THE TARIFF MATTER.

The Toronto Globe believes the so-called tariff split in the Dominion cabinet is a put up job. It considers that Laurier and the rest of the members have an understanding and that Mr. Tarte's pilgrimage and utterances along the way are part of a program, mapped out in advance. The reason for his striking out is given to be a desire on the part of the government to appeal to the electors before another Ontario election. Mr. Ross has decided to hold on as long as possible and if reverses are met in the courts and bye-elections, to make another appeal to the country. Were Mr. Ross defeated the Dominion government believes it would find it more difficult to carry the country, hence its desire to hold an election within the next three months.

DREYFUS AND ZOLA.

The people of Paris are a queer community if they would deny to Dreyfus the right to peacefully include himself among those who follow the remains of Emile Zola to the tomb. If Dreyfus could publicly exhibit himself on any occasion without provoking a disturbance it should be at the funeral of Zola. His presence would not excite himself, but would be a tribute to the greatness of the departed, showing that even he, the exonerated one, could mourn with others, none saying him nay. No man in France has more reason to grieve for Zola than M. Dreyfus. Nor is there anything in the career of Zola more to his credit than his bold championship of that widely-held man. Fifty years hence our sons may know the truth about Dreyfus (if they care to enquire), but at present his case is enveloped in mystery. But even if he deserved all the contempt that Paris showered on him, there is no likelihood that time will discredit Zola's work in his behalf in the eyes of a despised man. Zola had as much use for the goodwill of France as any man in the country. He sought, he craved, popularity. And yet he rose to the defence of a despised man, and stood to him through thick and thin, seeing his own popularity diminish and disappear. Some of those who were his friends for a lifetime fell away from him, but he followed his sense of duty. When death came to him, undeterred and unexpected he had not regained what he had lost through his unselfish adherence to Dreyfus.—Toronto Star.

No unsound weaklings should venture on the football field. That is the arena for the exploits of young men with heads and hearts of flint, sinews of steel, lungs of leather, bones of adamant and feet of brass. No others need apply.

ANOTHER FUEL SUGGESTION.

Chicago Tribune.

We find the statement in the columns of a staid eastern contemporary that a Brooklyn firm has been experimenting with rosewood and mahogany as fuel, finding it nearly as satisfactory as hard coal and considerably cheaper. Don't trade your pianos for soft coal. Burn them.

Salt Rheum

It may become chronic. It may cover the body with large, inflamed, burning, itching, scaling patches and cause intense suffering. It has been known to do so.

Do not delay treatment. Thoroughly cleanse the system of the humors on which this ailment depends and prevent their return.

The medicine taken by Mrs. Ida E. Ward, Cove Point, Md., was Hood's Sarsaparilla. She writes: "I had a disagreeable itching on my arms which I concluded was salt rheum. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and in two days felt better. It was not long before I was cured and I have never had any skin disease since."

ANOTHER FREE TRADE LAND-MARK SHIFTS.

Sarnia Canadian.

Senator McMillan, of Mount Forest, takes the side of Tarte in the tariff controversy, and has a long letter in Saturday's Globe backing up Tarte's position that a higher tariff is needed against the importations from the United States. When it comes to Jas. McMillan of North Wellington preaching protection and pitching into the Globe, it is no wonder that the old line Grits on the back concessions are beginning to think that chaos has come again and that the end of all things is at hand.

SIZING UP HALL CAINE.

San Francisco Argonaut.

There are thousands of people that swallow Kipling whole because he is Kipling, and have no conception that "The Light that Failed" towers above his lesser achievements as the lightning waves at its base.

But whatever remains, a standing wonder is the sudden wave of popularity that occasionally seizes some literary weakling like Hall Caine, and sweeping him away from the wave-buffed strugglers and landing him safely on his feet. It is true, that many who rail at Hall Caine, Marie Corelli, and writers of that ilk, have not an extensive acquaintance with their works. But a forced and rebellious excursion through but one of their books is sufficiently enlightening as to their scope and style. Hall Caine's books are dismal, imitative, insincere, affectedly Biblical in style, and with an outer surface of false sentimentality, underlying an inner composition of calculated effects. They are devoid of vigor, originality, spontaneity, truth, depth. They contain endless pages of stereotyped prose, which is made up entirely of stereotyped sentiments. But the name of this author resounds far and wide, and consequently many accept him with simple faith as a great man.

THE CORONATION, DUBAR.

It Will Be Caparuled in Splendor—54

Rajahs and Numberless Lesser Chiefs

Will Attend at Delhi.

There is no truth in the report that the Prince of Wales will visit India for the coronation durbars on January 1.

It is, on the other hand, practically settled that a State visit for the durbars will be paid to the Viceroy by the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, who will be conveyed from Great Britain to Bombay on a British warship.

The obvious difficulties of precedence have hitherto prevented the question being settled. The Duke of Connaught will represent the British family; the Viceroy, Lord Curzon, the King.

It will, of course, not be the first visit of his Royal Highness to India, he having been commander-in-chief in India.

As to the subsequent plans of their Royal Highnesses nothing has, of course, been thought of, but it is certain that few, if any, ceremonial visits will be paid to the courts of native princes, as the latter would be attending the durbars and unable to make adequate arrangements for a proper welcome.

Meantime the work at Delhi is being pushed rapidly forward. The manoeuvres which precede the durbars will be of the most important character, and Lord Kitchener will arrive in ample time to supervise them.

Fifty-four of the leading princes of India, who, owing to their importance, are entitled to an invitation direct from the Supreme Government, have been formally invited to the durbars and most of them have accepted.

