ST. JOHN STAR.

ST. JOHN, N. B., SEPT. 16, 1901.

DUKE AND PRESIDENT.

Canadians will cheerfully submit to any disturbance of their arrangements in connection with the royal visit; if it should be decided that the Duke of Cornwall and York go to Washington as the empire's chief representative at the funeral of President McKinley.

So graceful an act of sympathy under the distressing circumstances surrounding the death of the late president would be warmly appreciated by the American people. Their sorrow is shared by the people of Canada and of the empire at large. If the thing can be done, by all means let the duke go to Washington. There was a natural objection when it was suggested some time ago that he might be invited to go to the United States, for Canadians felt that all of his time should ordinarily be given to this country; but the conditions have entirely changed, and the Star believes there will now be disappointment rather than otherwise if the king's son is unable to attend the funeral of the late president.

He believed in keeping capital from oppressing labor but in New Zealand in many cases labor is detaching itself from the capitalists. As a result capital has been, and will be withdrawn from the island, to the injury of New Zealand. Men who used to manufacture bicycles had so much difficulty with their employees that they gave up manufacturing altogether and now import the bicycles ready-made. The same had been the case in China and shoes and other lines. The Premier, Mr. Seddon, had sounded a note of warning recently when he said that laborers were working the arbitration courts too hard and tending to destroy capital. Mr. Rawson feels that New Zealand would be better joined to Australia because the larger political body would be less under the sway of local influences, but New Zealand politicians would not agree to their power being reduced and so union was not in sight.

In Darwen, England, all the refuse of the town is burned in a furnace, with boiler attachment, and the result is steam to produce electricity for light and power. This fact invests a garbage heap with a new and striking interest.

The gross receipts of the Toronto street car system in August were $156,512, compared with $129,353 in August 1900.

MRS. MCKINLEY'S ONLY INTERVIEW.

(Pittsburg Dispatch.) In the first interview which Mrs. McKinley has given to a newspaper reporter, she being then in New Orleans on the trip which ended in her illness, Mrs. McKinley began to talk about the president, whose name was mentioned. "Who know Major McKinley?" she asked. "Ah, one can know him, because to appreciate him one must know him as I do. And I am not speaking now of Major McKinley as the president, but as speaking of him as my husband. If any one could know what it is to have a sick wife, complaining, always ill, laid up for twenty-five years, seldom a day well, and yet never a word of unkindness has ever passed his lips; he is just the same tender, thoughtful, kind gentleman I knew when first he came and sought my hand. I know him because I am his wife, and my proudest pleasure is to say this, not because he is my husband, but because he is my husband. He is so kind, so good, so patient. He gives me all the time he can; he never forgets me, no matter how busy I am. But I will be glad when he is out of public life. He did not want him to run a second time. I thought that he had done enough for the country, and now I know that he has done enough and when his term expires he will come home and we will settle down quietly and he will be quiet to me."

Lady Minto's object in awarding these prizes was to encourage people to embellish their gardens and make them as attractive as possible when viewed from the street. The judges in making these awards have kept in mind the following: "The garden is most attractive, but which has, in my opinion, longitude forfeited such a designation and become an unfashionable prolongation of the war suffering of women and children. Such continuance of hostility causes so much devastation of the country and distress to their own families, is due to the ignorant arrogance of leaders, who, though originally opposed to the war, are unwilling now to submit to what they foresaw would be its inevitable consequences."

"As in all guerrilla warfare this is a slow process and great patience is required to see the inevitable end of an insatiable resistance, which some may consider chauvinistic, but which has, in my opinion, longitude forfeited such a designation and become an unfashionable prolongation of the war suffering of women and children. Such continuance of hostility causes so much devastation of the country and distress to their own families, is due to the ignorant arrogance of leaders, who, though originally opposed to the war, are unwilling now to submit to what they foresaw would be its inevitable consequences."

The greatest pressure at present on the Civic Reception Committee met Saturday afternoon and decided that under present conditions it was undesirable to have a procession during the royal visit. A. J. Charlton submitted a model for a double arch of marbled wood at King and Germain streets. At the intersection of the arches it is proposed to have a globe representing the sun, on which will be shown by illumination all British possessions. Mr. Charlton's design was accepted and it was agreed to make drawings for the other arches. An allotment of money was then made, and $7,500 was voted for fireworks and hand illuminations.

There has been no weakening either in the popularity of the protestant tariff system, but the course of events requires new adaptations to our foreign trade interests without impairing its defensive features.

