

A. I remember the weather was quite cold and the men were coming in wet, as they did for about six months of the year. We were wet all the time. And Sgt. Harvey had managed to buy, either with the camp funds or money that the doctor had given him, some dry tea. Well, the difficulty was that in the--our own kitchen we didn't have facilities to make extra tea because usually we were only allowed to have soup on the night meal. So in order to make tea at that time of the day--about four o'clock in the afternoon--Sgt. Harvey used the hospital cauldron at the back of the hospital. He had it cleaned out and managed to scrounge around and get some wood. And, he had the tea ready for when the boys came in.

Q. Yes?

A. But in the meantime--it was either Ichiba or Akamatsu, heard that he had done this, and, of course, he had done this without their permission, knowing that he probably wouldn't be given permission to do it anyway; and as soon as they found out Sgt. Harvey was called over to the office and I believe he was beaten quite severely at that time.

Q. Was he beaten after?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you see him?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was there any evidence that he had been beaten?

A. Yes, sir. I was in camp on rest at the time.

Q. Did you ever go on any marches with the other P.O.'s and Harvey?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Around what time was that?

A. The spring of '44.

Q. The spring of '44?

A. Yes, sir; and the summer. Spring and summer of '44.

Q. On those marches did the men sing?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did the men seem to enjoy those marches?

A. Very much, sir. We used to take a volley ball along--football and softballs--and on one occasion we went up to a shrine and when we got there we were given prunes and raisins, and stopped for a while and had a smoke and went back.

Q. Who gave you the prunes and raisins?

A. I believe Sgt. Harvey was given the prunes and raisins out of the stores by the Japanese.