Beyond these specially distinguished guests there will be present numerous chiefs of lesser rank, who will be brought to the durbars by the various local Governments.

Taken as a whole, the assemblage will be one of absolutely unprecedented Royal magnificence.

The total area of the durbars camp is seven miles long by five broad, and already twenty miles of roads have been laid out. It is proposed to lay a 2 ft. 6 in. gauge railway from the Kashmir gate to the great amphitheatre, where the durbars proper takes place.

The Kashmir gate is the one against which Lieuts. Selkield and Home, of the Royal Engineers, assisted by a dozen British and native non-commissioned officers and men, in the memorable siege during the Mutiny, placed the powder train under a storm of fire, which burst the gates in, and enabled the storming of Delhi to be commenced.

The whole of the durbars camp is to be lighted by electricity, and the camp on the right of the special viceregal camp will be occupied by the Governor of Bombay and his suite. The next one to it will be allotted to the commander-in-chief, Lord Kitchener.

The two divisions of the army which have been detailed for the durbars will be encamped close to Dhersapore, while taking part in the functions. For the first time in the history of India, a full complement of the different regiments will be used in the manoeuvres, which form part of the celebration.

The coronation durbars will mean a great deal more to the Indian people than a mere pageant, trained as they are for tradition and the experience of generations to spectacular ceremonies. It will be the final coping-stone placed upon the Imperial experiment of 1877, and will convey to the princes of India, a full realization of the sentiment of supreme British rule, which they accepted on that date, also at Delhi, at the hands of Lord Beaconsfield.

Most of the tents in the Viceroy's camp will be two great rows on either side of the main road, and clustering round will be multitudinous tents of the staff and officials.

The official amphitheatre is built in horseshoe shape on rising ground. The floor is 350 ft. in diameter from seat to seat, and the total accommodation is designed for nearly 8,000 persons.

The most elaborate seating arrangements are planned, and the different ranks will be placed on rising tiers, and behind the actual chairs is a broad promenade, affording space for many thousands more.

Outside the official proceedings and the military manoeuvres, one of the greatest attractions of the durbars will be the Art Exhibition, which has been organized on a very great scale. The entrance hall of the exhibition somewhat resembles the Agri Taj, and is approached by an imposing flight of steps. At right angles to the main hall will be spacious pillared galleries containing the exhibits of real Indian work only, no mere imitations of European art being permitted. The remainder surrounding the exhibition will contain native shops of the best class only.

Many of the foremost Indian jewelers will have magnificent exhibits. A Madras firm is showing goods to the value of £200,000. A native Bombay firm is sending £150,000 worth, and among the exhibits are two jewels worth respectively £30,000 and £13,000.

Besides jewelry, the exhibits will be representative of all that is best and most typical in every branch of Indian art and industry.

"England" or "Britain."

The London Spectator has been called down for using the term "England" in referring to the people of Great Britain, where the latter name should have been used. In extension the Spectator pleads that the word "England" is more euphonious and more attractive by association than the word "Britain," and adds: "We wish 'the English' could be held to mean 'the English-speaking race.'"

Often Mistaken. In a public park at Calcutta are several birds of the adjacent species. They are the storks of the East Indies and average about six feet in height. These birds parade in a stately way and at a distance look so much like soldiers that strangers often mistake them for grenadiers.

CANADA'S NEW WATERWAY.

Description of the Plan Recently Outlined

From a U. S. Viewpoint.

A Buffalo paper says that Canada has revived the old project for the construction of a deep waterway from Lake Huron to the seaboard, the much talked-of Georgian Bay canal. The new plan of the Dominion Government as outlined by Mr. Tarte, the Canadian Commissioner of Public Works is to improve the French River to Lake Nipissing and secure a deep water channel to Montreal by improvement of the Ottawa river. He says that $5,000,000 has already been provided for the improvement of the French river and that a deep water channel to Lake Nipissing and the Ottawa river will call for an expenditure of $80,000,000.

The old scheme for a Georgian Bay canal, which has been agitated off and on for more than thirty years, was a short cut to Lake Simcoe and from there to Lake Ontario. This route, it was claimed, would save 300 miles from any port on Lake Superior to Lake Ontario, and as the Canadians claimed, would avoid the dangers of the St. Clair flats.

The main point, however, was to divert commerce from Lake Erie, as it was the work of Indian traders, and the project that once the boats from Lakes Superior, Michigan and Huron entered Lake Erie the commerce was sure to go by the way of the Erie canal or the railway line to the seaboard. The same results, it is now insisted, could be obtained by the French river, Lake Nipissing and Ottawa river route, which the Canadian authorities appear to regard as more feasible than that of the Georgian Bay.

The fact that the Canadians seem to be in earnest about constructing such a waterway as is here indicated should stir to action the advocates of the project in this country. Our supremacy of the commerce of the great lakes. If Canada can afford to spend $80,000,000 on the proposed deep waterway to Montreal, the United States can afford to spend as many millions in building a ship canal from Buffalo to the Hudson river. If it is to the political and commercial interests of the Dominion to have a purely Canadian route from Lake Huron to the seaboard, it ought to be much more to the interest of the United States to have a purely American route from Lake Erie to the seaboard.

Juvenile Suspicion. "I shall soon be your new mamma," said a governess to a little charge. "I am going to marry your father," Freddy, dear. "I wonder if you are glad?" "That's a perfectly splendid idea. Who thought of it first—you or papa?"

Anxiety may be but atheism.—Ran's Horn.