The proper adjustments cannot be made by a general overhauling of the tariff or by attempts to tinker it in detail. The effect upon foreign trade relations must vary with different countries, and the best means of marking out traditional policy, constitutive of protective policy, is to study the needs of the various provincial assumpsit.

Since his return from Australia the Hon. Wm. Mullock, postmaster-general, has stopped to have a number of letter-boxes of a much larger size than those now in general use. These boxes were specially designed under instruction from the postmaster-general, and will readily admit of large letters being posted therein. They will have at least double the capacity of the largest used boxes now in use, and will be erected in the business and manufacturing districts and opposite the principal banks and sub post-offices throughout the Dominion, but mainly at Toronto and Montreal.

NOT ALL SUNSHINE.

We have become so accustomed to have New Zealand held up as a model community, where arbitration settles all troubles and a paternal government makes life one long holiday, that it comes with almost a shock of surprise to be told that after all there is room for reform. Mr. H. P. Dawson, of Wellington, N. Z., is in Toronto, and to the press of that city he states bluntly that the high wages demanded by workmen is driving away capital, and that there is also too much labor legislation. The following is a report of what he said:

He believed in keeping capital from oppressing labor but in New Zealand in many cases labor is detaching itself from the capitalists. As a result capital has been, and will be withdrawn from the island, to the injury of New Zealand. Men who used to manufacture bicycles had so much difficulty with their employees that they gave up manufacturing altogether and now import the bicycles ready-made. FRANCE AND RUSSIA.
Said to be Building Powerful Submarines for the Viet-Great Britain

Moving Slowly.

(Mail and Empire.)

Tennyson pictured the nations grasping together in the sky blue and Jules Verne followed them playing at the game of war beneath the sea. It seems that the Frenchman's vision is likely to be realized sooner than that of our late poet laureate. At all events the London Daily Express made the startling announcement a few days ago that the two great continental powers closely allied as each other—France and Russia have recently entered upon the construction of a submarine fleet. It declares that the said alliance has ordered 92 powerful submarine vessels and that these submarine destroyers will be ready for action—perhaps to repeat the futile attempt of the Spanish Armada by the 18th of February next. The other great powers are slow to attempt the submarine boat. Great Britain is building five of an approved type as an experiment. The United States has ordered eight, while Germany and Italy are holding aloof from the new craft. It is under pressure of public opinion that the British government has induced to act. Our imperial naval authorities do not like the submarine at all seriously. They note that it is not yet an effective weapon at sea, and that it is at best only likely to be useful for defensive purposes.

Still, the great secrecy with which France and Russia have been providing themselves with submarines as well as the evident faith they have in the new style of battlefield, give an importance to the movement that England cannot afford to ignore. Difficulties and drawbacks undoubtedly are attached to the submarine, but they are only those which may yet be overcome.

In the meantime it is not likely that the action of Russia and France will create any alarm. In the event of European war, when everybody hopes is very remote, the submarine navy would keep an attacking force at a respectful distance from any port defended by it, and then its efficiency would vanish.

A submarine can be built in six months though it takes four years to design, build and equip a modern battleship. If the submarine proves to be all that its advocates claim for it will not take long for Great Britain to send forth such a navy.

SOUTH AFRICA.

Two months ago Lord Kitchener wrote as follows, in regard to the state of affairs in South Africa:

"I consider that throughout the Transvaal, Orange River Colony, and Cape Colony the war is not more than 12,500 Boers in the field, with 1,500 miles of railway to hold, each yard of which has to be defended, both to secure our own military and civil supplies, and what is more important, to prevent the enemy from obtaining necessities by the capture of our trains. The Boers are a fierce people who do not like to be driven off their farms, and they are equally determined to defend their homes and families, and they will fight to the last. The Boers have been fighting since the beginning of the war, and they have not given up. They have had many reverses, but they have been able to hold their own, and they will continue to do so as long as they have food and water, and as long as they have arms. They are a stern people, and they are very brave. They are not afraid of death, and they will fight to the last. INTERNATIONAL S. S. CO. MAGAZINES.

A number of prominent gentlemen came down from Portland Saturday on the str. State of Maine. They were: H. F. Libby, manager, and J. F. Lissom, superintendent of the J. S. S. Co.; A. S. Hanson of the Boston and Albany Railway, C. E. Laecker of the Washington Co. railway. The party put up at the Hotel Victoria. Yesterday they took a sail boat ride in the yacht Dream, the guests of Capt. Thompson of the State of Maine. The society was much admired by the visitors and several St. John gentlemen who accompanied them. They took dinner at John O. Vanward's, and returned to St. John early in the evening. The visitors leave in the State of Maine this morning.
