WAKE 30 YEARS, THINKS HE NEEDS 5-MINUTE NAP

Trenton's Sleepless Wonder Is Weary at Last, but Physically Only and Not Mentally

Albert Herpin, a Trenton, N. J., man, who has gone without sleep for thirty years, is now complaining of feeling weary.

He says that while he is mentally well, or the last two days he has been physically weak and believes a nap, even only of five minutes' duration, would give him new life.

Physicians who have for years been following the sleepless wonder's case say that he is suffering only from overwork, and do not agree with the theory that so many years of wakefulness has used his physical health to fall.

Since the power of sleep left him Herpin has never expressed a desire to even rest. He has shown no lassitude day or night. The only rest he gets is when he is in a comfortable chair for several hours each night, but he does not even close his eyes. His sleeplessness has brought him considerable money, as he has thought out inventions during some of his resting periods that have proved successful. He works every day, excepting Sunday, in a local pottery, and he spends most of the night working out inventions or decorating pottery ware for friends.

Herpin is always in good spirits, and he reports to his employers in the morning he seems as fresh as any of his fellow workmen who have had hours of undisturbed sleep. Those who work with the sleepless man assert that he keeps constantly busy and exhibits not the slightest symptom of drowsiness. The only complaint that Herpin has made because of his condition is that he becomes lonely frequently at night when he has nothing to keep him busy.

Herpin first discovered that he was unable to sleep after the death of his wife thirty years ago. He was then thirty years old. Physicians were unable to help him.

From time to time he has been secretly watched at night and the medical men who undertook this task are convinced that the man has not slept a moment since first attacked by the strange malady from which he is believed to be suffering.

Experts from all parts of the United States visited Herpin's home and studied his condition, and went away convinced that he had been awake longer than any man in the world.

Herpin's case is a unique one. It is a record that will live for all time.

BROTHERS SCOUR WOODS FOR THIRD MISSING SINCE LAST FALL

Spokane, Wash., April 18.—Jacob and Gottlob Keller, master bakers in Spokane, are tramping through the mountain wilds of the Sheep Lake country in British Columbia, searching for their brother, Gustav Keller, who lost his way after separating from Michael Johnson, his companion, on a big game hunting and trapping trip last fall. They have provisions and ammunition for a stay of five weeks.

Officers of Spokane Lodge, No. 211, Loyal Order of Moose, with which the missing man is affiliated, will dispatch a searching party of five men to the scene in ten days in the event no word is received from the two brothers.

Three theories are advanced by seasoned woodsmen, who are familiar with the district where Keller is lost. One is that in an effort to reach the cabin he wandered about aimlessly until overcome by hunger and cold. Another is that he was attacked by wild animals and died from injuries, and the third is that he was accidentally shot. The brothers alone believe he is alive, probably in a prospective cabin or in an improvised abode in the woods.

Johnson says he heard a single shot, fired presumably by Keller, about three o'clock on the afternoon the men separated. It appeared to be off some distance, but he thought nothing of it until Keller failed to return that night. He made a wide detour of the cabin the following day, without finding trace of his companion.

Johnson walked to the settlement of Deer Park, B. C., on the second day, where a searching party was organized, but meanwhile snow had fallen to such a depth that efforts to trace the lost hunter were of no avail. Returning to the settlement the men reported tracking a mountain cougar, several of which they killed; also encountering three packs of timber wolves and a bear in the deep forest.

IS YOUR SKIN ROUGH AND "PATCHY"?

Zam-Buk Will Make It "Peachy"

Every girl likes a good complexion. Use of Zam-Buk ensures one! If you have pimples or rough and scaly patches on your face or any part of your skin just try it.

Think what your skin has had to go through during the winter past. You have been out in rain and snow and have been out in the sun and wind. You have spent hours indoors at a temperature equal to summer heat. Then you have covered up your skin except your face and gone out into a temperature away below zero! No wonder that with all these changes the skin of the face and neck shows signs of needing attention.

Zam-Buk is a skin food. Don't forget that the skin is a part of your body, and if you overwork it, it gives out. Zam-Buk is the remedy. Since it is light, clear, and soft, the eruptions, the scaly patches, at night, and note how quickly your complexion improves.

herbal essences sink deep into the tissue, the hard scaly-like patches are removed. The cuticle is softened. The cells of the skin are stimulated to healthy operation. The pores resume their work properly. Better color results. The cells of the skin are purified by Zam-Buk, becoming transparent, the blood beneath is able to impart its proper coloring to the tissue, and the delicate "peach bloom" of health replaces the sallowness and pallor of disease. A few days' use of Zam-Buk will be found to give this result. Use also Zam-Buk soap.

Zam-Buk and Zam-Buk Soap are obtainable from all druggists and stores, or by mail from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

Minister to Alma House at Ninety-Six

The Rev. William O. Peterson of Springfield, Mass., has been taken to the almshouse at Ninety-Six, N. Y.

Peterson has preached the gospel for more than seventy years and his ambition to reach the heathen has been a constant one. He has preached in many lands, and his health has been steadily failing.

Mr. Peterson is a Methodist and the annual conference of New England Methodists churches, now in session in Springfield, is the first he has missed in many years.

While the eye seems to see things actually moving, the hand hears the noise made by them, the nostrils catch up their smell, the skin feels hot or cold. The sense of taste alone remains unaffected.

All the Senses Save That of Taste Deceived by the Cinematograph

London, April 17.—Dr. Ponzo, an Italian psychologist, writes in a scientific review publication in Turin that in watching a film representing a religious ceremony in Burns he distinctly heard the sound of the bells. When the illusion passed off he noticed that there were nothing but stringed instruments in the orchestra, and it was evident that he had been the victim of auto-suggestion.

On another occasion Dr. Ponzo was looking at a photograph of a cascade, and thought he heard the roar of the water, and he subsequently perceived that the sound came from the ventilator. Presented with a picture of the sea, he had felt a sensation of the dampness and the freshness of the water, and of the soothing of the breeze; perhaps it was again the ventilator that caused the delusion.

A yet stranger instance of auto-suggestion followed. The film was shown in a farm yard, with men unloading a hay cart. M. Ponzo asserts that he smelt fresh hay, and his assistant sitting by his side had the same sensation. As they looked about for an explanation they noticed that one of their neighbors had scented himself with some strong perfume. They had not noticed it before, and now that it greeted their senses they held remarked that it bore no relation whatever to the scent of new mown hay. Their neighbor had indirectly produced the illusion in their minds by stimulating, so to speak, the imagination of their sense of smell.

From these experiences M. Ponzo concludes that cinematography acts on all the senses. By some mysterious association it can delude the warden of the brain. While the eye seems to see things actually moving, the hand hears the noise made by them, the nostrils catch up their smell, the skin feels hot or cold. The sense of taste alone remains unaffected.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.
