place two nights

There are two machines answering this description on the Toronto street motor car stand. One was owned by Ross and the other is operated by Frank Lombard. Leapello explained to her, according to Pills, that she probably rode with Edgar Bridges, as he was certain he had never accepted

In the absence of the president of Burns' Association, Dr. Hughes, the ceremonies were introduced by the vice-president, T. O. Dr. Noble was the speaker of the occasion and said that as a doctor he could state that Burns had the second largest brain of any man in the world. In his short life of 37 years he had done a wonderful am-ount of work in the shape of both years he had done a wonderful amount of work in the shape of both poetry and prose. Burns was a reformer who had the courage of his convictions and he had taken issue even with the church in which he had been orought up, and these convictions he had expressed in his "Holy Fair" and "Holy Willie's Prayer." Dr. Noble took advantage of the occasion to tell his audience that they were in danger of being governed by Quebec. In a short address P. McIntosh pointed out that the Burns was sometimes said not to have a classical education he had the knowledge of true sympathy with human nature which is the greatest of all teachers. Charlie Walker added his word of praise and gave a sympathetic rendition of "The Cotter's Saturday Night." The proceedings were agreeably added to by the singing of several Scotch songs by George Neil and the duet, "Ye Banks and Braes o' Bonnie Doon," by Mr. Neil and Miss Nancy

Hair Often Ruined By Careless Washing

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp makes the hair brittle, and ruins it. The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage. to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy. It's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

The ingenuity of government surveyors to whose lot it falls to make observation records for triangulation in wooded tracts in the far west or in our distant possessions, is often severely taxed, for if no natural observation can be found, high towers must be built. In the remote regions where these men work, the facilities for such construction are very limited. In the Philippines, for example, the surveyors have sometimes been compelled to build crude tail frameworks of slender poles, fastened together with such means as are at hand.
