are some 30 monuments to British officers : Ferme de Mont Ste. Jean, la Haye Sainte, la Belle alliance /la Montagne du Lion, and la Ferme 12 Mardin, et la chateau D'Hougoument. The latter is very interesting, as it is just as it was left then-the gates riddled with ball holes; the old brick garden walls, with the loop holes; the chapel of the chateau, where the wounded lay, &c., &c. Our guide, an intelligent fellow, showed us all the positions, so that I found the trip instructive as well as interesting. I bought a few relics from the legion of vendors who prowled round us; if they are not genuine, they will at least serve just as well for souvenirs of the place.

You can fancy what these columns are when I tell you that the root is 132 feet above the floor. Amiens is a large and a pretty town, the streets broad and straight, with a good many squares, and, as usual, fine spacious boulevards, planted with trees, and running out | On them will I spend it to open their hearts, and to the environs. I saw a good many tall chimneys; so I suppose it has some manufactories.

"Leaving by the morning " Convoi de la Poste," we rode through a pretty country, and arrived in Paris at two P.M.; making our entry by the famous faubourg St. Denis.

"Of Paris, I do not intend to say one word; simply because any attempt to describe it is beyond my power ; for really it is the most enchanting place, as a city, that the mind can imagine. I had read a good deal of it before coming ; indeed so many glowing descriptions, that I was afraid I would be disappointed; but ere I was here one day, I found that my impressions were tame when compared with the reality: it surpassed in every way the ideas I had formed of it. It is improving every day. The Louvre is now finishedby far the grandest pile of buildings I have ever seen. The avenue de L'Imperatrice is opened, forming with the Champs-Elysees, a noble drive from the Tuileries gardens to the Bols de Boulogne. This is where one sees the great of Paris riding, driving, and walking every afternoon; it is a grand sight. Yesterday, we saw the Empress out in an open carriage, amid the gay throng; the portraits give you a good idea of her; but she has a lovely pleasing expression of countenance, which is wanting in the pictures. There was only another lady sitting with her ;---you should have seen how sweetly ; she bowed as she passed along; it went right into my bussum, and as I pulled my caubeen off, I felt like giving a good old Irish cheer. We also saw the Prince Inperial out walking with his nurse in the gardens of the Tuileries: a jolly little chap, chubby and rosy. He was running about picking up pebbles, &c., just like any other youngster .-Every one was smiling at him, and regarding him just as if he was their own. Wasn't there a crowd of women all round, watching him, and laughing and crowing at all his little movements ! The Emperor is beloved by all: you can see it everywhere. We have not seen him yet, altho' be is out walking or riding every day, as we are told, in the Bois de Boulogne; but we have somehow or other missed him. You have ere this heard all about the attempted assassination ; there is but one feeling here about it. I have purposely spoken to many, and find the greatest love expressed for the Emperor, and the most intense horror felt as regards those infamous set of fellows of the Italian school. Considerable interest is felt as to the course England will pursue; something must be done, so that justice can reach those so-called refugees, but in reality bloodthirsty conspirators. "Saturday last I went out to Issy by stage, to see Mr. ____, but was quite disappointed to find that he had left some time since for Ireland. It was a young French Priest who opened the door for me, and on hearing that I was from Canada, he suddenly ran off, and on his return, fancy my amazement to see him accompanied by our friend M. Picard. He introduced me to a number of other gentlemen, among whom were three from Montreal. They kindly took me through their lovely grounds, where I saw some flowers in full bloom, and showed me their charming little chapelle, the Loretto, la solitude, &c. ; thus time flew, till I found it was time to leave; so we parted with many regrets, on my part at least; for I never spent an afternoon so very pleasantly in my life.

everything seemed happy except the Shepherd Darby. Poor fellow !! A " green and yellow melancholy," had settled on his manly cheek ; his grief he revealed noi, but let "concealment, like a worm in the bud," prey upon his spirits; he stalked about the field like a ghost, or leaned upon his crook in silent despair.

Lord Amplefield and Squire Buckthorn were riding past to dinner.

"I wonder," said his lordship to the squire, "what can be the matter with my shepherd Darby. He seems in a galloping consumption ; and were I to lose him, I would not see his like again for many a long day. He is the most honest, steady, careful creature in the world, and never told a lie in his life."

