IMPORTANT NOTICE.
 To Store Keepers, Traders, and the General Public.
 PEREMPTORY SALE OF SPRING AND SUMMER DRY GOODS.

The ENORMOUS stocks of SUTHERLAND & CREAGHAN both at Chatham and Newcastle, thrown on the market regardless of COST or consequences. $75,000.00 worth of new and seasonal merchandise to be sacrificed—all reserves—all must go. Having purchased for spot cash the stock and real estate at Chatham and doubled the capacity of the premises, I have decided to continue the business at Chatham as well as at Newcastle on my own account. My long business experience of 18 years on the Miramichi, and the kindness I have always received, impel me to make greater efforts to please the public—who will find my stores at Chatham and Newcastle first-class warehouses in every respect. Ladies will have no cause to send outside for goods or samples. The very latest designs can always be found on my counters as soon as they leave the makers hands. I have just returned from a business visit to the leading centres of trade in the United States and Canada having selected large lots of the latest novelties for spring and summer wear. As competition is a test, I respectfully invite keenest comparison and inspection of these merchandises—no trouble to show goods or give samples.—Chatham and Newcastle.

 A LIBEL MYSTERY.
 (From London Truth.)
 "He says it's so precarious, Fred!" "Of course it is a doctor, or for that matter a lawyer, Nellie! Nellie's father being a lawyer."

"But a lawyer's business will go on if he's laid up for a time and a doctor, too, can get an assistant; but if you broke down for a day no one could take your place," she replied, thinking, indeed, with the fond faith of a woman and of love, that no one could adequately fill the brilliant Fred's place in the ranks of journalism.

I am not sure that Fred himself was less persuaded of this than his living upon my mental and bodily health; but to be a doctor, or for that matter a lawyer, Nellie! Nellie's father being a lawyer."

Nellie accepted as due to his polite presentation of the bald facts of the case.

"I shall soon be in the swim now," Fred said to her, in exuberant spirits. "A few more successes of this kind and I shall get my name up, appoint my own agent for placing my stories, instead of being sweated by a syndicate, make my fortune, and—you know the rest, Nellie? It's the end of all happy stories," he said, looking into her eyes with that earnest hope she suggested shining in his own.

"Oh, Fred! I'm so glad! I knew you would succeed," Nellie cried enthusiastically.

"But in a word, got soon to think and speak as if the story was wholly an ingenious invention of Fred's own. They were soon unaltered. Four days after the simultaneous appearance of the story in all the papers, supplied by the syndicate, Fred got a letter from his manager which horrified him:

"Mr. Briggs Bros., wire manufacturers, Stillwell, who you have libelled most grossly and unmistakably in your single instalment story, 'A Patent Fraud,' have threatened all the papers supplied by us with actions, to which the only defence that can be offered is the plea that they were unwittingly duped through us by you. We can assure you that neither they nor we will spare expense to put the guilt and the cost of this most gravitous and scandalous libel upon the man solely responsible for it. We are, sir, yours, etc., SIMONSTON & SONS.

Poor Fred read and re-read this letter many times before he could get his together thoughts sufficiently together even to form a conjecture as to how he had been duped. At last it occurred to him that his travelling companion, for whom he had the story, was a trade competitor of Briggs Bros. and had taken his ingenious method of injuring his rival. Having made but a poor attempt at a breakfast, he hurried off to Mr. Maynard's office and was at once admitted into that gentleman's sanctum.

"What is it, Fred? What's the matter?" asked Mr. Maynard, at sight of Fred's white and worried face.

"I've got into a frightful mess," Fred replied, and then proceeded with his story.

Mr. Maynard, having heard him out in silence, asked for Sidelton & Sons' letter, which he read carefully.

"It is a mess," he pronounced at last, with clouded brow.

"I suppose I was a rival of Briggs Bros.?"

"It looks to me more like devilry than rivalry—a bit of spite, rather than a trade trick," Mr. Maynard observed