"Never told a lie in his life! Good! Why, my lord, do you really believe such nonsense?" "Decidedly I do. I know your opinion is not very favorable as to the moral character of our

"Explain this riddle, Darby."

"Why, sir, when I feel myself merry enough without it, where's the use in taking it ? That stream can slake my thirst as well. Yet I'll not speak for others-many a one there are; who must have strong drink to give them false spirits. make them forget their day's toil."

"You are a worthy fellow, and a philosopher," said Lord Amplefield, with a look of triumph, as he and the squire rode off. "What say you to my shepherd now ?"

"A mighty plausable fellow, indeed! Yet proud as you are of him, my lord, I bet a score of sheep that before two days I'll make him tell you a barefaced lie, out and out."

"Done !" said his lordship, the wager was laid, and the squire set out on his lie-making expedition.

He soon ascertained the cause of Darby's melancholy. There had been a quarrel between him and the girl of his heart, the lovely Cauthleen. Pride prevented a reconciliation, though both would have given the world to be in each other's arms. To her the squire bent his steps, succeeded in drawing out the secret that she loved Darby with a heart and a half, and then artfully upbraiding her with unkindness in neglecting the "worthy young fellow," who was dying for her, contrived to inveigle her, by a series of falsehoods, into a plan to get reconciled to Darby, and while in the height of his happiness, to coax the ram from him. It succeeded next day to admiration-and the laughing girl tripped home, leading the animal with a kerchief truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, and instead of seeing a frown gathering on his lordship's countenance, he beheld him turn with a look of triumph towards the squire, while he exclaimed-

"An honest man's the noblest work of God." The ladies are informed, in conclusion, that the squire's forfeited sheep were given to Cauthleen as a dower, and in taking the hand of her shepherd, she promised never again to put his truth and constancy to so severe a trial.

IRISH INTELLIGENCE.

DIOCESE OF ELPHIN .- On Tuesday, June 8th, the Right Rev. Dr. Browne, Lord Bishop of Elphin, administered the Sacrament of Confirmation to 1,130 boys and girls, at the parish chapel of Cootehall, Ardcarna, near Boyle. The congregation was immense. The venerable Prelate explained in clear, eloquent, and thrilling terms the Sacrament of the Eucharist and the Sacrament of Confirmation. It was a most pleasing sight to witness the modest and pious bearing of the boys and girls whilst the Sacrament was being administered. His Lordship was assisted by bis Coadjutor, the Right Rev. Dr. Gilhooly. In the evening the pious and patriotic Pastor, the Very Rev. B, Hester, entertained in princely style their Lordships, and over fifty of the neighbouring Clergymen and gentry. The Rev. Mr. Hogan, C.C., Holycross, has been appointed Parish Priest of Kilbehenny by his Grace the Archbishop of Cashel, in the room of the late Rev. James Burke, P.P., whose lamented death we recently announced.

CLOCHBEN.-The Right Rev. Dr. O'Brien, Lord Bi-shop of the diocese of Waterford and Lismore, arrived in Clogheen on the morning of the 8th ult, from the neighbouring parish of Ballylooby, and adminis-tered the Holy Sacrament of Confirmation to six hundred children, some of whom were adults and one convert. The Benediction was then given by his Lordship to the people, who retired to their respective homes much impressed with the solemnity of the sacred ceremony at which they assisted .- Tip-

THE JESUIT FATHERS-MISSION IN WEST CLARE. -The mission of the Fathers was opened on Sunday last in Miltown Malbay. The members of the illustrious Order who arrived are the Very Rev. Dr. Healy, the Rev. Father Fortescue, The Rev Father Dwyer, and the Rev. Father Kyan. Many of the Clergymen of the neighbouring parishes have arrived to afford their spiritual aid in the confessional and the solemn celebration of the Divine Service .-- Correspondent of the Munster News.

The Very Rev Dr. O'Connell acknowledges the receipt of 1002., from Anonymous, through his Grace the Archbishop, towards the funds for the Propagation of the Faith.

The Rev. Thomas O'Carroll, P.P., Clonoulty, arrived in Thurles on Friday from his visit to the Holy Land and Holy Places.

It is our painful duty to record the death of the Very Rev. Father John O'Connor, S.T.M. He was for fifty years a member of the Dominican community in this city. He made his religious profession in the Order of St. Dominic, in 1803, at Lisbon, and after his ecclesiastical studies in Lisbon and Spain, he returned to his native city in 1808. For half a century he laboured with much fruit in the sacred ministry. He was greatly esteemed as an effective and eloquent preacher, and his guidance as a spiritual director was valued by a great number of the Catho-lics of this city. To the very last month of his life he continued his ministry as a confessor. He received the last sacraments with great faith and piety, and died on the 9th of June, in the 79th year of his age, and the 54th of his ministry .-- R. I. P.-- Cork Examiner.

The foundation stone of a new Catholic Chapel, was laid at Ballyraughan, Co. Clare, on Sunday, May 30th, by the Rt. Rev. Dr. Fallon. Col. White, owner of extensive property in the neighborhood, has subscribed £50 towards the building.

At the ordination held on the 29th ult, by his Eminence the Cardinal Archbishop of Mechlin (Belgium), the following Irishmen, students of the Catholic University of Louvaine, were promoted to Holy Orders : -Mr. Bernard Sheridan, (diocess of Kilmore), Mr. John O'Mallane and Mr. John Carver (diocess of Cloyne), to Tonsure and Minor Orders ; and the Rev. Patrick Flynn, of this diocess; to Deaconship .--Waterford Chronicle. THE SISTERS OF MERCY, NAVAN .- On Sunday last sermon was preached in the chapel of Navan, having for its object the raising a fund in aid of those most deserving ladies ; and the attendance and results were even worthy of the occasion. The preacher was the Hon. and Rev. Mr. Plunket, of the Order of Redemptorists; and his repute, as well as his connexion with the locality-he being the second son of the Right Hon. the Earl of Fingall-together with the real deservings of the Community, on whose behalf the appeal was made, attracted to Navan as large, as respectable, and as generous an audience as ever assembled there before. After the sermon a col-lection was made through all parts of the chapel.— The amount of money raised is about £200. The entire ended with a Benediction of the Most Adorable Sacrament, at which Dr. Cantwell presided .--Meath People.

THE O'CONNELL FUND We are rejoiced to see that the subscriptions to the O'Connell Hund continue to pour in from every part of the country, and that separate committees have been formed in various localities throughout the provinces. The liberal press has, it is truly gratifying to observe, waived all minor considerations, and united cordially in furthering this becoming expression of national gratitude. Not only the Catholic but the liberal Protestant journals also have nobly aided the cause. Even the Conservative papers in England, as well as in Ireland, have abstained from any observation that could in the slightest degree injuriously affect the tastimum which his testimony which his countrymen are anxious to bear to the worth and excellence of head and heart for which the departed son of the "uncrowned king" was unquestionably distinguished. This unanimity in so just a cause we hail with infinite satifaction as a proof that the union of all Irishmen, of all liberal Irishmen especially, for the attainment of great objects is after all much more easily effected than our enemies imagined. The spirit of union which the great Liberator first evoked and kept alive so long is not yet all extinct ; it requires but some of the noble impulses, some of the generous chords in the heart to be touched, and it would again start up, united heart and soul for the good of one and all.— Dublin Catholic Telegraph.

ENCUMBERED ESTATES COURT .- There were several heavy sales of properties on the 14th, the gross amount realizing over £40,000. The estates sold are situated in the counties of Louth, Clare, Kilkenny, and Tipperary.

HARVEST PROSPECTS IN THE NORTH .-- The Banmer of Ulster states that from all quarters the most cheering accounts come respecting the appearance of the crops in the northern counties :-- "Already we have seen samples of oats in the ear-the grain plump and well filled, and the straw remarkable luxuriant. Wheats are healthy and highly promising, and, as well as the other cereals, flax, and potatoes, have made very rapid progress during the late moist and sultry weather. There are some complaints of their having suffered from lightning; but they are too partial to excite any alarm. No appearance of blight in the potatoe crop has as yet been noticed ; but it is too early to speculate on the continued vigour of the plant. An extensive fruit-grower in the Loughgall district-the garden of the county of Armagh, states thal there is a prospect of fair yield of apples and pears, and of an abundant produce of plumbs, damsons, and cherries. There is an old rural adage anent the favourable character of a good 'haw year.' Should it hold true this season, the heart of the husbandman will surely be gladdened, for never before have we seen the hedge-rows so thickly covered with the fragrant blossoms of the whitethorn as they are at present."

The first crop of grass of the Convent field, at Ardee, was sold by Mr. Henry Louth, auctioneer, on Tuesday, the 8th of June, for the very high price of for our force added. The removed off £9 per acre, fees added. The grass to be removed off the field before the 8th of July. The Convent Committee think the second crop will be equal in value to the first. Mr. H. Louth is fortunate in getting high prices, as he sold a crop of barley in the same field last season, for the extraordinary price of £18 10s per acre.

THUNDERSTORM .- A violent thunderstorm burst over Dublin on the morning of the 12th of June. It commenced about 9 a.m. and the last great peal was heard between 4 and 5, the storm having lasted nearly three hours—a much longer period than is usual in this country. The lightning all through was forked and intensely brilliant.

THE COLLEGE RIOTS .- It was stated on the 14th that the Attorney-General is to prosecute the students engaged in the riots with the police on the memorable day of Lord Eglintoun's entry into Dublin. John Roach, Esq., has been elected coroner for Tralee.

The barracks of Tralee are to be augumented for accommodation of 1,000 rank and file.

The Waterford correspondent of the Tipperary Examiner says :- The 14th Regiment are beating up for recruits here, but their success is nothing of which to boast." Since the first of June, the steamers between Waterford and Milford Haven ply daily and carry mails. By these means a person leaving Clonmel by the 2 p.m. train, can reach London at 10 a.m., next morning. The company issue, during the summer, return

The body STREET STREET THE L of the later immenied Usptain Kelly, who so nobly sacrificed in shire whilst endeavouring to rescue the crew of the barque Mary Stoddart, wrecked in our bay during the late fearful gale in the beginning [of last April, was found early on Tuesday morning in the river, between Soldier's Point and Tipping's Quay At nine o'clock a.m. (same day) an inquest was held by Dr. Callan, and a most respectable jury, of which P. Wynne, Esq., was the foreman. In addressing the jury, the Coroner very feelingly passed a brief eulogium on the merits of deceased, and said-Gentlemen, a melancholy duty has called us together to day; we are here to inquire as to the cause of the death of a man who was known individually to every one amongst us. In the early part of last April, Captain Kelly, than whom a braver seaman never sailed a ship, volunteered to command a boat for the very laudable and humane-purpose of saving Captain Johnson, of the steamer Enterprise, and the Captain and crew of the Mary Stoddart, stranded in our bay. It is fresh in the memory of each of us, that he returned to Him who gave it, a valuable life in the cause of suffering humanity, and, with three of the noble men who accompanied him, died the death of a hero. It is unnecessary I should say a word of his merits, where he was so well known and appreciated, for even amongst, strangers, and in far distant lands. he has always been respected and loved by those who have met him. By the men under his command-and this of all others is the best test and standard of a man's real merits and goodness of heart-he was almost idolized. He has gone from amongst us-he has died a death of honour, and to the annals of his native town has left a memory that will never die, whilst honest sterling worth shall hold a place, or heroism be immortalized. Verdict-That deceased, James Joseph Kelly, was drowned in Dundalk Bay, on the morning of the 9th April, 1858, whilst nobly endeavouring to save the lives of Captain Johnston of the steamer Enterprise, also Captain Hill and crew of the barque Mary Stoddart, wrecked in said bay on the morning of the 8th of April .- Newry Examiner.

THE ASSISTANT BARRISTER OF KERRY .- It is just to state that the memorial presented by the Earl of Do-noughmore in the House of Lords against Mr. M'Dermott, Assistant Barrister of Kerry, was principally signed by the Conservative and Protestant magistrates of the county, from whom that gentleman differs in politics and creed. Few, if any, of the Justi-ces of his faith and party have attached their names to the accusations. The accusations are not new, and their nature has already been ascertained in a court of justice, and found wanting in weight and force. At least the main charge of the sale of an office was pulled to pieces in the examination by Mr. O'Riordan, solicitor, of the witness Gallivan from whom it originated. The rest of the indictment preferred by Lord Donoughmore in a place where he could fear no reply, is no more condemnatory than the indebtedness of a gentleman of landed estate and professional income equal to the discharge of his liabilities, may be deemed to be. The charge itself remains to be proved. But if financial obligations were to damn a man socially or officially either, how many peers could hold their heads high and turn accusers, or how many sons of peers take and retain official appointments .- Munster News.

The Limerick Chronicle says :- Mr. Staunton Cahill, formerly a resident and magistrate of Clare was recently discharged from the Queen's Bench, where he was confined to prevent his marriage with Miss Mahon, a near relative of Lord Hartland. The lady to whom he was attached became of age the day previous to his discharge, when the law relaxed its hold; and, faithful to ber predilection, immediately on becoming her own mistress, she married the gentleman of her choice, though vastly her senior. It is gratifying to have to record such instances of fidelity, and we are proud of the Irish blood, which always tells where the truth and virtue of the guardian angels of the Emerald Isle are tested.

It is contemplated to run a steamer from Foynes to Kildysart, co. Clave, which will open up the resources of that district.

The Tipperary Free Press says it is a circumstance to be recorded to the credit of the peasantry, that there was not a single person arrested for drunkenness on the fair day of Clonmel, and not a charge of any nature to be heard before the magistrate, who attended in the evening at the police office.

DARBY AND THE RAM.

'Twas one of those days when the sun in its perpendicular altitude looks at two sides of the hedge at once-a lovely midsummer day-when nature was laughing till her sides ached, and mo- | tell your lordship a lie !" ther earth, in her gayest mood, was lavishing her promises and her smiles to her often ungrateful from his knees, and walking up and down with a children, the lambs were skipping to and fro with- | feeling of honest exultation. He had scarcely in their enclosed pastures, and the cows, with grave and matron aspect, were lolling in the sun, the squire appeared. Darby, on the usual inter-ken from her snowy bosom.

Darby was now left to solitary reflection .-The hour was rapidly approaching when his lordship usually took his round, and he would infallibly miss his favorite ram—what was to be done? To tell a lie appeared to his honest mind the very essence of degradation-to equivocate was meanness execrable-yet an excuse must be had! A sudden thought seized him-he resolved to see how a lie would look before he told it ; and placed his hat on it, in order to personate himself. he retired to a little distance, and in the character of his lordship, hailed the effigy as follows :--

"Good morrow, Darby.

"Good morrow, my lord."

"How are the flocks, to-day, Darby ?"

"Pretty fair, my lord."

"Darby, I don't see my favorite ram-where 15 he ?"

"Oh, my 10rd, he-he-he."

"He what, Darby ?"

"He was drownd-ed-my-my lord !"

"Darby, if I did not know your general character for carefulness, I should feel exceedingly annoyed, but I presume it was an accident .-Send the fat and hide up to the castle."

"That won't do !" murmured Darby, slowly turning away. He resolved to try again.

"Good morrow, Darby."

"Good morrow, my lord."

" Are the flocks well to-day, Darby ?" " Bravely, my lord."

"And my ram, Darby, where is he ?" " My lord, he-he-."

"Is there anything wrong? tell me at once."

"He was sto-len, my-lord." "Stolen ! stolen l I saw him this morning as I was riding past ! When was he stolen ?"

"That won't do either," exclaimed the poor shepherd, as he turned away the second time .-'Cruel, cruel Cauth !"

"Something seemed to whisper to him, " Try if perhaps the truth will do!" Fresh courage animated his desponding mind, and wheeling about, he recommenced the colloquy, and on coming to the usual interrogation, "where is the ram," he dropped on his knees, and exclaimed-

"Ob, my lord, I had a falling out with my sweetheart, and she would not make it up with me unless I made her a present of your lordship's favorite ram. Discharge me, my lord, do with me what you please, but I could not bring myself to Crown and Hanaper.

"That will do," shouted Darby, springing time to compose himself when his lordship and and ruminating their already gathered repast- rogation put, dropped on his knees, and told " the late John O'Connell.

The Society for the Propagation of the Catholic faith, in Ireland, received from the 6th of May to the 2nd of June, 1858, £1,402 Gs. 31d.

THE CORK COUNTY CLUB .- This long-desired organisation receives important accessions daily. Amongst the most recent are the Very Rev. J Russel, P.P., V. G. Dean of Cloyne; the Very Rev. Mor-gan O'Brien, VG, PP, of Mitchelstown, and Daniel Welply, J P, Upton House, Innoshannon, one of the largest landed proprietors in the county. We have also reason to know that an ecclesiastic who holds a very high position in the county, who has always been a zenious advocate of the rights of the tenant, and whose influence must be of great importance in a county election, has expressed his cordial approval. Such examples are arguments. We trust they will be unanimously followed by the clergy, gentry, and especially by the farmer electors whose co-operation is especially desired, and for whose benefit the Club has been established.—Cork Examiner.

The Earl of Carlisle has subscribed 151. to the O'-Connell national subscription.

The Irish Tenant Right measure has again been thrown out by the British House of Commons, on the second reading, by a vote of 200 to 65.

The Dublin correspondent of the Times says :-The eldest son of the late Maurice O'Connell, and the heir to the residue of the Derrynane estates, is serving his time to an English architect."

THE IRISH JUDICIAL BENCH .- According to the authority of the Evening Post negotiations are in pro-gress to secure Mr. Whiteside a chief judgeship; and, further, the Post adds that a pusine judge has made up his mind to retire, while several high legal officers are to go out on superannuation. Full details are promised in a day or two.

THE FLYING CHARIOT.-Lord Carlingford has re-turned to Swiftshead, county Kilkenny, from the Lion's den, Westmeath, in order to re-construct his aerial machine in a stronger manner, and make such other improvements as his recent experiments have suggested-the principal of which will be to make the machine on an entirely larger scale than formerly, in order to enable it to carry the weight of an ordinary-sized person without requiring too great a velocity to sustain it on the air. Lord Carlingford is confident of having the design fully perfected immediately .- Kilkenny Moderator.

STATE OF BELFAST .- Since the recent riots ceased this town was never in a more peaceable or orderly state, and it would not be known by a stranger that any disturbance had lately occurred were it not for the appearance every evening of parties of constabulary parading the streets under charge of the magistrates. Their services, appear, however, to be wholly unnecessary at present, and it is the general opinion that they might be withdrawn from the se-veral posts throughout the town, as order seems to be completely restored. The Scots Greys have not been on duty since their arrival here, and yet they are continued in the town, although there is no barrack accommodation for them, so that it is necessary to keep them billeted on the inhabitants. Their bilpublicans of Belfast, who, no doubt, would much rather want them.-Belfast News-Letter.

THE BELFAST TEA FRAUDS .- The case of "the At-torney-General v. Wallace," being one of a series to be instituted by the Crown against parties alleged to be implicated in the frauds of John James Moore, was heard in the Court of Exchequer on the 13th ult. before the Chief Baron and a special jury. The result was a verdict for the defendant, without his having been required to offer evidence on his own behalf.

DISGRACEFUL TREATMENT OF A POOR IRISHWOMAN IN LIVERPOOL .- A poor, but rather geenteel-looking woman made application at the Petty Sessions Court lets have been changed once since their arrival, and here on Monday last, under the following circum-in a very short time they will have visited all the stances :- She stated that she was a dress-maker and a native of Moniva; her father, Patrick Glynn, was for many years gamekeeper to S. Roche, Esq., of Rye-The cost to the borough of Belfast for the riots of hill. She went from this country about eleven years day. She got married about five years since to a man named Walsh; he went to New Orleans about eighteen months ago in his capacity of mariner, and she never heard from him since. During the time she supported herself and her two children-one aged four years, the other cleven months-by her trade as dress-maker. Being out of employment, about five weeks since, she was obliged to apply to the parish for relief, and she obtained a sum of 1s 6d. per week She refused, as she was then earning 9s. per week. He went and returned with a policeman, and put a warrant into his hand. The policeman took herself and the two children and placed them in a cab and then on board the Tubal Cain, and they were landed here on Monday, with 1s. in her pocket. The worthy magistrates felt the greatest commiscration for the poor woman and her helpless children. A handsome sum was subscribed in court to supply her pre-sent wants. We believe her case will be brought under the notice of the Poor Law guardians on Friday.-Galway Express.

A Tipperary correspondent writes as follows :----An action is to be tried at the next assizes of Ncnagh for false imprisonment. The plaintiff, a young woman, secks damages for having been kept in jail to give evidence against the Cormacks. Spillane (who is the son of a policeman) is under the protection of the constabulary, to be forthcoming as a witness against parties charged with conspiracy to murder Colonel Knox, of Brittas, near Thurles.-Tipperary Examiner ...
